Two Persons Killed In Fountain Accident

Two elderly Denver residents were killed at 4:45 p.m., Thursday, in a one car collision seven and a half miles south of Colorado Springs on Interstate 25, the State Patrol reported. A third person, also from Denver, sustained injuries and was taken to St. Francis Hospital by E&E Ambulance.

Dead at the scene were Thomas Romero, 64 and Margaret Marquez, 63. Romero's wife, Rida, received lacerations and possible fractures of both legs and a fractured collarbone.

The accident occurred when the southbound car driven by Mr. Romero, ran off the road to the left into the median ditch. It skidded 42 feet broadside and rolled end-over-end once for a total of 74 feet. At that point the driver was thrown out.

The vehicle then travelled across the northbound lane for 80 feet and rolled over once, throwing Mrs. Marquez clear. It then went an additional 14 feet and came to rest on the north shoulder of the highway. Mrs. Romero remained in the car.

The car, a 1962 Mercury, was termed a total loss, according to the Patrol.

An eyewitness to the accident said that the accident was not caused by excessive speed.

Death Toll Climbing In Flood Struck Areas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Floods bred by torrential rain storms wreaked havoc on the Pacific Coast Thursday for the fourth successive day.

Flood-connected deaths in five states totaled 40, with predictions that some others might be reported from isolated countryside.

Oregon and parts of Washington State confronted crisis conditions with only slight relief in sight for thousands of persons driven from homes at Christmastime.

In Northern California, rains diminished and conditions eased somewhat.

The Navy sent the big aircraft carrier Bennington north to Eureka to help rescue people stranded on high ground by broken bridges and slides. The ship, with scores of helicopters on deck, was due to reach Humboldt Bay off Eureka on Christmas morning.

The death count in five afflicted states was 40, considered low for the vast sweep of waters that have caused uncounted millions of dollars in property damage.

Washington reported 20 dead; Oregon 11; California 5, and Idaho and Nevada two each, exclusive of traffic accidents.

At least 10,000 persons throughout the area had abandoned their homes.

Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield, whose entire state has been declared a disaster area, called the flood the worst in Oregon history.

Weather forecasts included a prediction of another storm that might hit the inundated coastal areas Christmas afternoon and evening.

Gale warnings were up from Oregon south to Ft. Bragg on the northwest California coast.

Snow and lower temperatures that would slow the flow of waters brought a measure of cheer to Idaho, Nevada and eastern Oregon and Washington.

Max Novak of the American Red Cross estimated the number of Oregon homeless at "easily 7,000 to 8,000." He said Red Cross shelters were caring for 1,000.

The Oregon state highway engineer, Forrest Cooper, said 24 bridges were wrecked and state road damage might be $10 million. Damage to private

Red Cong Promise New Terrorism in Viet Nam

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A terrorist bomb knocked out the main U.S. officers' billet in downtown Saigon Thursday night, killing two Americans.

The blast injured 58 Americans and 16 other persons.

In destructiveness and the number of American casualties, it was the worst terrorist attack of the Vietnamese war. It presumably originated with the Viet Cong, but it underlined the political and military difficulties the United States is having in trying to maintain a war effort it has declared vital to world freedom.

Fire surged up through the wreckage of the first three floors of the seven-story billet, called the Hotel Brink, after the explosion. Windows within nearly half a mile were shattered. The U.S. Armed Forces radio station was wrecked, along with nine military vehicles parked on the grounds. Fifteen vehicles were damaged. Sidewalks nearby were spattered with blood.

In the rubble, searchers found the body of a U.S. Army lieutenant colonel. Earlier a U.S. civilian had died in the hospital of wounds.

Authorities said more bodies might be in the ruins, but none of the 58 injured Americans was expected to die. All but 20 of the wounded were released from the Navy Hospital within five hours. Most of the wounded were of field grade, majors and colonels.

The others injured were an Australian officer and 15 Vietnamese.

About 125 U.S. officers lived in the building, and at 6 p.m., when the explosion took place, many were in their quarters.

The blast came as many of Saigon's Roman Catholics were finishing their Christmas shopping, and nearby streets were thrown into panic.

It coincided with a seeming lull in the behind-the-scenes negotiations the United States is carrying on in its effort to solidify Vietnamese leaders, both political and military, in her approach fo the war. Last Sun-

Kremlin Ends Party for New Year's Eve

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet leaders will not clink glasses with foreign diplomats and correspondents on New Year's Eve as Nikita S. Khrushchev used to do.

Diplomatic sources said that no invitations had been sent out to foreigners to attend a Kremlin New Year's Eve reception. It appeared that the glittering festivities of the past few years have ended.

The New Year's Eve party, instituted by Khrushchev after the death of Joseph Stalin, was the most gala Kremlin affair of the year. Vodka flowed free-

Cairo Rejects U.S. Protest Over Downing Plane

By ROY ESSOYAN

CAIRO (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Lucius Battle lodged a diplomatic protest Thursday with the United Arab Republic for shooting down a private American plane over the Nile Delta last Saturday. The U.A.R. rejected the protest.

Battle, who was personally criticized by President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a "victory day" speech Wednesday, delivered the oral protest during a call on the deputy premier for foreign affairs, Mahmound Fawzi.

Nasser delivered a bristling 80-minute speech criticizing the ambassador and accusing the United States of trying to dominate and interfere in Egyptian policies.

In rejecting the protest, Fawzi said, the U.A.R. disclaimed all responsibility for the incident. He said two fighters that downed the American plane were exercising their legitimate responsibility to protect the security of their country.

In its only official statement so far, the government said Sunday the plane was shot down after it ignored repeated instructions to land.

W. Angie Smith, a representative of the oil company, said before leaving for home, that time checks indicated the plane was hot down with little, if any, warning.

Hoyt Williams, the pilot from Mulberry, Fla., and a Swedish flight mechanic were killed in the crash.

The embassy spokesman declined comment on the speech by Nasser. American and other Western sources in Cairo were, however, shocked by the language Nasser used.

Employing a pithy Arab colloquialism, Nasser told the United States it could take its multimillion-dollar food aid program and "go to hell" if it did not like his policies.

He accused the United States of trying to attach strings to its aid program. He said he would rather do without American surplus food than submit to what he described as U.S. efforts to dominate and interfere in Egyptian policies.

Egyptian sources in Cairo said Nasser was irritated by the lack of response from the U.S. government to a U.A.R. request for a $35-million increase in current $120-million U.S. surplus food aid program to this country.

U.S. relations with the U.A.R. have been strained since a mob of African students sacked the U.S. Information Agency library in Cairo last month.

Woman Robs Bank of $1,000 But Drops It

A lone woman, described by witnesses as "middle-aged," held up the Colorado Springs National Bank Thursday, and as she was escaping with approximately $1,000 a bystander took it away from her and returned it to the bank, police reported.

Detective Ben Lacy, of the Colorado Springs Police Department, said that the woman escaped after the money was taken from her, but that she is being hunted by the police and the FBI. "We are working on several leads at the present time," Detective Lacy said.

According to Mrs. Barbara Boucher, the teller who was accosted, a woman carrying a black purse and a brown package came into the bank at approximately 1.19 p.m. Thursday, came up to the teller's

Johnson to Face Revolt On Foreign Aid Packages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson faces a Capitol Hill revolt on foreign aid packaging with the opening of the new Congress little more than a week off.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said Thursday he will refuse to lead the fight for Johnson's aid bill next year unless it is split into separate parcels for military, economic and other aid forms.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he is tired of having the always-controversial bill turned into a "garbage can" for all sorts of amendments "which have nothing whatever to do with foreign aid."

He was backed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who called the bill a "conglomerate mass" that tempts senators to "throw in everything but the kitchen sink."

Their views brought a sharp dissent from Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"As long as I have anything to do with it," Morgan said, "it will be considered in a single package."

The State Department had no comment.

At Johnson City, Tex., where the President is spending the holidays working on next year's budget, press secretary George E. Reedy said he had no comment.

Fulbright told a reporter he notified Secretary of State Dean Rusk last October of his decision.

"If they present a new bill in January in the same old omnibus form they sent up this year, I will not serve as floor manager for the measure in the Senate," Fulbright said.

He stressed that he still supports foreign aid, which is now running at an annual rate of $3.25 billion, but he said "I have

Boost in Steel Prices Seen as Steppingstone

NEW YORK (AP)—A potentially significant steel price rise initiated by a Chicago producer spread on Christmas Eve to two of the industry's three largest companies.

It was regarded in some quarters as a likely steppingstone to other more important markups of the sort that President Johnson has been wary.

U.S. Steel Corp., industry giant, and third-ranking Republic Steel Corp. announced increases of $6 a ton on galvanized steel sheets and coils, coupled with reductions in "extras" —charges for special services at the mill.

Inland Steel Co. was the first to institute such an increase, and said it averaged under 3 per cent.

Galvanized sheets, used mainly by the automobile, appliance and construction industries, account for about 5 per cent of all steel shipments from mills.

Preston Pleads Innocent to Murder Charge

Glenn "Hook" Preston pleaded innocent in District Court Thursday afternoon to a charge of first-degree murder.

Deputy District Attorney Robert Russel said that "under the circumstances surrounding the case it should be tried on Jan. 4." Judge G. Russell Miller then continued the matter to that date.

Preston, 54, Rt. 4, a merchant policeman, is accused of the pistol slaying of Harris Junior Orin, 44, 608 Bonfoy Ave., early Thursday morning.

Deputy District Attorney Herman Ratner has described the incident as "definitely justifiable homicide" and explained that the law requires a charge of first degree murder to be filed. "It is," said Ratner, "a perfect-

Injunction Still Prevents Rail Union Walkout

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN

CHICAGO (UPI)—A U.S. district court judge ruled today that three shopcraft unions are free to go on strike against the nation's railroads. At the same time he issued a temporary injunction against a walkout pending an appeal.

Judge Joseph Sam Perry dismissed a temporary restraining order and a suit filed by the railroads in an attempt to prevent a strike by the machinists, sheet metal workers and electrical workers unions.

But he also issued a temporary injunction against a strike pending an appeal by the railroads. He said he would insist on "an immediate appeal."

Perry's ruling, in effect, said the unions were legally entitled to their right to strike but still forbade a walkout which could cripple the nation's rail system.

He said the railroads would have 30 days in which to appeal his ruling. Such an appeal was believed to be a certainty.

The unions represent 52,000 non-operating rail workers. Their strike would affect all the nation's major railroads except the Florida East Coast and Southern railways.

Perry had issued a 10-day restraining order barring a strike Dec. 14. The unions had followed up with a pledge not to call a strike until after the end of the New Year's holiday.

The three unions originally called a strike for Nov. 23, but pulled back at the request of Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz.

Perry said in his 30-page opinion that the law was on the side of the unions but that equity was on the side of the carriers. He said a strike was legal since all bargaining had ended.

'I Wasn't Scared,' Says Bob Hope in Viet Nam

By CHARLES FLOOD

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) — "I wasn't scared about the flight, but we had to blindfold the plane," Bob Hope told cheering U.S. servicemen on his arrival Thursday in South Viet Nam.

The dapper comedian and his 60-member troupe won an ovation at this mortar-scarred air base northeast of Saigon. Fresh from Thailand, he is on his 13th Christmas tour of American installations abroad.

Hope staged a surprise show for about 1,200 Americans on a baseball field only 400 yards from the runways where Viet Cong mortar shells killed four Americans and destroyed or damaged 27 planes Nov. 1.

"Hello, advisers," Hope said. "Here I am in Bien Hoa, which is Vietnamese for, 'Duck.'

"It is nice to be in Sniper Valley.

"As I flew in today, they gave us a 21-gun salute. Three of them were ours.

"If there are any VC (Viet Cong) in the audience, remember I've already had my shots."

Security precautions were tight, exceeding even those for visits by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

The men were notified the base was on the troupe's itinerary only two hours before the show opened on a hastily erected stage. The entertainers were guarded by 113 military policemen. Armed helicopters patroled the surrounding area.

On hand with Hope were such performers as Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jill St. John, Janis Paige and Jerry Colonna.

Hope told the gathering, "There's been very little griping here since the troops found out the rest area for this place is the Congo.

Solon Promises Benefits for War Veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., unwrapped a Christmas gift Thursday for millions of veterans who have served in the armed services since the Korean conflict.

Yarborough promised to introduce on the first day of the new Congress a bill to give those veterans similar benefits to those received by World War II and Korean conflict servicemen.

The Texas senator served on the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare which has jurisdiction over veterans affairs. He thus will be in a position to shepherd his measure through the various legislative byways.

"It is my intention," Yarborough said, "to reintroduce the cold war GI bill at the opening of the 89th Congress and to work with renewed determina-

Filipinos Planning Anti-U.S. Protest

MANILA (UPI)—About 5,000 residents of a community near Clark Air Force Base will demonstrate Sunday to demand the recall of "ugly Americans" from the Philippines, a local official said today.

Carlos Sandico, a councilman of Angeles City, said the demonstration would protest the fatal shooting of a 6-year-old Filipino by a U.S. Air Force sentry inside the base Nov. 25, as well as 28 allegedly similar incidents since 1950.

President Diosadado Macapagal has ordered the Justice Department to investigate the Clark death, as well as the slaying of another Filipino in restricted waters at the U.S. naval base in Subic Bay.

Sandico said U.S. Ambassador William M. Blair Jr. was one of the "ugly Americans" who should be recalled from the Philippines.

Blair disclosed last week that two Filipinos had lobbed a World War II mortar shell into the yard of an American school near Clark Field. The shell did not explode.

In introducing important pertional protocol, the gentleman always is presented to the lady, no matter what his rank. The exception to this rule is with Royalty, to whom everyone is presented. And it must be "real royalty"—which means reigning royalty.

Tot Comes Home After Delicate Brain Surgery

By ROY A. WHITCOMG Jr.

SOUTH PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — To Mr. and Mrs. Roland C. Martin there will never be another Christmas as joyous as this one.

Today their daughter Laurie, 3, is coming home after spending five months in a Boston hospital on the brink of death.

Since July Laurie has been at the Burnham Building, Massachusetts General Hospital, where she underwent a complicated operation to remove a benign cyst from a ventricle deep in her brain.

From the day of the operation — July 21 — until Nov. 1 she was in a half life in which she could survive only through special feeding techniques but did not recognize her parents or her doctors and nurses.

Both parents spent every possible day at her bedside during those soul-wracking months.

Dr. Robert J. Ojemann, a prominent brain surgeon, performed the delicate operation to remove the cyst. Then Drs. Philip Dodge, John Benton and Andrea Nash, pediatric neurologists at Massachusetts General, kept constant vigil.

Within a week the child required another operation to inflate a lung that had collapsed. Shortly afterward a shunt operation was performed to drain excess fluid off the brain.

Through these months the most discouraging aspect was watching Laurie in her twilight zone. Her eyes were open, but there was no recognition in them. Her lips never moved.

Then on Nov. 1 — her mother remembers it was All Saints Day — Laurie looked up from her bed and said "Hi." In a few moments she talked to her parents, her doctor and nurses.

Laurie's recovery isn't complete, but from today on she'll be at home under the watchful eye of her mother, her sister Dorothy who is a second-year student in nurse's training, and a local pediatrician. Her Boston doctors feel her recovery will be faster at home.

The history of Laurie's illness goes back almost two years when her mother first noticed a tremor in her left hand. Later her knee acted as if it would bend backwards.

Neurological tests made here could find no cause for the peculiar nerve problem Laurie was experiencing.

In Boston doctors decided to perform a so-called air test, one that requires a small amount of fluid to be drained off the spine. Then air is pumped into the cavities of the brain structure. As this is done X-rays get a clearer picture of the various sections of the brain.

It was with these pictures that the benign tumor was discovered. It looked as large as a grapefruit, one doctor said, and was the largest ever found in a child of Laurie's age.

Laurie's loss of faculties gradually disappeared as time healed the wounds in her brain caused by the cyst and the operation.

And as the days of November and early December passed, Laurie began to recall little songs her mother had taught her before the operation.

She also remembered a prayer she learned in April: "Now I say me down to sleep; I pray the Lord my soul to keep . . ."

106th Birthday To Be Observed

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Maggie Rozier will celebrate her 106th birthday on Christmas Day with an open house.

Mrs. Rozier, who lives here with her daughter, Anna Sears, 72, said her recipe for a long life was, "You must have love in your heart for everybody."

Mrs. Sears is the only one of her eight children still surviving.

Born in Dublin, Ga., in 1858, Mrs. Rozier and her husband moved north in 1920. Her husband died in 1923.

Boy Makes Mistletoe Pay Off With Cash

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Bobby McEver is only 10, but he is cashing in on an amorous Christmas custom.

Bobby took his rifle and shot branches of mistletoe out of trees at the McEver place.

Then he made some signs: "Missin' Your Kissin'? Mistletoe 25 cents." "Kissin' Licenses Sold Here." He also put young friends to ringing doorbells.

At last report, the youngsters' sales were more than $40.

Air Force Will Set Merger Plan For Reserves

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force recommendations on merging the Air Reserve and the Air National Guard are due Jan. 25, it was learned today.

This is only six days before retirement of Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as Air Force chief of staff. LeMay is reputed to favor combining the 72,000-man Air Guard into the 182,000-man Air Reserve.

But there appears to be considerable high level sentiment to accomplish the merger in the other direction — to eliminate the Air Reserve and leave only the Air Guard.

This was the pattern set for the Army on Dec. 12 when Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced that the Army National Guard would increase to 550,000 men by absorbing about half of the 300,000-man organized Army Reserve. The Army Reserve will disappear, except for a reinforcement pool.

Sources said studies on unifying the Air Reserve and the Air Guard still are not finished.

The Reserve Officers Association, which is fighting obliteration of the Army Reserve and the Air Force Reserve, has contended that the administration is waiting for LeMay to retire before acting.

Informed authorities challenged this, saying that LeMay had informed top officials that it would be impossible to finish the Reserve-Guard studies by Jan. 1 and that LeMay himself held to the Jan. 25 objective date.

The sources said the studies were ordered five or six months ago and the deadline assigned at that time.

At LeMay's insistence, a board which determines Air Reserve policy decided about a year ago that the Reserve and the Air Guard should be combined and that one organization should remain. The board did not take a position on whether the Reserve or the Guard should survive.

Officials who have been working on this problem said they had been unable to detect from LeMay any leanings either way.

The Air National Guard earned considerable praise during the Berlin crisis when it sent 218 fighters and reconnaissance jets, plus their supporting elements, to France and Germany within a month of being called into federal service in October 1961.

McNamara's emphasis, so far as the Guard and Reserve are concerned, is on quick reaction.

The Air Guard and the Air Reserve are in a somewhat different position from their Army counterparts. All Air Reserve and Guard units are considered high priority outfits and are equipped and staffed accordingly. The Army Guard and Reserve have considerable numbers of men in low priority units which, under present circumstances, would not be ready for use in much less than a year after being mustered into federal service.

The entire 72,000-man Air Guard is drawing drill pay and training regularly. Only 54,000 Air Force ready reservists are in the same status. Another 128,000 are in the ready reserve but do not get drill pay.

Michigan Santa Visits Many Homes

MARSHALL, Mich. (AP) — Marshall's Santa Claus could use that magical sleigh and reindeer team that helps the North Pole's Santa Travel around the world on Christmas Eve.

But Marshall's Santa, Ken Burden, does right well anyway in covering a lot of territory to bring Christmas joy to both youngsters and old folks.

He already has visited 161 parties, 163 private homes, 22 nursing homes and eight hospitals this season.

That's not counting the visits he'll make today — Christmas Eve.

Burden isn't a paid Santa Claus, although donations help him.

Every place he goes, "Everybody gets something — candy, pencils, toys. I don't miss anything."

Without reindeer, Burden puts plenty of mileage on his car. This year, he said, the Santa Claus mileage will reach 1,500.

"Making other people and kids happy, and having fun doing it — that's my Christmas," he explains.

Stockholders of both companies will be advised of the details of this transaction in the near future.

ly, innumerable toasts to peace were drunk and Soviet leaders and foreigners slapped each other on the back and rubbed shoulders.

Western observers said the cancellation of the big party reflected a degree of official austerity which has descended on the Soviet Capital since Khrushchev was ousted from power Oct. 14.

It was not known if the Kremlin plans to reinstate the small, less ostentatious New Year's parties which Stalin used to hold for small groups.

At last year's Kremlin New Year's Eve party, former Premier Nikolai Bulganin appeared in public for the first time since 1961 and clinked glasses with Khrushchev.

Since Khrushchev was dethroned, Soviet leaders have had less contact with foreigners, receptions generally have been of more modest proportions, ad lib statements have been eliminated from speeches.

Off-the-cuff comments had been a favorite custom of Khrushchev.

The personal style of Khrushchev leadership is gone from Moscow life.

His heirs, Premier Alexie Kasygin and party leaders Leonid Berzhnev, say they want it to stay that way.

Trial for Peronist Leader Is Planned

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Peronist textile leader Andres Framini was released in $300 bail today to stand trial on charges of strike violence.

Framini, a leading figure in the movement under which ousted dictator Juan D. Peron was to re-enter the country, had been jailed since his arrival here a week ago.

Framini told newsmen that Peron's decision to return to Argentina was "irrevocable." Peron was halted en route earlier this month. Brazilian authorities stopped him at Rio de Janeiro and forced him to return to his exile in Spain aboard the same airliner in which he arrived.

NO SANTA, HE

SINGAPORE (UPI)—A stick-up man stole a $3,000 Christmas payroll Thursday from a British news agency employe whose taxi was caught in a traffic jam.

The thief opened the door of the taxi and forced agency supervisor V. Subramanian at gunpoint to hand over a brief case containing the money which Subramanian had just drawn from the bank. The gunman and an accomplice made their escape on a waiting motor scooter.

Preston Pleads Innocent to Murder Charge

ly normal procedure when a law officer kills someone during the course of his duty."

Ratner went on to say the defendant will have a trial by jury and that the jury at the request of counsel Gordon Cooper who is representing Preston will be instructed to bring in a judgment of acquittal.

According to a sheriff's report Preston was checking out Orin at approximately 3 o'clock Wednesday morning as the officer had observed him acting suspiciously near the Gulf filling station at Prairie Rd. and Platte Ave.

Immediately he approached Orin he was knocked to the ground with a heavy pair of pliers. Preston fired two warning shots into the ground but Orin continued to beat him and finally the officer fired at close range. Orin lived for some hours but died Thursday morning around 8 in St. Francis Hospital.

Immediately after Preston pleaded innocent he told the Gazette Telegraph that Orin had attacked him with a pair of pliers approximately 18 inches long. Preston has only one arm. He had a deep gash on the side of his head which was covered with surgical tape. He looked tired and haggard and said he had not been in bed since noon Wednesday when he got up. He went on duty at 6 that night.

Preston said that Orin was beating him brutally and showed no signs of giving up. It is very possible he could have been killed and that only the fatal two shots, Orin had a bullet wound below the right breast and another on the lower right side, saved the officer's life.

According to the Police Department the dead man had a criminal record two pages long, and was only paroled out of California in June this year for burglary. Most of the convictions were burglary and car theft. There was at least one case of aggravated robbery against him but this charge was dismissed.

Woman Robs Bank of $1,000 But Drops It window, and handed a note to the teller.

The note said (sic) "This is a time bomb do as I told and no one will get hurt that means you to just put money in quietly," according to police. Mrs. Boucher took a stack of five dollar bills and put it in the robber's purse, and simultaneously pressed the alarm button.

As the woman began to leave the bank, the teller followed her and said "She has my money." At this time Charles Teghtmeyer, 618 N. Sheridan St., who was standing in the lobby of the bank, saw the woman drop a brown package and told her she dropped it. She ignored him and continued out the door, so he picked up the package and began following her. Teghtmeyer said that as he was walking out the door he heard the teller say that the woman had her money.

Teghtmeyer caught up to the woman in the doorway of a nearby department store, took the purse from her and told her to wait there and he would bring the purse back to her after he took the money back, according to the report. He then released the woman and went back to the bank with the $1,000.

The bank robber was described by both Teghtmeyer and the teller as being about five feet two inches tall, stocky, and wearing a gray and black tweed overcoat. She had a white bandana over her hair, was wearing dark rim glasses, had dark hair, was between 55 and 60 years old, according to the report.

Jaycees Vote To Terminate A Membership

In a move apparently designed to alleviate friction within their organization, the Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce last night voted to terminate the membership of David H. Hammond, a past parlimentarian of the group and a member for approximately one and a half years.

The move, growing out of a dispute centering around a letter sent to members of the organization last July by Hammond, was precipitated when a letter was sent to Hammond by the Board of Directors advising him that he was being placed under suspension "for cause," and that he would have 10 days in which to present to the Board any reasons he had to show the Board that his membership should not be terminated.

The Board explained in the letter to Hammond that "cause' included the letter Hammond sent, in which it was alleged that the letter damaged the public image of the organization by slandering the membership; that Hammond's presence created "disharmony," in the organization; and that his presence was a detriment to "membership morale," because he "had continually resigned while working on committees."

Hammond, in a one-hour statement to the Board, said that, among other things, he had "participated in the Chuck Wagon project every night from July 1 until the end of the season, except for six nights when I was attending school for business reasons." He continued, "I have attended all of each membership meeting from September through February, except for the Annual Meeting of the Chapter. . .and I have never missed my scheduled duties in regard to the Sheriff's Posse."

Paradoxically, Hammond also said the Jaycee's "are the best organization in the United States for young men to join. . .properly run, it is an organization anyone would be proud to join."

Hammond said "the only thing I have learned from this organization is to be sure and read the by-laws of any other organization I may want to join in the future." He continued that "if this chapter would stick to the by-laws and make every effort to carry on their activities in the best interest of the membership, than I would have no complaints, and would be very happy to be a member." This was in response to a question from Fred Von Pingle, board member, in which he asked, "do you still want to be a Jaycee?"

Hammond maintained throughout the session that he "was only attending the session to make a point, and if you (the Board) feel you have a justifiable reason to suspend me, I feel it is your duty to do so."

At the end of the session, when Hammond was asked by Chuck Davis, board member, "Do you honestly feel that the situation has been aired sufficiently?" he responded, "I have nothing further to add."

The Board then went into closed session for purposes of voting on the "cause," which requires a two - thirds majority vote by the Board, and voted to terminate the membership.

500 Feared Drowned in Tidal Wave

MADRAS, India (UPI) — Cyclone-spawned tidal waves battered the island of Rameshwaram on the southeastern coast of India Tuesday, causing heavy casualties and extensive property damages, according to reports reaching here Thursday.

Unofficial reports said between 200 to 500 persons were feared to have died and hundreds more were injured when the giant seas swept over the island, site of the main terminus for ferry service between India and nearby Ceylon.

At least 300 persons were reported killed in Ceylon's northern and eastern provinces by a cyclone Tuesday, according to reports from Colombo. The reports said it was the worst cyclone disaster in Ceylon's history. Thousands of persons were reported homeless. The government ordered round-the-clock rescue and relief operations by the air force and Navy."

Rameshwaram is about 450 miles south of Madras and is the site of a well-known Hindu shrine.

Most of the victims were trapped in a customs shed at Dhanushkodi, according to the report.

Protest About Downing Plane Sent to Cairo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today protested in Cairo the shooting down of an unarmed American private plane last Saturday.

The protest was filed by U.S. Ambassodor Lucius Battle with the Egyptian foreign minister, official said.

The United Arab Republic government promptly rejected the protest.

The plane, owned by the Mecom Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., was on a routine flight from Amman, Jordan, to Benghazi, Libya. United Arab Republic authorities claimed that no flight plan was filed with them and that the pilot ignored orders to land.

The pilot, Hoyt Williams of Mulberry, Tex., and his Swedish copilot, Kjell Grupp, were killed when U.A.R. jet fighters shot down the plane near Alexandria.

Civil air transport officials in Jordan, where the plane took off, confirmed that a flight plan had been filed in the usual way with Cairo approximately an hour before the flight. Accordingly, officials said, the Egyptian claim that they did not know about the intentions of an unidentified airplane was incorrect.

East Germany Will Get U.S. Chemical Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has okayed export of a $13-million synthetic fiber process to Communist East Germany, but this marks no change in U.S. policy, a spokesman said today.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey confirmed the action after reports were published of West German criticism of the deal, involving export of know-how and equipment for a plant in the Red zone.

The transaction, if completed, would be the biggest U.S. sale of its kind to East Germany. U.S.-East German trade totaled less than $10 million last year, and most of that was in U.S. surplus food sales.

McCloskey said that the proposed sale is entirely commercial, involves no U.S. government guarantee or credits and does not violate the strategic goods embargo.

served my time on this kind of a bill."

The 1964 bill was amended to include an unrelated rider on state reapportionment, which led to a prolonged battle.

Mansfield echoed Fulbright's demand for "a separation of military and economic aid," but Morgan told a reporter: "That procedure would result in Congress losing control of the program, and would bring about log rolling among supporters of the various programs involved."

"The military would run rampant," Morgan said, "and the economic phases of the program would suffer and be in real difficulty in the House. By keeping it al in one bill, you can better control the whole program."

The House repeatedly has rejected suggestions that the aid program be handled in a series of bills. The one-package approach has been insisted on, not only by the Foreign Affairs Committee, which determines the scope of the program, but by the Appropriations Committee, which handles the actual financing.

day, a group of generals abolished a legislative body which the United States had promoted as a way to a more practical political structure behind military offensives against the Viet Cong.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the armed services, has put the United States on the spot by insisting in effect that the military be in supreme command.

One development in this stalemate was the disclosure that the Vietnamese high command has asked the U.S. forces to keep American field advisers from discussing politics with Vietnamese officers.

There were estimates that the terrorist bomb set off at the billet may have been as a big as a 500-pounder. Someone planted it on or near the ground floor — perhaps in the generator room, perhaps in a parked car.

The Viet Cong had threatened fresh outbreaks of terrorism against Americans during the Christmas season, and security forces had been told to be watchful.

The demolished radio station operated on the ground floor next to the generator room. The station provided entertainment, news and general information for American servicemen throughout South Viet Nam.

The names of those killed were not announced pending notification of their families.

Maj. Jack G. Pruett of Keene, N.H., deputy U.S. provost marshal, said: "I was just driving up to the compound gate in my car when the thing went off. There was a blast and a fireball, with things flying everywhere."

There was extensive damage to many neighboring buildings, including the Continental Hotel alongside.

Windows were broken in the Caravelle Hotel, several hundred feet away across a mall, where several persons of Bob Hope's 60-member Christmas entertainment team were reported staying. No casualties were announced at that hotel, however. Several blocks away, glass was shattered at the U.S. Information Agency building.

Weeping on the sidewalk were children gashed by flying fragments. Traffic jams slowed ambulances and some of the wounded turned to taxicabs to get to hospitals.

The American civilian who was killed and two of the wounded men were civilians who lived in the quarters. Others wounded included 29 U.S. Army officers, 11 of the Air Force, 13 Navy men and two Marines.

Security forces had trouble in several areas controlling panicky crowds as rumors swept the city that the explosion was but the start of a Christmas terrorist offensive.

One rumor, quickly refuted, was that another U.S. servicemen's hotel had also been bombed.

Contributing to the unrest was an unconfirmed story that three battalions of Viet Cong troops were grouped near the outskirts with the object of shelling or otherwise striking at Saigon.

Terrorism is a hallmark of Viet Cong activity in cities, just as ambushes are the chief stock in trade of the Red guerrillas in the country. Americans have been the targets of a dozen Saigon incidents in the past year.

A U.S. athletic field bleachers at Saigon airport was bombed during a baseball game Feb. 9. Two U.S. soldiers were killed and 23 other Americans were wounded. Red gunmen killed three Americans with pistol fire and explosive in a Saigon movie Feb. 16. A massive explosion damaged the U.S. aircraft ferry Card here May 1 and a sightseeing crowd which gathered there the next day was bombed. That bombing injured eight Americans, including five officers.

The Brink had been known as one of the most heavily guarded buildings in Saigon.

It is set back on all sides about 50 feet and surrounded by a concrete parking lot. Encircling the whole is a concrete wall about 15 feet high.

Vietnamese city policemen have guarded the gate at all times. Searchlights have kept the sidewalk outside brilliantly lighted.

U.N. Struggles With Crisis Over Finances

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. delegates struggled today with a Christmas Eve crisis caused by Soviet rejection of a plan accepted by the United States to break a Soviet-U.S. deadlock over peacekeeping assessments and voting rights.

The delegates were expected to negotiate in an attempt to bypass the big-power dispute over whether the Soviet Union should lose its General Assembly vote for refusing to pay assembly assessments to finance the peacekeeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The assembly was recessed for Christmas until Tuesday. Its president, Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, canceled meetings for Wednesday afternoon and this morning because he failed to get a Soviet-U.S. agreement on the latest draft of a resolution he was promoting to avoid a showdown on the financial issue.

Love Sisters At Least Will Be Together

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — At least the Love sisters will be together for Christmas.

Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr. sentenced Mamie Love, 18; her 19-year-old sister, Betty Jo, and 20-year-old Lola to 30-day terms in Milwaukee County Jail on disorderly conduct charges.

Police said the girls were taken into custody by a store officer who said he caught them shoplifting $64 worth of merchandise.

property was sure to be far in excess of that.

At the state capital of Salem, where 1,000 persons were removed from the suburban Keizer area early Thursday morning, the Willamette River went 10 feet above flood level. It then began a slow decline.

Twenty-five miles farther south, 400 persons were evacuated by National Guard and Air Force personnel from Albany, Ore.

The isolated Oregon community of Rufus was supplied with emergency food by barge. Streets were covered with boulder-strewn mud washed down from a usually dry canyon.

Store roofs were under water a Reedsport.

A fleet of busses got through 115 miles from Portland to Roosevelt, Wash., to rescue more than 300 persons stranded on two trains since Tuesday.

The westbound Spokane, Portland & Seattle line trains were stalled by washouts on both sides of the hamlet. An Air Force Flying Boxcar parachuted food to the hungry passengers before the busses arrived.

"One baby about 6 weeks old had a high temperature, but we have a registered nurse in town and she took care of it. No one went hungry — I gave them just about everything I had in the store," said Bill Clark, owner of Roosevelt's only market.

The same stoical attitude of no complaint typified the homeless in Northern California.

In the rough, scantily populated region of lumbering and resort villages, high water is nothing really new, although the current flood was the worst by far since 1955.

Dwight O'Dell, president of the Redwood Empire Association, called the flood devastation "the worst disaster in man's memory in the Redwood Empire."

After flying low level over the disaster area in clearing visibility, he expressed fear of a higher death count.

"Everywhere," he said, "we could see islands of people stranded, some with autos, waving at us."

Lumber villages such as Weott, Myers Flat, South Fork, Holmes and Pepperwood, were described as "nothing but kindling."

Livestock loss appeared to be heavy. Bodies of cattle were visible piled against fences.

The town of Klamath, a fishing resort of 250 at the mouth of the Klamath River, was reported "obliterated." Its bridge was ripped apart.

Freeway routes and scores of road bridges elsewhere in the redwood country were closed or wrecked.

The rampaging Eel, Klamath, Smith and Mad rivers and Redwood Creek were receding slowly.

Farther south in California, the Russian River resort town of Guerneville was digging out of the mud and trying to get back into operation as the river ebbed. All roads remained closed.

Norman Young was busy cleaning his bakery and preparing to light the ovens.

"We're starting off with bread," explained his wife. "That's what everybody wants."

Yuba City, 11,000-population town of the Feather and Yuba rivers at the southern edge of the flood zone, breathed a massive sigh of relief.

It was flooded out in 1955 with loss of 38 lives and multimillion-dollar damage. This time the river crested at 76.42 feet. This was .58 of a foot below the 77-foot deadline that the Yuba County supervisors had set as the signal to abandon the entire city. A few hundred residents moved out on their own.

Idaho and Nevada, across mountain ranges from the sweep of the coastal storms, suffered damage and distress but far less so than the Pacific tier of states.

There was minor flooding along Reno's riverside drive in the downtown area near the famed gambling clubs.

In Idaho, below-freezing night temperatures were a boon. A bulldozer operator was killed in clearing a slide near Grangeville when his machine was swept into the Lochsa River.

A power breakdown marooned two men in a lead and zinc mine at the Sunshine Mining Co., near Kellogg, Idaho, but they were reported safe.

Several score Idaho motorists were airlifted to safety after snow and mud slides trapped them in a canyon.

U.S. Denounces Africans for Congo Blasts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Th United States today accused African countries of attempting to use the United Nations to justify an attack on the legitimate government of the Congo, one of the U.N.'s members.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, replying to two weeks of bitter and outspoken accusations from the Africans in the Security Council questioned the motives of the accusers.

"We have heard some strange doctrines here," Stevenson said, "provoked, I hope, more by emotion than by sober thought. We have heard rebellion equated with legitimate government. This must be the first attempt to use the United Nations to validate armed attack against a member state . . ."

Stevenson spoke after Leopoldville Ambassador Theodore Idzumbuir raised the boastful admission of President Gamal Abdel Nasser that the United Arab Republic has supplied Communist - backed Congolese rebels and will continue to do so.

The United Nations financial showdown was put off for another few days but the Congo crisis held the council in session postponing the Christmas recess.

Van Kistler To Climb With AdAmAn

Van Kistler, a member of Ship 63, will represent the Pikes Peak New Years Eve when the AdAmAn Club will again shoot off the fireworks to bring in the New Year.

Kistler is an Eagle Scout and was selected by a committee from the AdAmAn Club from eight finalists.

Kistler will be the 8th Explorer to make the climb. An Explorer has made the climb since 1959, when two Explorers were selected to shoot off fireworks with the AdAmAn Club to start the 50th year of Scouting in America.

This program has become an important part of the Explorer Activities and each year the competition is keen between the Explorers who wish to receive the honor of making the climb.

Solon Promises Benefits for War Veterans

tion to provide veterans of the cold war with a bill of rights."

Yarborough submitted such a bill in each Congress since 1959. He has always succeeded in getting it reported favorably from his committee, but only once has it actually passed the Senate. In that year it failed in the House.

There are about three million veterans of the cold war years eligible for benefits under the proposed legislation. Yarborough estimated that eventually there will be as many as five milion potential beneficiaries.

The senator had no estimate as to how many of these would claim benefits. But he noted that of the 14 million veterans of World War II 7.8 million claimed benefits under the original GI bill.

Yarborough's new bill is not quite so inclusive as the Second World War Bill. It does not contain, for example, authority for the Veterans Administration (VA) to make or guarantee business loans for farmers.

The original bill is credited with giving college degrees to millions who otherwise would not have been able to earn them. Veterans of the Korean conflict added thousands more to those receiving higher formal education.

The Yarborough measure would follow the format of the Korean bill's education sections. It would provide a monthly stipend for veterans, who would then pay their own tuition and living expenses. Under the World War II bill, the college or university received payment for tuition and fees from the government, and the veteran received a smaller living allowance.

U.S. Auto Industry Ran Into Tough Going

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. auto industry ran into rough going in 1964 because of strikes and parts shortages, but still finished the year with near-record production and sales figures.

Principl roadblocks in the industry's unsuccessful drive for an eight-million-unit production year were strikes at General Motors and Ford Motor Co.

General Motors was hit by a month long nationwide strike, followed by a series of local plant strikes. Ford had similar local strikes. The auto industry's labor picture was unsettled from Sept. 25, when the GM national strike was called, until Nov. 23 when the national Ford contract was signed.

Industry observers figured that U.S. calendar 1964 car production would wind up with about 7.7 million cars when the final figure was in. That figure, if attained, would make it the second best year in U.S. automotive history, second only to the 7,942,215 cars built in 1955. In 1963 the figure was 7,644,359.

The interruptions in auto production came just about the time the industry was getting into full production of its 1965 models.

Chrysler Corp., first of the automakers to reach agreement with the United Auto Workers on a three-year contract running to September 1967, escaped with little labor trouble this year but was plagued by some parts shortages, particularly seat springs, in its early week of 1965 car output.

In general, automotive circles described their 1965 line as "the year of the stylist." This was because in the minds of the motoring public, engineering changes were subordinated to changes in the over-all appearance of the cars.

Buyers were offered a choice of 343 new models by U.S. auto makers. General Motors cars generally featured softer, curving lines and a racy look; Ford featured sharp, crisp lines; Chrysler and American Motors offered a bit more sweep and roundness, augmenting the cars' crisp lines.

Most models were a bit longer than their 1964 counterparts. The average wheelbase for 1965 was 121 inches and the average length 211 inches. In 1964, the average car had 0.56 inches less wheelbase and 1.9 inches less over-all length.

Basic car prices remained unchanged for the fifth straight calendar year, although there were adjustments in cost of some optional equipment.

In general, U.S. auto makers rang up healthy profits. The big three producers at the three quarter mark — before strikes had much effect — all reported highest earnings for any nine months in their history.

Dominick Opposes Third Party Planning

DENVER (AP) — Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., shook his head at any talk of a possible third party being formed by conservative elements in the Republican Party.

"I think it would be very bad," he said in an interview. "The two-party system has always worked in the past and I think it always will in the future."

Dominick declined any comment as to whether Dean Burch should surrender his position as GOP national chairman. "There's enough being said on that by everybody," he said.

The senator also said he is staying out, "as much as I can," of any possible battle in March over the Colorado chairmanship, held by Paul W. Wolf.

More Rapid Turnover Of Money Is Reported

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Money is flowing in and out of the nation's banks at a faster clip than a year ago — and probably through your fingers, too. This rapid turnover is one of the reasons the available money supply is still increasing.

This is helping make possible the stabilizing of long-term interest rates and holding short-term rates at a level designed to protect the dollar in international dealings.

This is the period of the year when the most strain is placed on the money supply, when it is most in demand, both as checks and as paper currency and coins. It is the season for high credit demands, too, as business finances its holiday trade. Apparently the money supply is still fairly easy.

After Christmas the money will flow back into the banks at a fast rate as business and consumer bills are paid. Money should ease still further. It should be a month or more before any further strain could develop. And this is all to the good as far as the monetary authorities are concerned, while they strive to hold long-term rates down and short-term rates fairly high.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reports today that in November the demand deposit turnover, or checking account usage, in 337 U.S. localities outside the major money centers was 8½ per cent greater than a year ago.

The gain is impressive in terms of dollars changing hands. Check transactions in November were $15.4 billion higher in the 337 localities in November than a year ago.

The speed with which money changes hands is only one of the ways that the effective money supply has been increasing.

The Federal Reserve itself helps at this season of the year by seeing that the member banks have increased amounts of lendable funds for the financing of the business transactions that precede the holiday spending rush. The Fed can increase these reserves by buying up U.S. government securities. The cash it pays is deposited in the banks and becomes the basis for loans.

In January, the Fed normally dries up some of the surplus return flow of money to the banks as loans and bills are paid. It can do this by selling securities, and stashing away the cash it receives.

This year the process has extra interest because of the moves the United States has been taking to bolster the British pound and at the same time keep the dollar sound. One move was to raise the short-term interest rates here to keep dollars at home and out of European money centers.

At the same time, U.S. monetary authorities have succeeded in holding long-term rates steady, so as not to discourage further economic growth. It's a neat trick, and the increased turnover in checking accounts is helping.

Deaths

THOMASTON, Ga. (AP) — J. B. Hardy, 82, editor of the Thomaston Times and copublisher of the Thomaston Free-Press and Times, died Wednesday. Hardy also was president of the Thomaston Broadcasting Co. and the Thomaston Federal Savings and Loan Association.

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. H. Horton Sheldon, 71, educator and former science editor of the New York Herald Tribune, died Wednesday. Sheldon, who had been undergoing treatment for a heart condition, was chairman of the physics department at Roosevelt University. Sheldon, who also had taught at the universities of Chicago, Michigan and Miami and New York University, was born in Brockville, Ont.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Price Jones, 87, well known professional fund raiser and a former newspaperman, died Wednesday. He retired several years ago as chairman of the board and treasurer of the John Price Jones Corp. of New York. Jones had worked for newspapers in Washington and New York City. He was born in Latrobe, Pa.

BOUND BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Kenneth Perry, 65, prominent in New Jersey Republican politics for many years, died Wednesday in his winter home at Scottsdale, Ariz., after a short illness. Perry was special counsel to the Johnson & Johnsn Medical Products Co. New Brunswick, N.J. He was born in Piscataway Township, N.J.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lillian Spafford, 67, socially prominent in New York and widow of a former national commander of the American Legion, died Wednesday. Mrs. Spafford was cochairman of the sponsoring committee of the forthcoming International Debutante's Ball. Her late husband, Edward Elwell Spafford died in 1941.

Outdoor Recreation Is Urged by Eccles

DENVER (AP) — Richard T. Eckles, state coordinator for natural resources, said today "it's ridiculous" that Colorado should be lagging behind other states in providing outdoor recreation facilities.

"Every area we have now is spilling over during the tourist season," he said. "The people just don't have any place to go anymore."

Eckles said Colorado residents "have the greatest piece of real estate but have done less to make it attractive than most other states."

Some help may be on the way, he said, in a program administered by the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. This is designed to help states to acquire and develop lands with high recreation potentialities before these are put to other uses.

The fourth annual Governor's Conference on Parks and Outdoor Recreation will be held here Jan. 28-29.

LOVE VACATIONS

BRECKENRIDGE (UPI) — Colorado Gov. John Love and his family arrived in Breckenridge Wednesday to begin a Christmas skiing vacation. The governor said he intended to stay in the ski resort area until after New Year's Day, but might travel to Denver once or twice to work on matters which will go before the 1965 Colorado Legislature. The Legislature convenes Jan. 6.

Billy Observes Christmas on Mountain Top

By MARGARET WILSON

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Stockings hung from the mantel, gifts beneath a gaily decorated tree, oysters for breakfast, but above all an emphasis on the birth of Jesus Christ.

This will be Christmas in the mountaintop home of evangelist Billy Graham.

The highlight of the family's observance Friday will be the traditional biblical reading by the head of the household.

The five Graham children know that the festivities associated with Christmas are only symbolic of the world's joy at the birth of Christ.

Like many parents, the evangelist and his wife sometimes have found it difficult to keep the commercialization of Christmas in its place and not let the children forget "whose birthday it is."

"Some things are make believe and fun — like hanging your stocking and fairy tales," Mrs. Graham explained. "They are important to the celebration of Christmas.

"But some things too are absolutely real — like the Bible," she continued. "The children know the difference."

Christmas Day in the Graham home begins with a call to an oyster stew breakfast — a once-a-year tradition carried over from Mrs. Graham's childhood. She said she didn't koow the origin of the tradition and confessed she really doesn't like oysters.

The opening of gifts must wait until after breakfast.

Once every gift is opened, the children find an overstuffed chair or couch or settle down on the living room floor to heart the story of the first Christmas.

With Christmas music playing in the background and a fire snapping in the large fireplace, their evangelist-father begins:

"And it came to pass in those days that there came a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed . . . and Joseph went up . . ."

On the nights before Christmas the Graham children hear readings from the Old Testament on the sin of man. Their father explains that without sin there would have been no need for a Savior.

The big mountain top home of the Graham family, set in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Asheville, will be filled again this year with cousins, grandparents and house guests. Mrs. Graham expects 20 for Christmas dinner.

Missing this Christmas will be Virginia Graham Tchividjian, 19, the Grahams' eldest daughter, who is spending the holidays in Israel with her Swiss husband, their 10-month-old son and her husband's parents.

Home for Christmas from boarding school in Florida is Ruth (Bunny) Graham, 14. Completing the family circle with their parents are Ann Graham, 17, a high school senior, Franklin, 12, and Ned, 7.

Approximately 16 million school children in 68,000 schools in the United States receive low-cost noon meals as part of the national school lunch program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Education Secretary Is Urged by Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. D-N.Y., wants a secretary of education added to the cabinet and says "if we don't get federal aid to education in this Congress, we might as well forget it for another generation."

He also told a news conference Wednesday there are too few Negro policy-makers in government, but he thinks the number will increase in President Johnson's administration.

Powell said the program which President Johnson calls a "war on poverty" — isn't moving anywhere. Planning committees, he said, do not include enough poor people and the Washington office of economic opportunity does not have enough Negroes in policy-making positions.

The statement was dispused by Holmes Brown, assistant director, who said the office has 89 Negro employes including 18 being paid $10,000 or more annually.

Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., has compiled information on nearly 2,000 public opinion polls. This is believed to be the largest collection of survey data in the world.

Childless Couple Adopt Seven Orphan Children

EL TORO MARINE AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — Last year Marine Maj. Edward E. Backus and his wife Gertrude had no children.

This Christmas they've put up nine stockings — seven of them for their two boys and five girls.

"I've been kind of frantic getting ready for Christmas this year," said Mrs. Backus. "It's a lot different than last year, when there were only Ed and me."

Years ago Paul and Dolores Dorey, close friends of the childless Backuses, asked them to adopt their children if anything happened to them.

Last Jan. 19, in a head-on collision in Pittsford, Vt., the Doreys died. So did a daughter, Jana, 4.

The Backuses had themselves appointed the childrens' guardians, and petitions for legal adoption of the big brood are pending in a Vermont court.

The Doreys asked that the children be reared as Catholics. The non-Catholic Backuses are doing it.

Maj. Backus will take the older children — Paul, 16, Mary, 13, and Dennis, 12 — to midnight Mass tonight at the Catholic chapel at this big Marine base, 50 miles southeast of Los Angeles, where Backus is a communications officer.

Mrs. Backus will take Cheryl, 11; Elise, 10; Lynette, 6, and Trudi, 2 who is named for Mrs Backus — to Christmas Mass.

They have a Christmas tree and the stockings and lots of presents.

The Backuses have adjusted to the huge family. From the first, Mrs. Backus said, cooking was no problem. But ironing was. "It became a mountain to scale almost daily," she said.

"It took me a little while to realize that the children are capable of handling such chores."

"Things are settling down now," said her husky husband, "and I can say we're one big happy family." It includes a dog, two huge Siamese cats and a squirrel.

Nowadays "I even get a little nervous when everything is quiet," Mrs. Backus said.

Backus was stationed at Burlingame, Vt. in 1958, where they met the Doreys. He was transferred to California in 1960, where the Dorey family visited them on their vacation next year.

On the trip the Doreys witnessed a serious automobile accident. That gave them the idea for the adoption pact.

Sukarno Says He Likes U.S., But Not Policy

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno said today he loves the American people but sometimes he dislikes U.S. policy.

Sukarno s remarks were in a 30-minute speech to a luncheon sponsored by the American Men's Association of Jakarta in cooperation with the American Women's Association. Sukarno was the honor guest.

Sukarno, looking healthy and relaxed, had a round of dances with Mrs. Howard P. Jones, the wife of the American ambassador.

Introducing Sukarno, Jones said it was a privilege to have the Indonesian president as a guest of honor.

Speaking in English, Sukarno said: "I like the American people and some of my best friends are Americans."

"Sometimes I do not like American policy especially in the East and I have to oppose this policy because it affects Indonesia," he added.

This does not mean that "I am not working very hard for the establishment of good and friendly relations with the United States because international relationship is a matter of human relationship," Sukarno said.

Sukarno asserted that sometimes American leaders do not understand 20th century phenomena which he said includes the emergency of new and independent states in Asia and Africa.

Early this month, relations between the United States and Indonesia hit low when Communist-led Indonesian mobs ransacked two United States Information Agency libraries in Jakarta and in the East Java city of Surabaja.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman also confirmed that a Communist-led student group last Friday halted the screening of the John F. Kennedy film "Years of Lighting, Day of Drums" which was being shown at the Santa Maria School at Jakarta. The Kennedy film was produced by the American government.

The official news agency Antara said that the leader of the student group told 300 attending the Kennedy film that they should realize that the screening of American films "is very dangerous to the Indonesian revolution."

Old Executives Find Challenge In New Ideas

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether it is a fire truck or an office desk, a piece of farm equipment or a trailer, said J. Russell Duncan, the know-how in the making of it goes beyond mere fabricating skill.

Duncan is chairman of the board of Sterling Precision Corp., manufacturer of a wide range of automotive and mobile equipment, machinery and office furniture. He came to his job from Minneapolis-Moline, farm equipment maker which faced the same rough prospects when he joined it as did Sterling when he assumed management in early 1962.

Minneapolis-Moline, now a part of White Motors, Inc., got back on its feet under Duncan's management; the balance sheet at Sterling has shown a turnaround from losses in the millions in 1962 to an emergence into black ink last year and this.

In that time, there have been acquisitions, but careful ones; and there has been reorganization within.

"We don't just bring in executives wholesale," said Duncan in a recent interview. "In working at Sterling, we have been able to keep many of the older executives — who found a challenge in new ideas."

Actually, the new ideas were tried and true business practices, he continued. Controls put on the budgets of each department; new management teams were named in each division, including the American La France operation which makes fire trucks and fire extinguishers, Yawman & Erbe, maker of office furniture and Cesco, office systems and supplies.

Operations which could not show "in the black" were cut away, cash was raised by the sale of unrelated investments.

CBS Television Network comedy star Joey Bishop was the duly crowned welterweight champion of the U.S. Eighth Army Command in World War Two.

An Old-Fashioned Christmas in THE YOUTH'S COMPANION

Copyright, 1897, by Perry Mason & Company.

By BOB COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

It was December 1897. The United States had just concluded a treaty with Russia, the situation in Cuba was worsening, a new political party had been formed and millions of young Americans had received their Christmas issue of "The Youth's Companion."

The magazine, not world or domestic affairs, attracted the attention of young people (and their parents) that December of 1897. It wasn't really Christmas those days until they had read the "Companion's" Christmas issue.

Published in Boston for a century by Perry Mason and Company (no relation to Erle Stanley Gardner's attorney), the "Companion" ceased publication in 1927. Today's grandfathers might sometimes wonder how their offspring were reared without it, for it was an indispensable item in every child's library.

The Christmas issue in 1897, for example, was a potpourri of interesting things. No splashy, four-color magazine, the "Companion" featured columns and columns of articles and stories set in small type, cute poems and fantastic advertisements.

Look through the magazine for that Christmas to see what most young people read when the world was large and television, airplanes and rockets to the moon weren't even dreams.

There was an illustrated story called "Mrs. Mulcrary's Christmas Pig," by Winthrop Packard. And a short poem by Robert Louis Stevenson ("The world is so full of a number of things-I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings").

A gentleman (or lady) with the initials "E.H.T." contributed this bit of yuletide poetry:

Secrets, secrets everywhere,
Swarms of secrets in the air!
Something's hid from papa's eyes,
May and Slyboots look so wise,
Even baby's lips are close,
Folded like a crimson rose;
Wee, sweet secrets everywhere,
I can feel them in the air!

Thirty-seven-year-old Hamlin Garland, who was to receive the Pulitzer Prize in 1922 for "A Daughter of the Middle Border," gave "Companion" readers a touching story about an Indian woman called "The Stony Knoll."

"The Youth's Companion" also commented on the times:

"Round the world in 33 days, at a cost of $282 for the ticket, or $500 for all expenses! This is what is promised when the Siberian railway shall be completed, as it is likely to be before the century closes.

"Yes, and there will be people silly enough to take the trip — just to say that they have done it in so short a time. Half the time will be spent in nocturnal whirlings through space; during the other half they may catch glimpses of the lands and waters over which they pass. Round the world, indeed! But how much will they know about it?"

What would "Companion" editors say about today's travelers, who can fly around the globe in not much more than 33 hours?

When readers finished with the 10 or more 12-by-16-inch pages of text, they turned to the advertisement — which were really treats.

The Elastic Tip Co. of Boston offered a "harmless rubber-tipped arrow game" for a dollar ("with big discounts to agents", Regal shoes ("in English winter russet") sold for $3.-50 and a 'college education" could be obtained for 50 cents a week.

"Mothers," another ad exclaimed, "you know how mean it feels to have your wrapper sleeve creep up! It feels just as mean to Baby!" This was the sales pitch for "Little Princess Baby Wrappers."

Some of the claims wert outrageous. "Hyomei, a Cure For All Diseases of the Air-Passages and Lungs ($1)". . . Common Sense Ear Drums, relieves conditions of deafness". . . . . "Rising Sun Stove Polish does not injure the hands."

And young readers could order chainless bicycles, wooden hens, corn shellers, Edison talking machines, meat choppers, bonbons, Nubian fast black linings, pen points and arctic socks.

Lhough the ads in the "Companion's" Christmas issue were odd, the writing style flamboyant, the poetry maudlin, the illustrations corny — according to contemporary standards — the joy and happiness of a Christmas season which knows no year burst from every dull, gray page.

Millions of Americans in 1897 could savor and agree with the homely holiday sentiments expressed in this honorable relic of turn-of-the-century America. "The Youth's Companion" is gone. But its special celebration of the Christmas season remains, at least, in the American legend.

THE OLD DAYS: The kids just treasured these advertisements in the "Companion."

Trains, Planes and Buses Crowded With Travelers

Throngs of travelers, both military and civilian, have boarded planes, trains and busses in the past 10 days and headed for destinations to the north, east, south and west of Colorado Springs.

Although many commercial carriers did not have estimates on numbers of travellers, it was determined that many modes of transportation had topped last year's holiday totals.

Both Continental Trailways and Greyhound bus authorities said that they had served less military passengers this year than last. This was due mostly to a decrease in airline round-trip fares for military personnel travelling in uniform.

With the reduction in fares, airlines reported heavy travel on all their flights.

Railroads have carried more passengers, locally, during the current holiday season than they have in the past few years. Actual numbers of passengers could not be tallied at this time, but officials at the Denver and Rio Grande Station reported that the Rio Grande-Missouri Pacific "Eagle," which runs to St. Louis, was carrying many more passengers than is usual at this time of year.

Travel by rail to the west coast was slowed, however, due to the serious flood situations there.

Central Airlines has been running its usual five flights per-day from Peterson Field. Station Manager Harold Hopkins said that Central, "has been able to get almost everyone on a flight." He termed his company's air traffic "heavy."

More than 1,500 persons have boarded Continental Airlines turbo-prop aircraft at Peterson Field in the past 10 days. During that time, Continental has been forced to use three or four extra flights to handle the influx of travellers.

Contintental Agent Joe Mathern said that by noon, Thursday, 80 passengers had already boarded planes that day, but that it would slow down as the afternoon wore on. He also stated that the airline's heaviest traffic was experienced toward the end of last week and during the first three days of this week.

Most of the holiday passengers were bound for Phoenix or for Denver to make other connections. Frontier officials also reported that travel picked up again on Thursday.

Clark Clary, local agent for Greyhound, said civilian travel at this time of year was, "better than ever before." He went on to say that military fares had, "dropped off some."

Greyhound busses have managed to take care of all their passengers, with an increase of four or five busses on some schedules that are normally covered by just one. Package express service was reported much heavier than in preceding years.

Clary also said that all busses had been leaving on time at all stops and that no problems had been met during the Christmas vacation rush.

Despite lighter military tavel, Continental Trailways officials said that two to three additional sections had been added to some schedules. They reported some 5,000 travellers on north and south routes and said that heavier travel was being handled to Denver, Wichita, Dallas and Memphis, among others.

Military officials at the Peterson Field Air Force terminal were not available to pass on information on numbers of military personnel travelling by military "space-available" aircraft.

Some 346 persons have flown Frontier Airlines from Peterson Field since the 15th. Heaviest travel was experienced last Friday and Saturday, when four extra flights were added to Frontier's regular schedule of six daily flights.

He undressed the little girl but a medical examination revealed that she had not been molested.

The first happened at the Crazy Cat, 3905 N. Nevada Ave. where thieves got away with $435 from the office. The building was thoroughly ransacked and the cigarette machine and pin bowling machine smashed open.

Entry was made by forcing two windows.

Melvin Herbic of the Freeway Gulf station, 1426 Harrison Rd., told Sheriff's deputies that two tires worth a total of $58 had been taken and an unknown amount of money from the cigarette machine. The back window had been smashed open by the intruders.

The third incident happened at the A and W Root Beer where $6 were taken from the vending machines.

The final burglary was reported from the M and O Liquors, 1320 S. Nevada Ave.

Best in People Shown By Yule Season Incidents

Christmas is the time for, among other things, one's faith in mankind to be restored. The Christmas season, by and large, brings out the best in people, and Sgt. Richard Mansfield would heartily agree.

About six weeks ago, Sgt. Mansfield, 28 3E. Arvada St., was shopping at a large department store in downtown Colorado Springs, and found a woman's purse on the floor. He picked it up and opened it, and to his amazement discovered a profusion of ten and twenty dollar bills staring him in the face. Closing it, he took it back to the manager's office to turn it in.

As it happened, the owner of the purse had just reported it lost and was waiting for any word about it. Seeing the purse, she took it, told the manager she had found it, and left. Without, by the way, even a how-do-you-do for her benefactor.

Sgt. Mansfield went his way, figuring (kindly; that the woman was so excited about finding the purse and money that she forgot to thank him.

Monday Sgt. Mansfield and his wife were shopping at Miller's Super Market at the Southgate Shopping Center, standing by a fruit stand in the store. Mrs. Mansfield had just picked out a ham for Christmas Dinner and asked her husband if he had enough money with him to poy for it.

He said no, and she gave him a twenty-dollar bill, asking him to pay for the ham while she went next door to a drugstore for some other articles. When the Sergeant got to the check-out stand, he discovered he didn't have the twenty with him, so he went back to the fruit stand to see if perhaps he had left it there.

Knowing that a loose bill is a great temptation, even to the most honest individual, he was somewhat less than optimistic that he would ever see the money again. As he was looking over the fruit stand, a woman standing by asked him what he was looking for.

After he explained the situation to her, she told him that if he would check at the manager's office, his twenty dollars would be returned to him. He did indeed check, and recovered the twenty, but by that time the lady who had told him where to find it had left the store. Sgt. Mansfield asked for the lady's name and address at the office of the store and then sent her a thank-you note.

The lady's name is Edith Shank, of Palmer Lake. Sgt. Mansfield neglected to tell her that Monday was not only one of the 12 days of Christmas, but also his birthday.

Christmas truly is, at least for Sgt. Mansfield, a time of good cheer and kindness, and a time for the restoration of faith.

Burglars Take Tool Damage Building

An employe of the Shrine told police that the building was locked at 5 p.m. Wednesday, checked again Thursday at 8 a.m. the theft and damage were discovered.

Police said the thieves broke into the structure located at Academy Blvd. and Airport Rd. by prying off a padlock on one of the doors. Among the damaged articles was a telephone which was pulled from the wall, a light fixture which was ripped from the ceiling, and a kerosene heater which was torn down.

The employe offered no estimate as to the amount of the damage, according to police.

Mae Gullis Writes for Ward Cannel

NEW YORK (NEA) — Because of late developments in the Bobby Baker case, the column usually conducted in this space by Ward Cannel will not appear today.

(In its place is a news analysis by his landlady, Mrs. Mae Gullis, who not only toured Washington, D.C., April 6-8, 1939, but has also twice had to evict tenants named Baker.)

By MRS. MAE GULLIS

May Ernie says he is not a tall surprised by this here Bobby Baker case. Ernie says it is just 1 more proof the U.S. of A. is in the throws of decay and moral torpedo tube. Ernie says you have not seen nothing yet. It is what comes without you have a Republic but only Socialism and mob rule.

Well if ou ask me I say that is the trouble with people today. I say the weed of crime bears bitter fruit so what is the good if you toss in the trowel and do not even try to do your share.

Now I have actually got nothing the lease against this here Baker in theory. To me politics is a business just like any other such as being married or a landlady.

So what is the point to going in if you cannot even get an apt. for yourself and then on top of it must pay the husband of some other party to take out the garbage and mop the halls.

But that is what you will get if you are always worrying about cleaning up the govt. by taking away the fringe benefits. It will just get dirty again and where will you be? In jail that is where while the tenants take over the property and have dogs and children.

The only other way is running the govt. via these electronic commuters. But I would not give you $0.02 for that idea neither as I do not see how you can make any fast friendships with them automatic robards.

After all what good is having a clean govt. place if you cannot get to nobody in city hall.

That is what I do not like about this here Baker case. How does it look him being so successful and not yet old enough to be called Robert. The youth today is already bad enough without you give them the smart idea you can get somewheres in politics.

But once you leave them into politics you will never again be able to get to nobody in city hall. Most especially these here series ones in the colleges who got to save the govt. from each other.

Do not get me wrong I got nothing against the youth. I always say the future belongs to the youth. They will be older then and can enjoy it.

Meanwhile you got to draw the line somewhere. It is cutting your own throat to pay off a cop who is under 40 yrs. of age or a bldg. inspector who is under 50 yrs. of age.

It is tough enough to fight creeping socialism in the govt. But to all intense and purposes there is absolutely nothing you can do against creeping free enterprise.

Assets of Magic Mountain Disbursed

DENVER (AP) —Benjamin C. Hilliard, U.S. referee in bankruptcy, approved today the disbursement of $820,000 in assets salvaged from Magic Mountain, Inc., defunct operator of an amusement park west of here.

This was the first payment authorized since the promotion failed.

When Magic Mountain was declared bankrupt in 1962, it was estimated it owed creditors and stockholders more than $5 million. It was launched in 1960 as one of the numerous enterprises of Allen J. Lefferdink, former Boulder businessman.

Among payments approved by Hilliard were $289,534 to 40 lien holders and $223,000 to Albert and Kathryn Bachman of Golden, who sold the land for the park site.

EFFECT MINOR

DENVER (UPI)— The new federal wilderness bill will have little effect on the mining industry, U.S. Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., said Wednesday. The veteran congressman, chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, said the law would not curb mineral exploration and development. It allows mineral prospecting in wilderness areas until 1983. If commercial ore is found, mining can be carried on indefinitely until the ore deposit is exhausted, he said.

Steve McQueen Remembers His Turning Point

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a handsome Christmas wreath hanging in the entrance to the MGM commisary with a sign saying others like it can be ordered by calling the office of Steve McQueen.

Why is a movie star selling Christmas wreaths?

The answer goes far back into McQueen's past to an episode he has seldom discussed. It concerns another Christmas, when he was barely a teen-ager but possessed a toughness beyond his years.

Inevitably, he got in trouble with the law. He was offered the choice of stern punishment, or enrollment at Boys' Republic, a private institution dedicated to straightening out boys in trouble. He chose the latter.

Located at Chino, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, Boys' Republic is just that: a self-sufficient plant where the boys rule themselves, with adult guidance.

"The system works out fine," says McQueen in retrospect. "If you allow the boys to run the boys, you can pretty well be sure that discipline will be kept. When a clean cottage means the chance to see a movie once a month and one boy can wipe out the privilege by demerits, you can bet the others will see that he suffers for his infractions."

Young Steve didn't see the wisdom of the system at first. He ran away, landed in jail and was returned to Boys' Republic.

"I got my lumps from the other fellows," he said.

He also had a long talk with the superintendent. Steve remembers him as a formidable-looking man with a patient understanding of the motivations of boys in trouble. He gently explained the alternatives of Steve's future life: he could go on getting into trouble, or he could start learning to get along with other human beings.

Steve admits it was probably the turning point in his life.

He learned to do his work, and there is plenty to do at Boys' Republic. There are cattle and other livestock to take care of and a host of duties in maintaining the grounds and buildings. Steve soon discovered the boys who worked well got the better jobs.

"I had the garbage duty during my Christmas at Boys' Republic. Put on public sale each year wasn't a bad job at all. You just had to haul out the cans three times a day. There were a lot worse jobs."

One of his other duties was assembling the Della Robbia Christmas wreaths, which are upt on public sale each year with proceeds helping to support the republic. Steve stayed there about a year, then left to ship out on a freighter.

The lessons he learned at Boys' Republic stayed with him, and the whole experience remains vital in his memory.

D. C. WASH

By GERRY VANDER HEUVEL

WASHINGTON — The 1965 inaugural invitations are going into the mail at the rate of 10,000 a day — each one splendid on heavy bond paper and printed or embossed) just as they have been for every inauguration since the Civil War.

About 250,000 Americans will be invited "to attend and participate in the inauguration of Lyndon Baines Johnson as President of the United States of America and Hubert Horatio Humphrey as Vice President of the United States of America on Wednesday the twentieth of January One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty Five in the City of Washington."

It isn't necessary to be a big contributor to rate an invitation, but it helps to have a friend at court. The list is made up of names supplied by the state Democratic organizations and by both Democratic and Republican members of Congress, the governors, and of course, the President and Vice President.

DON'T EXPECT THE INVITE TO GIVE YOU ENTREE

However, if you are one of the lucky invitees don't rush out and buy a ball gown or rent a dinner jacket. To borrow an old saying — one of these invitations and 15 cents will buy you a cup of coffee in Washington during inauguration week. They are strictly for scrap books. The scheduled events — the gala, the ball, the concert, the receptions, and even the seats along the parade route, are all either open to the public at a fee, or by special invitation only or by special invitation plus a fee.

It goes without saying that the inaugural invitation isn't worth that heavy bond paper it's written on. It would save a lot of misunderstanding if they printed "not valid" at the top — but that would ruin it as a souvenir.

President Johnson not only played havoc with network schedules when he decided to break with tradition and give his State of the Union message during prime television and radio time, but he antagonized a couple of hundred Washington newswomen — a group he usually courts.

WOMEN'S CLUB USUALLY HOSTS DINNER FOR CONGRESS

Traditionally the President has delivered his message to the joint session of Congress at noon, either the opening day of Congress or a day or two later. And traditionally — at least since 1949 — the Women's National Press Club has held a dinner to welcome back Congress on opening day.

The President's decision to call a joint session at night threw the girls' dinner plans for a loop. After the first state of shock, they managed to cancel out hotel accommodations for the cocktail party and dinner for 750 people and reengaged them for two nights later. The girls are still trying to confirm acceptances for the new date from one of the biggest VIP guest lists ever assembled — up to and including the Vice President.

They even gave the President a chance to make amends. A telegram went to the White House pointing out that "under the circumstances" they thought he ought to join them. They are awaiting his reply, too.

LBJ KNOWS HOW TO KEEP SECRETS: DON'T TELL ANYONE

When President Johnson wants to keep something from leaking he does it in the only way possible — he doesn't tell anybody. The announcement this week of his first Cabinet appointment caught everybody by surprise, including the outgoing Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges. Although Hodges had sent in his letter of resignation Oct. 30, he didn't know until an hour or so before the announcement of his successor that it had been accepted.

If Hodges considered the President's treatment somewhat abrupt, his feelings were more than assuaged by a tribute paid to his wife, Martha. After the announcement Johnson walked back to his desk and on the bottom of the letter accepting Hodges' resignation he penned:

"And I want you to know that every step in your march to success has been greatly aided by that wonderful American lady, Martha."

Speaking of Cabinet appointments — Nicholas Katzenbach, who was promoted from deputy Attorney General to acting Attorney General when Bobby Kennedy resigned, has been so careful not to give LBJ cause to think he is taking too much for granted that he hasn't even moved from his old office on the third floor up to the Attorney General's office on the fourth.

No one but Johnson knows whether Katzenbach will be the new Attorney general, but his friends believe he has had a sign — of one kind or another. He was having lunch in a Chinese restaurant the other day. His fortune cookie advised "Stay alert to future possibilities."

SEN. SCOTT DISPLAYS HIS ARTISTIC SIDE

Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), who was running for his political life in the last election and worked mightily—he barely eged out Democrat Genevieve Blatt — still managed to find time to write the finishing chapters of a book on Oriental art. Although better known for his Senate oratory, which rarely runs to esthetics, Scott has long been interested in Oriental art and has a fine collection in his Georgetown home. He has been working on the book for about a year and a half.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has had a movie made, using the photos taken by Ranger 7, that gives the viewer the effect of making a crash landing on the moon. The scientific community has been enthusiastic about the realism of the film but the most personal and humorous reaction came from the astronauts who viewed it recently.

Tension mounted in the darkened theatre as the imaginary spacecraft plummeted toward the surface of the moon.

"One minute from impact, 300 miles from the surface of the moon," the voice on the sound track said. "Forty-eight seconds from impact, 130 miles from the surface of the moon, 23 seconds . . ." Suddenly Astronaut C. C. Williams jumped to his feet and yelled, "Pull out, for God's sake, pull out!"

Navy Permits 'Customary' Yule Gifts

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says it's okay for its personnel to accept gifts from people doing business with the Defense Department — provided its is a "customary exchange of social amenities between personal friends and relatives."

This ruling, issued earlier in the month, came in time to cover Christmas giving. However, it is intended to apply much more widely than that.

In effect, the Navy relaxed a bit a stern "standards of conduct" directive put out by the Defense Department in late September.

The Defense Department order took away virtually all individual discretion in the matter and just about banned all gift-accepting by military and civilian personnel from persons or firms doing business with the Pentagon.

Questions were raised at the time as to whether the Pentagon order didn't deal rather harshly in cases where people on the defense pay roll happened to have old friends or relatives working for defense contractors.

After pondering this, officials told newsmen than that a military man or civilian employe would have to decide for himself whether the donor of a gift or entertainment was "a person of integrity."

The Navy allowed its people some leeway when it formulated its own instructions to carry out the over-all defense "standards of conduct" directive.

It excluded from the ban on gratuities "customary exchange of social amenities between personal friends and relatives when motivated by such relationship and extended on a personal basis."

Also excluded were "specialty advertising items of trivial intrinsic value."

At the same time, the Navy declared:

"No person shall allow himself to be placed in a position in which a conflict of interests might arise or might justifiably be suspected.

"Where there is a reasonable doubt as to the propriety of accepting favors, gratuities, or entertainment or of attending functions or accepting other invitations of a hospitable nature, naval personnel shall refrain therefrom."

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — One of this capital's major year - end mysteries concerns the willingness of President Johnson to let CIA director John McCone step aside when a good nudge would keep the talented intelligence chief in a most vital national security post.

McCone has been head of the Central Intelligence Agency since November, 1961. Among most of the pros in the spy field he is recognized as a most astute analyst of intelligence information. Moreover, it is appreciated that as an administrator he has shaken up the agency until it is now functioning better than at any time since the CIA was established in 1948.

For these reasons, it appears a helluva way to run a superduper cold war intelligence outfit to ease out the efficient boss. Especially one who definitely has increased its efficiency and reduced for the first time, the Congressional backbiting over what the CIA does surreptitiously with huge wads of taxpayer money (estimated at $700 million a year).

Yet the knife is out for McCone, and there is almost a frantic clamor of individuals who consider they have "master spy" proclivities for Presidential approval as McCone's successor.

Among those reported under consideration by Johnson are William Bundy, assistant Secretary of State; Paul Nitze, Navy Secretary, and Roswell Gilpatric, former Undersecretary of Defense. Half a dozen other names are being tossed around, but these three lead the rest.

The CIA directorship is in many ways a power spot more important than a Cabinet post. The chief of the spy agency not only controls our secret agents around the world but heads up all of the government's intelligence activities and has charge of the evaluation of the secret data required by the President for decision-making in any grave or minor crisis.

HE WAS IKE'S CHAIRMAN OF AEC

If, as generally agreed, McCone has done an excellent job in all these areas, it seems hard to believe that he is on his way out with no resistance on the part of the White House.

That is, it is hard to believe unless one is familiar with the petty jealousies, personality clashes and political shenanigans within the federal bureaucracy itself.

In McCone's case, even the fact that he has been a lifelong Republican has figured in the activities against him. For two years under Ike he was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

It probably also helped in the effort to persuade Johnson that a change should be made at the CIA to recall that McCone's selection in 1961 by President Kennedy had the enthusiastic support of then Attorney General Bobby Kennedy.

Superficially, however, other reasons have leaked out to explain LBJ's recent search for a new CIA chief. One is to the effect that McCone and Johnson have personalities that tend to clash. Another is that the President is figuring on eight more years in the White House and wants a younger man to head up intelligence on the long-haul basis. McCone will be 63 in January.

There has also been a surreptitious effort to leave the impression that McCone has not had the White House access he enjoyed under Kennedy and for some time after Johnson took over.

JOHNSON IS BRIEFED BY BUNDY

It has been true that since last summer at least the President has usually been briefed on intelligence matters not by McCone but by his special foreign affairs advisor, McGeorge Bundy, or his military aid Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton.

The significance of this switch as it touches on the Johnson-McCone relationship is debatable. It has to be granted that McCone, who has never been a time-waster, might well have been provoked at having to sit around in a Presidential antetoom for hours to brief LBJ toom for hours to brief LBJ when the appointment was for 10 a.m. and Johnson's schedule was running two hours late.

The hassle over McCone's tenure, no matter what its origin, has probably developed too far to permit LBJ to urge him to stay on.

Nevertheless, should Johnson have a change of heart and use his powerful persuasion technique he could make out a good case for why McCone has a patriotic duty to stay on.

McCone was right in interpreting the Cuban missile crisis ahead of time. The CIA's intelligence on Viet Nam similarly was a credit to his regime.

In August, 1962 — two months before the Cuban missile crisis — he was convinced that long-range missiles were being emplaced. At the time the majority of intelligence analysts disagreed. They did not believe Khrushchev would be so stupid.

In South Viet Nam the CIA opposed the 1963 ouster of President Diem, arguing that a strong government, even a corrupt one, was required for the war effort. There hasn't been a strong government since.

The CIA, under McCone, also has a distinguished intelligence record in other world areas, although its exploits are most often of the kind that must be concealed if they are to remain effective. This includes some fascinating undercover activities in the Congo.

At the same time McCone — with Johnson's support, if not urging — has improved the spy agency's image in this country. Under his predecessor, Allen Dulles, there was a complete hush - hush. McCone has made himself available to explain, on a background basis, intelligence developments.

With this kind of record it would appear that Johnson would insist on McCone remaining on the job. As he hasn't, a White House clarification is in order, for the national security requires an efficiently run CIA.

1,000 mph Reached by Reconnaissance Plane

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. reports its SR71 strategic reconnaissance plane reached a top speed of more than 1,000 miles an hour and climbed to more than 45,000 feet on its first flight.

Lockheed said Wednesday that the top secret craft "met all test objectives." The plane was designed to operate at more than 2,000 miles an hour and altitudes of more than 80,000 feet.

It was assembled at Air Force Plant 42 at Palmdale, Calif., where it took off Tuesday for its maiden flight, then cruised over the Mojave Desert for an hour and landed at nearby Edwards Air Force Base.

Crippled Star Skier Becomes School Teacher

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Courage?

"It really isn't that big a deal," Jill Kinmont said today.

The young teacher touched the control lever of her electric wheelchair to move closer, so her soft voice could be heard above the excitement of a schoolhouse on the day before Christmas.

"It isn't so big, in spite of what people think. It's just something we do. I guess we're strange people."

We?

By using the word Jill Kinmont was including the many others who face life and another Christmas from a wheelchair, paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Ten years ago Jill was one of the nation's most promising young skiers, her mind set on earning a place on America's Olympic Alpine team. She was national senior and junior slalom champion; the world was big and all its snow belonged to her.

Today she is Miss Kinmont, saying she's not quite sure if her 54 pupils in two suburban Mercer Island elementary schools love her for herself or for her fascinating chair.

Sweeping down a Utah hill with the reckless drive that marks the champion, 18-year-old Jill Kinmont fell and the tumble changed her life. While still in a California hospital she began taking college work through UCLA. At first it was "just for a couple of credits" — but Jill graduated in five and a half years.

When William Kinmont, cost analyst for an airplane company, moved his family to Seattle last year Jill attended the University of Washington to get her teaching certificate. Her first job last fall found her teaching development reading; two days at Lakeridge School, three at nearby Island Park.

Each day Jill is driven to school in a small, van-type bus and scoots in her chair down a portable ramp her father built. Although her fingers will not respond, Jill has command of her arms and the control lever of her chair is no problem.

A special clamp, strapped to hand and wrist holds her pen or pencil. "It was unwieldy at first," she remembered.

"I wrote in letters two inches high before I learned the knack of using an arm motion."

Her mother helps prepare lesson material, but Jill said, "I'm doing more and more of it myself — with the aid of the pupils." The youngsters, from second through sixth graders, all but tumble over one another to help their Miss Kinmont.

"I've had to spread that task around so only one is helping at a time and nobody is left out," Jill said. "We're very close, with no more than six in any class. This is very gratifying work."

Across the lower tip of Lake Washington from school is the comfortable Kinmont home, where the Christmas tree is a-glitter and the cards and presents have been piling up. William and June Kinmont will have daughter Jill, grown sons Bob and Jerry and three grandchildren together for the opening of presents Christmas morning.

"My way of life really hasn't changed much. There have had to be some adjustments, of course; some allowances. But I keep busy. I don't worry about it.

"Honestly, I have no more good days or bad days than you do: no more highs or lows than anybody else.

"There isn't time for it."

Bank Bandit Told It Is Christmas

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It's Christmas time," U.S. Commissioner Edward W. Furia told an accused bank bandit at a hearing Wednesday.

"I want to get this man home to his family. I don't believe he is a real criminal," Furia told Joseph R. Davido, 23, charged with robbing a branch of the Philadelphia National Bank Tuesday of $1,260 to buy gifts for his four children.

Furia told Carolyn Temin, a voluntary defender for Davido, to go to City Hall and try to make arrangements for reasonable bail.

He set a further hearing for today, when Davido will be freed for Christmas if the city agrees not to press a detainer warrant.

Date-Line

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

Christmas Day is a time for loving and giving. You've long since delivered all your gifts, and dispatched the last Christmas card. Now you've the leisure to lean back and review the year that's past.

There are doubtlessly many happy memories, some triumphs and a hundred laughs. But probe a bit further. Is there a sadness buried in this collection of memories? A broken friendship? A misunderstanding that turned close pals into distant acquaintances?

If you've a sad memory to recall, why not do something about it today? Christmas, you know, has a kind of magic about it. Somehow for these 24 hours we're better, nicer folks than we are the rest of the year. We're able to unbend and extend a forgiving hand, or even harder, admit our own fault this special day.

So, if you're estranged from someone today, a relative, buddy or old friend, and you've wanted to do something about it for a long time, cash in on the magic of Christmas and write a note or make a phone call to set things right once more.

"But what would I say?"

As long as your message is sincere, the words don't have to be polished prose. If you've missed the other person, and are thinking of him this holiday season, just tell him that for openers.

"How can I say I'm sorry?"

If the fault's all or partly yours, admit this fact in any way, shape or form. "I was wrong," will be just as eloquent as a 10-page detailed confession of your failings. The message is quite simple after all. "I made a mistake. I'm admitting that mistake. And I'm hoping for your forgiveness."

"What if the fault was the other person's?"

Then you've got a diplomatic task to accomplish. Don't claim guilt that wasn't yours. Don't say you're sorry for something you didn't do. But let the wrong person know that he still has value for you. "Charles, I know I'm supposed to be furious at you, but somehow I miss you more than anything else. . ." would do as a start.

"If you want to patch up a broken relationship, is it better to phone or write?"

This depends on you and the other person. If you think he's likely to hang up, or you're likely to freeze up once he comes on the line, then make it a written message. But if you talk better than you write, choose the phone.

"What if he doesn't accept my outstretched hand?"

That's a risk you take. If you care about someone, you make yourself vulnerable. You can be hurt. But even if your overture at reconciliation is turned down, you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that you tried to heal the quarrel.

And maybe, just maybe, you will be successful and enter 1965 with a renewed friendship! Worth the try, don't you think: (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Have you a problem? Ele and Walt Dulaney may have the solution. Write them in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Soviet Squabble May Postpone U.N. Holiday

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Last-minute Soviet objections threatened today to upset an expected agreement which would permit the U.N. General Assembly to recess for the holidays without Soviet voting rights being challenged.

U.N. negotiators plunged into a new round of talks in the hope that the assembly still might be able to adjourn by tonight. The assembly scheduled morning and afternoon sessions on the chance that agreement would be reached.

The difficulty was over a plan drafted by the 59-nation Asian-African group and modified by Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana and Secretary-General U Thant.

It proposed that U.N. members bring the organization to solvency by voluntary contributions that would not be construed as changing the basic position of any member. It provides that no country will invoke Article 19 of the U.N. Charter, which says any member two years in arrears on assessments shall lose its assembly vote. The Soviet Union and six other Soviet bloc countries are in this category.

Sponsors of the plan had expressed belief that they had found a formula to avoid a showdown on the financial issue.

First word of the hitch came after a meeting of Soviet bloc delegations at U.N. headquarters. Several told newsmen they had doubts about the plan and ruled out any immediate agreement.

Informed sources said the Soviet Union felt the plan did not go far enough in ruling out the application of Article 19.

It had been hoped that an agreement would clear away the main obstacle to a recess. The assembly, however, still has another difficult problem.

This is the election of three nonpermanent members of the Security Council to take their seats Jan. 1. Unless these vacancies are filled by the end of the year, the council cannot meet.

Efforts have been made to reach agreement so that the members could be elected by acclamation, but Jordan and Mali are contesting the seat being vacated by Morocco and neither will withdraw.

Indonesia also objects to the election of Malaysia to serve out the second year of a term started by Czechoslovakia under a gentleman's agreement.

Any contest would clash with the no-vote truce under which the assembly has been operating since Dec. 1. A demand for a vote could force a U.S.-Soviet confrontation over the Soviet peacekeeping debts.

Students Acquitted In Madrid Court

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Tribunal of Public Order handed down an unusual verdict today, acquitting 11 university students on charges of illegal propaganda and illegal association. The government had asked jail sentences.

The 11 defendants were arrested after seizure of clandestine publications urging university students to join an outlawed Socialist party.

All denied the charges, saying any meetings they had were solely for discussion of university matters.

WORKER KILLED

GLENWOOD SPRINGS (UPI) —Guy Phillips Hollenbeck, 28, a construction worker from Rifle, Colo., was killed instantly Wednesday when he was struck by a crane cable which snapped hitting him in the head. Garfield County Coroner Jack Farnum said the Rippey Construction Co. employe was working on a project on Colo. 82, two miles south of here, when the mishap occurred. The crane was using the cable to lift a 4-foot concrete pipe into a ditch when it snapped. Hollenbeck is survived by his wife and two children.

Elite Corps of Top Civilian Workers Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A report on the federal government's higher ranking civil service workers recommends that President Johnson consider creating an elite corps of top civilian workers, similar to the military officers' corps.

The report, by David T. Stanley of the Brookings Institution, said that by giving a top employe pay based on a rank and duties identified with his organization, the government could make flexible use of one executive in many departments and agencies.

Stanley's study, "the higher civil service," concludes that there is no "alarming need for reform." But, he said, if quality is to be maintained in high government levels, the president, the agency heads and the personnel executives "must keep pushing, moving, developing and innovating to improve this vital resource."

Stanley studied the personnel records and interviewed some of the government's 16,000 employes making between $16,460 and $24,500 annually.

He found that the average top civil servant is a college man in his 50s and has spent 20 years in the same federal department advancing six or seven times until moving into the large, private office.

Generally, all are dedicated, happy with the pay and satisfied with their work.

Most of the engineers and scientists in the upper government brackets get their satisfaction from the challenges, scope and variety of their duties. They value chances for achievement and independence.

Many key administrators draw satisfaction from the sense of public duty and contributing to public policy.

Most had one big gripe—"government complexity." It includes slow procedures, multiple clearances, too much paperwork and duplication of effort.

CROP DOWN

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Colorado's 1965 winter wheat crop probably will be considerably lower than that of last year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said today. The department estimated the crop for harvest next summer would total 17.7 million bushels. The 1964 production was 27.3 million bushels. Officials said the 1959-63 average was 46,782,000 bushels.

The Mayo Medical Clinic in Rochester, Minn., opened in 1914 and now receives about 220,000 patients a year. It has a staff of 374 physicians and 654 resident fellows.

Ent Parents' Group Has Party for Children

The (CHAP) "Children have a potential" Parent's Group of Ent Air Force Base, held their yearly Christmas party on Saturday, at the NCO Club. Mrs. George Pierman and Mrs. Gordon Ebbe were the "Ramrods," with the help of Sgt. J. A. Setterstrom who personally saw to Santa Claus's appearance.

Santa's tailor was Mrs. Keith Wilson. Juice and cookies were donated by the NCO Club. The Christmas tree trimmed with home decorations was given by Cub Scout Pack 113 of Longfellow School. Sgts. Dale Chamberlain, Stanley Worbleski, John Tardy and Arnold Schafer, members of the Air Force Academy Band played Christmas Carols as each of the 37 children received a specially selected gift.

After the party, Santa Claus made a flying trip to Security to visit two children who were unable to attend the party.

Absorbent sponges are fastened to the tips of thumbs and fingers of amber latex rubber gloves for hair coloring. The sponges help apply the proper amount of solution when hair is being tinted or dyed and also help build a good lather when shampooing.

Creamed Eggs and Green Peas on Toast
Pumpkin Muffins Beverage

Pumpkin Muffins

1 cup sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg
¼ cup shortening
2-3 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup canned mashed pumpkin

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cream shortening and sugar; thoroughly beat in egg. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with pumpkin mixture; stir only until smooth after each addition -- do not beat. Fill greased muffin-pan cups about half full: bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until wire cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—about 25 minutes. Serve hot or reheat. If muffin-pan cups are 1-3 cup size, recipe will make 10 muffins.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

In defending against South's contract of four hearts, West became the victim of his own emotions and engaged in an unwarranted bit of "cashing out."

Although the opening demand bid may not meet with the approval of some purists, it conforms to our own standards. South's holding rates to win approximately nine tricks—in other words, within one trick of game, and he has the required four defensive winners. In terms of points, he has 22 in high cards and distribution which is sufficient with a good seven card suit.

West opened the four of spades, dummy played the ten, and East put up the king which was taken by declarer's ace. South returned a spade immediately and West played the queen.

Fearful that his opponent would obtain a discard on the jack of spades, West shifted to the ace of clubs—thereby signing the death kneel for the defense. Declarer lost only one more trick to the king of diamonds, and forthwith claimed his contract.

West's impulsive club shift was the product of panic. His concern that South could utilize North's jack of spades for an eventual discard was not well founded. The only apparent entry to dummy was the queen of hearts and, unless South has an eight card suit, East can kill the sluff by trumping in when the high spade is led.

If West shifts to a trump at trick three, declarer is helpless. No matter how he twists and turns, he cannot avoid the loss of two clubs and a diamond in addition to the spade trick already conceded.

Tape Recorders Tops on Many Students' Lists

NEW YORK (UPI) — Santa's caught th electronic fever. He's packing record numbers of tape recorders.

Jack K. Sauter, home entertainment specialist for RCA Victor, says one reason is the latest tape cartridge recorders. This advance eliminates the handling of tape. It comes encased in a cartridge and can't run loose.

Sauter said the family library of tapes is taking its place alongside the photo album. The typical library offers recordings made at all family occasions, including weddings, baptisms, showers and birthdays.

But that's not all. A music library also can be built of tapes from radio, television and disc recordings.

The recorders are handy other ways. If mom is preparing a speech to be given at the women's club, she can rehearse it first with the machine.Dad can do the same with his speeches. Later, the tapes can be added to the family library.

The recorners help out at homework time, too.

"Students have to ask their teachers for permission to bring their recorders to school," Sauter said, "and the teachers generally don't mind at all.

"It has been demonstrated that the tape recorder can help stimulate student interest in studies and other school activities. They are being used to record classroom lectures, glee club meetings, pep talks by coaches, football songs and cheerleader practice sessions."

P.S. — A word to the wise: weigh your words when there's a tape recorder in the family. You never know when some practical joker will record something you don't want repeated!

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Live and Learn!

DEAR ABBY: A woman who signed herself "SHOOK" asked you how to tell if a man was married. Well, I can tell you that she would need the FBI to help her made sure, that is how good some men can lie.

I once went out with a man who claimed he was single. It turned out that he had been married for eleven years and had nine kids. He kept his wedding ring in his shoe.

Another man I went around with wore a wedding ring and then proceeded to court me like crazy, telling me all the while that he loved me, but I shouldn't get any ideas about marriage because he was married. I couldn't help falling for him, but I didn't dare press him for marriage. After two years of meeting him in out-f-the-way places where no one would see us, I found out that he had never been married. He bought himself the wedding ring and just wore it for "protection." — BERTIE IN THE BRONX

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Shook," who can't tell the married ones from the single ones.

When I was a young, attractive woman in the business world, I had occasion to meet many traveling men. Naturally, there were a few rats who were married and tried to pass themselves off as bachelors, but I soon learned how to spot them. When we said goodbye, if a man gave me his OFFICE address and telephone number, it was a pretty good bet that he was married. The single men always gave me their HOME addresses and telephone numbers. —SELDOM FOOLED IN ADA

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "SHOOK'S" question, "How can you tell if a man is married?":

In the days of burlesque the chorus girls used this gag to find out. They carried an atomizer filled with perfume and they pointed it at the stranger in question. If he stood there and let her spray him, he was single. If he jumped out of the way, he was married. SIGNED, —"SPRAYED" IN NEW HAVEN

DEAR ABBY: In my dating days I never had any trouble finding out whether a man was married or not. When he'd go to kiss me for the first time, if he'd ask me to take my lipstick off, he was married. If he went ahead and didn't give a darn, he was single. It never failed. —MAGGIE IN DULUTH

DEAR ABBY: I don't pretend to be an expert on men, but when I was young and dating, and out with a new male acquaintance, if he constantly looked at his watch during the evening, it was safe to assume that he was married. —NOBODY'S FOOL IN KC.

Cash Register Has Merry Tune From Yule Sales

NEW YORK (UP) — Scrooge wouldn't like it.

The nation's merchants foresee record sales for the 1964 Yuletide — expectations of a six per cent rise over last year's ting-a-linging of cash registers in the name of Christmas giving.

J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president and treasurer of the National Retail Merchants Association (NRMA), said 90 per cent of the stores participating in an NRMA survey expect higher sales.

In order of popularity, gains are expected in women's sportswear, men's sportswear, cosmetics and sundries, women's coat and suits, juniors, dresses, boys' wear, radio and television, and toys.

Dakins said a noticeable trend is developing in the amount of new items that will be featured in stores this Christmas over the same period last year.

The newer merchandise includes items in women's sportswear, home furnishings, men's sportswear, cosmetics and drug sundries.

The Christmas shopping season is responsible for 18 per cent of a store's annual sales volume.

Hot potato salad for your New Year's Eve buffet? Yes, indeed, if you follow the advice of Jan Mitchell, the versatile owner of Luchow's in New York, generally rated as about the best German restaurant in the country.

Intimate friend of artists, writers, actors and the socially prominent, this master restauranteur entertains in his Fifth Avenue home every New Year's Eve, but in the Luchow hearty manner. That means fine food with a German accent.

"Gaiety and good resolutions are part of every New Year's Eve celebration, naturally," he told us. "But even so, guests do get hungry. This is the menu I like to serve them:

"Sliced sturgeon, marinated herring, poached Kennebec salmon in aspic; whole roast suckling pig, roast prime ribs of beef; braised celery, hot potato salad, cucumber salad, celery and black and green olives; black bread, pumpernickel, rye bread; rote grutze (raspberry claret, tapioca pudding) in champagne glasses, whipped cream on side.

Luchow's Hot Potato Salad
"Speck Salat"
(Serves 4)

1 pound (3 medium) potatoes
6 slices crisp bacon, diced
1 medium onion, diced
½ cup vinegar
½ cup stock or bouillon
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
1 egg yolk, beaten

Scrub potatoes; rinse. Boil in jackets; let cool. Peel and cut into ¼-inch slices. Cook bacon in hot pan until crisp. Add onion; stir and cook until transparent. Add vinegar, stock or bouillon and seasonings. Stir; let come to a boil. Stir in egg; remove from heat and pour over potatoes.

Spotty Report About Holiday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the practical side of the holiday feast, be sure to keep in mind the greasy types of foods which might be spilled on rugs and carpets.

A few drops of gravy, turkey drippings, mincemeat pie — all can cause unsightly stains on carpeting unless fast action is taken.

First, wipe up the excess with white absorbent material. For extra greasy spills, use small amounts of a dry cleaning fluid, blotting after each application with white absorbent material.

Next, suggests the National Institute of Rug Cleaning, Inc., mix a solution of one teaspoon neutral detergent to one - half pint lukewarm water. Apply in small amounts, blotting after each application.

After you have removed the stain, place a one-quarter inch layer of white absorbent material over the area and weight with books for six to eight hours.

ANTWERP — Concrete insulating material made in Belgium is to be used in German homes.

Fabulous Yule Gifts Imagination, Balance

By GAY PAULEY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fur's flying throughout the fabulous and the off-beat Christmas gifts available for the shopper who's running low on ideas but not on cash.

Competing with the traditional mink coat the more affluent giver can select, there are also such items as chinchilla rugs, baby carriage robes, floor length black ermine evening coats, breeches and fencer's vest of jaguar, and tiger vests.

We've been shop - hounding the stores, the advertising pages of the newspaper and the catalogs and produced these gift suggestions which depart from the usual. Prices are given only when the items go beyond the $25 mark.

Consider the furs. One New York firm (Geroges Kaplan) features rugs ranging in price from $40 for one of Iceland lamb on up to $12,000 for one of chinchilla. The same house offers floor length black ermine coats for $4,500; "His" and "Her" coat sets of silver otter at $3,500 each; children's fur coats of otter at $75; a white mink shopping coat durable enough to take rain or snow for $2,500; and tiger or leopard vests at $500 each.

Rugs for the man on a gift list also come from a store famous for its sports gear (Abercrombie & Fitch, New York). These included a polar bear-skin rug for $1,000; a zebra throw, at $500; and a lionskin rug for $1,500.

Another New York store (Best's) is pushing baby carriage robes at $500 each; and a store known for its elegance (Bergdorf Goodman) has breeches and fencer's vest in Brazilian jaguar for $3,850.

A Texas store (Nieman-Marcus, Dallas) shows waste baskets covered in Canadian fox fur for $30.

The same firm is advertising "His" and "Her" balloons at $6.850 each, and "His" and "Her" recovery kits — "for life of the party people"—consisting of ice bag hats, eye masks and ear plugs.

Jane Truma, fashion co-ordinator at one New York store (Bloomingdale's), summed up buying trends this season when she said, "In our affluent society people don't NEED things, so our gifts are amsuing and light." Gifts from its boutique included a stuffed frog with spectacles, a bottle opener shaped like a football, and a tool chest for women.

Affluence also pervades the toy world—with expensive toys for adults! An Allentown, Pa., store (Hess's) features a number of these including a seven-foot-tall gorilla, who when plugged into a household circuit menaces, roars, groans and swings its arms. He's priced at $1,400. Another toy animated once plugged is is a performing pony and girl trainer, for $1,-800.

We gleaned these other suggestions:

—For her, a topless night-gown (Bonwit Teller); a purse that when opened plays a tune (Max Schling, New York); A battery - powered flour sifter (Hammacher Schlemmer, New York); and a battery-powered manicure set (Hess's);

—For him, a set of 14 karat gold sports coat buttons (Sulka), for $300; a set of cuff links with the Wall Street symbols of bull and bear design (also Sulka), $77; a boom-bass, one-man band—cymbals, drums and noise makers on a pogo stick—(Abercrombie & Fitch), $30; and from the same store, cashmere long-johns, mounted trophy horns or antlers $250 and up for the hunter who "never bagged his own," and a brandy cane that appears to be a walking stick but unscrews at the handle to reveal a plastic flask.

—For the family, a Christmas tree tablecloth with electric light bulbs sewn onto it (Hess's); a sauna bath that will fit into any odd corner (several stores); hundred thousand year old dinosaur footprints for use in terraces, fireplaces, (Dinosaurland So. Hadley, Mass.).

Fashionettes

United Press International

Don't take too much fashion advice, especially from friends, says California designer Don Loper. You lose your point of view and become a conglomeration of opinions, most of which probably are unsuitable to you. Find a style that suits you and then stay with it, Loper urges.

Shoes that punctuate the point of fashion for spring are the softest, tenderest shapes in a decade, reports the National Shoe Institute. Toes are ovals, rounds or soft squares. And there's lots of exposure via the revival of sling shapes.

Stretch fabrics register in a new group of bathing suits for 2-4 toddlers and 3-6X boys and girls. Other stretch fabrics for the crib and sandbox set, seen in the spring line of Carter's, were featured in underwear and play-by-day clothes.

LUXEMBOURG — Luxembourg has instituted price controls as an anti-inflationary measure.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have found the most wonderful way to sprinkle my clothes . . . with no work at all.

I just hang my laundry on the clothesline overnight . . . and let the dew do the dampening! In the morning, the clothes are just right to iron.

There are fewer wrinkles and best of all, no baskets of clothes sitting around waiting for me to sprinkle them.

If it happens to rain, then just wait until they are partly dry. The most important thing is that they are dampened evenly.

Peggy

Dear Heloise:

This hint is for do-it-yourself painters who use a roller and a pan.

Line the paint pan with aluminum foilu before you pour the paint into the pan.

When you have finished painting, remove the foil and discard it. No messy paint tray to clean!

Harry

Dear Heloise:

We were short of space when our baby was small, so I used our small, narrow book case for his clothes and diapers. I used the top for vaseline, oil, etc.

I thum tacked nursery print material (slit down the middle for easy access) to the front of the book case.

Cynthia

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

See a joke your husband would enjoy? Cut it out and tape it to his shaving mirror, at the top or side where he will see it, but it won't be in his way.

Have a petty complaint that must be aired? For instance, "Who left the bottle of shampoo on the side of the tub where the little ones could get it and pour it out (Oh, the poor budget), or worse yet, break it and cut themselves?"

A little mirror note usually tells you "who" and seems to make more of an impression on the offender.

Anyway, it beats nagging and seems to get the job done.

Mickey Gill

Dear Heloise:

Everytime I fed our dog, I found several ants crawling over her dish.

I rinsed off the ants, cleaned and dried the dish, then sprayed the bottom of the dish with an insect repellent, being careful not to get any of the repellent inside the bowl.

I repeat this process whenever new ants appear . . .making certain the insect repellent is one which is safe for use around pets and children.

De-Bugged

Dear Heloise:

When I have to sleep with my hair in rollers, I find it much more comfortable, if I use a head rest pillow underneath my neck, instead of my regular pillow.

A Girl of Eleven

They hurt, don't they, hon? I don't see how you girls sleep in 'em.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Last Christmas I bought my husband a new fire extinguisher for his boat. I have never had such a safe feeling as I did knowing that the fire extenguisher was handy.

Now the fire extinguisher comes in the house for Christmas and will be kept handy while the tree is up.

Mrs. Charlorre Ferguson

And a JOYOUS NOEL to you all.

Heloise.

Hunting and Fishing

By DICK MOORE

Goose hunters on the Eastern Slope are being reminded by Mel Renfrow, president of the Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Commission, that since the goose season continues until Jan. 15, 1965, a new small game license is required on the first of the new year.

Since the required migratory bird stamp is good through June 30, 1965, those who plan to hunt geese in January are advised to keep their old license with the stamp attached and also the 1965 small game hunting license together.

Duck hunters on the Eastern Slope are being reminded by Renfrow that the duck season ends east of the Divide at sunset Dec. 31.

On the Western Slope, Renfrow points out, the duck and goose seasons both end on January 10, 1965.

Pheasant and quail hunters are also reminded that hunting will close on Thursday in the northeast section of Colorado. The areas remaining open until the 31st include all of Sedgwick and Phillips counties and portions of Yuma, Washington, Morgan, Weld and Logan Counties. Hunting pressure has been light and with the colder weather, hunting should be good. Hunters are urged to get out for one more trip. Its' a long time until next November.

The pheasant population was down 35 to 40 per cent statewide which can be related to the extremely dry year. Hunting success was also down due to the fewer number of birds.

Colorado 1965 fishing and small game hunting licenses are now in the hands of most license agents throughout Colorado. John Likes, Game, Fish and Parks Department licenses supervisor, this week announced the distribution of the licenses. A fishing license makes a very thoughtful and inexpensive Christmas present for someone who hunts or fishes. 365 days of outdoor enjoyment for only a few dollars.

The month of November was a busy time for the state game and fish law enforcement officials and courts.

Total summonses for the month included. 264 resident and 59 non - resident, with a total of 150 resident penalty assessments and 56 non - resident penalty assessments.

The total amount of resident fines assessed was $12,618.00 and the non - resident amount was $2,785.00, making the grand total fines assessed $15,403.00.

In the days of the long rifle, one of the traditional sports of the time was "shooting for the beef." One way of determining the winner was to give each man a short piece of board with a cross mark in the center and his initials at the bottom. Each contestant was allowed one shot at his mark and the shooter whose bullet struck closest to the center of the mark won his choice of the beef quarters.

Hams, bacon sides and turkeys have replaced the beef of the olden days and there are many variations in the manner in which these contests are held, but the traditional sport still ranks high in the popularity poll among sportsmen.

"At this time of the year, Christmas, ham, bacon, turkey and other merchandise shoots are particularly appropriate," says Curt Clair, manager, shooting promotion, Remington Arms Company, Inc. "And the gun club or sportsmen's organization that does not take advantage of the high interest in these affairs is certainly missing a bet. Merchandise shoots are easy to operate and especially popular with the novice shooter as he has just as good a chance to win a prize as the experienced gunner.

"There are any number of contests that can be employed, from straight trap and skeet or precision rifle shooting, to the shooting games of pure chance, such as Splatter Cards or Lucky Shot.

"All are a lot of fun for the contestants. They are also great creators of interest in the club's usual program of activities and many new members join up as a result of the friendly acquaintances made and the royal fun enjoyed at merchandise shoots.

"In the Splatter Card game, the equipment is very simple. The contestant doesn't even have to have a shotgun. The card is a piece of white cardboard about letterhead size. Circles about the size of a silver dollar are drawn or printed on the card.

There is no set size or number of circles or sections on each card, the idea being to have enough on each card to pay for the prize and leave a little profit for the club. As each man buys a circle, he writes his name on it.

"When all the circles are 'sold,' the card is hung up about 30 yards from the firing point. Some spectator who is not in the contest is then selected and fires one shot from a shotgun at the card. Usually 12 guage trap or skeet loads are used as the ammunition, but any shells will do. Whoever has his name in the circle struck by the most pellets wins the prize. If a pellet breaks the line of the circle, it is counted. In case of ties, the circles are marked and the card is shot over. Some clubs prefer to mark an X in each circle. The pellet nearest the crossline of the X is the winner.

"In the Lucky Card events, a large circle is drawn on each card. The circle is divided into the desired number of pie-slice shaped areas by running diametrical lines across it. As each wedge is 'sold,' the owner writes his name on it. When all are sold, the card is hung on a nail and spun.

A shooter fires one .22 caliber cartridge at the card from a distance of 50 feet. Whoever has his name in the section struck by the bullet wins. If the bullet hole cuts any dividing line, another shot is fired.

"Splatter Cards and Lucky Shot Cards placed in store windows, along with the shoot announcement, will be pretty sure to bring out a crowd and many of those attracted will be sportsmen who are not interested in competitive shooting but will enter these events because they know they will not be outgunned by expert shots.

"Each organization can fashion its own shoot to suit its own requirements or facilities. If you have a skeet or trap field, regular events can be scheduled, employing the Lewis Class or any other system. Miss-and-Out events can be fired. Squads should be made up, insofar as possible, of shooters of equal ability, for an expert in a squad of tyros can spoil the fun and ruin that particular event.

"Clubs should try to keep the program moving along at a brisk rate, making each event short and keeping the cost to the individaul shooter down as low as possible."

Youth Still Does Not Want to Lose His Leg

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Baker — a teen-ager who ran away when a doctor said he would have to lose his left leg — is coming home for Christmas.

But from Flagstaff, Ariz., he told a newsman Wednesday by phone: "I'm still not going to have that operation."

Flagstaff was as far as Ronald got when he left home to hitchhike his way to Chicago.

The slim, 16-year-old youth fled Tuesday when his mother told him what his doctor had told her — that he had cancer.

An attempt to remove the malignancy failed. His left leg would have to be amputated above the knee — or he would die within six months, he was told.

"I'd rather die than have my leg cut off," Ronald said. "I don't want to be a cripple."

Lois Eisenbeiss, 51, Ronald's mother, had kept a vigil at their apartment in Van Nuys, a Los Angeles suburb.

"Now all I want to do for him is to get him home and do the most I can," she said. She said Ronald's father died of cancer when Ronald was 4 months old.

Reds Cannot Broadcast in British Campaign

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Counsel for former Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home argued in court today that the Communist party in Britain was not entitled to broadcast time in British elections.

Douglas-Home was accused in court of corruptly winning the election to the House of Commons in an unfair assist from British television.

The charge was made by Dr. Christopher Murray Grieve, who was Douglas-Home's Communist opponent in last October's elections. He has asked the court to unseat Douglas-Home.

Counsel for the former prime minister described Grieve's case as absurd.

"All these broadcasts were being transmitted by all the transmitters of those two authorities" — British Broadcasting Corp. and Independent Television — to "all areas of the United Kingdom," said attorney H. S. Keith.

"In a situation of this kind, it is a reasonable question to ask: 'Are the Communist party and various other minor parties of sufficient importance to the nation for national broadcasts to be put out.' In my submission, the answer to that is probably 'No.'"

Douglas-Home attended Monday's opening hearing but was not present when the court resumed today. In the Kinross voting, he topped the poll against three other candidates and Grieve ran fourth and last.

The Communist party was allowed no political broadcasts during the election under a ruling which restricts broadcasting time to parties running a minimum of 50 candidates. The Communists had 36 candidates in the field and none was elected.

Grieve's counsel, A. J. Mackenzie Stuart, argued that political impartiality required television to give prominence to all conflicting viewpoints.

The 538 members of the electoral college will meet at 51 locations Dec. 14 to vote for the president and vice president.

Senator Hubert Humphrey served as mayor of Minneapolis from 1945-47. He was elected to the Senate in 1948.

Mining Not to Be Affected by Wilderness Bill

DENVER (AP)—Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo, said today the state's mining industry will not be materially affected by the Wilderness Bill approved by Congress.

Aspinall, chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, addressed the Denver Mining Club luncheon.

He said the mining industry need have no fears the new law will curb exploration and development of minerals. Areas incorporated in the wilderness system have almost no mining potential, Aspinall said.

The bill was drafted to allow mineral prospecting in wilderness areas until 1983. If commercial ore is found, mining can be carried on indefinitely until the ore deposit is exhausted, Aspinall said.

"One hitch is that any mining operation in wilderness areas must be in conformity with rules and regulations promulgated by the federal department head concerned, in the case of Colorado, the secretary of agriculture," the congressman said.

"Those regulations, which have to be agreed to by both the secretaries of agriculture and interior, have not yet been processed.

"The act places an additional burden upon Congress to see that the regulations by the administering agency are carried out in accordance with the legislative intent.

Aspinall said in the five Colorado areas under the wilderness system, covering less than 300,000 acres, no mining claims have been filed in five years.

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, Virgin Islands. (AP) — Michael Quill, 60, international president of the Transport Workers Union, was hospitalized Wednesday with what apparently was food poisoning. He was released from the hospital at Charlotte Amalie later.

Conservative Work Within GOP Is Sought

DENVER (AP) — The newly formed Colorado Republican-Conservative Association, Inc. said today conservatives "strongly prefer to work within and strengthen the Republican Party and will do so as long as it offers a reasonable hope of expressing nationally a philosophy of liberty."

The association's statement was issued over the signature of its president, Dwight D. Murphey, Denver attorney.

It said "the overriding immediate tasks of conservatives in Colorado are to (a) build an effective conservative organization which will encourage Republican Party participation; (b) create a sense of identity of conservatives with the conservative cause, and (c) articulate to all Coloradoans the advantages of a free society based on limited constitutional government."

The statement said "Colorado conservatives likewise will do well presently to suspend their judgment as to support for any individual state party officers or potential office seekers."

Three Guerrillas Killed in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian and Commonwealth forces early today killed three of the latest contingent of Indonesian guerrillas to land on the southwest coast of the Malaysian peninsula.

The government said the Indonesians were killed in a jungle clash about 150 miles southeast of Kuala Lumpur.

The government reported earlier that between 27 and 30 armed guerrillas landed near the Pontian region of Johore State. It was the fourth Indonesian raid on the Malaysian peninsula in the last five months.

Viewers Will Miss Old TV Shows, She Says

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS may be helping its Wednesday night ratings by substituting "Mr. Ed" and "My Living Doll" for its old "CBS Reports" and news specials, but viewers who enjoy some meaty programs in the early evening are going to miss the old shows sorely.

"Mr. Ed" is a comedy series which features a lovable talking horse and one of the loudest laugh tracks in television.

Wednesday night's episode had this remarkable animal ordering Christmas gifts over the telephone and getting his owner in all sorts of trouble with his wife. There was also a dream sequence in which Mr. Ed played Santa's helper at the North Pole.

Somehow this sort of thing seemed much better in its former early Sunday evening spot.

It is followed by "My Living Doll," which features a lovable talking robot, a computer who looks like a beautiful girl. Wednesday night this man-made beauty was about to be left $10 million by an eccentric old fellow. The show also features a noisy, ghostly laugh track.

Nat King Cole, hospitalized with a lung ailment, was booked as host on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" show of Jan. 16. Bing Crosby will step in as substitute. It will be a sort if anniversary for Bing — he was host on the first show a year ago when it replaced the disastrous "Jerry Lewis Show."

CBS seems serious about one cloak-and-dagger series next season, the one starring Polly Bergen as a glamorous foreign agent.

It may prove the most gorgeous cloak in history — Yves St. Laurent, the Paris couturier, has been retained to whip up Miss Bergen's wardrobe.

Tennessee Ernie Ford keeps on doing his daytime program from San Francisco on the ABC network, but the network seems to be having trouble with the name of his show.

For about a year, it was called "The Tennessee Ernie Ford Show." Then a few weeks ago, ABC announced it would henceforth be called "Hello Peapickers. Now comes another formal announcement that it will be called "Tennessee Ernie Ford and the Peapickers."

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, in one of their rare television appearances, will play in the Jan. 28 "Hall of Fame" production of "the Magnificent Yankee" on NBC. The following month, Trevor Howard will play Napoleon in an original drama, "Eagle in a Cage."

Conscience Settles Old Insurance Case

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An unidentified senior citizen has faced up to the challenge of Christmas and faces 1965 conscience free.

Thirty-five years ago the man, hard hit by the depression, filed a claim with Aetna Insurance Co. for the accidental burning of his Model-T Ford. The company paid him $225 damages.

The man walked into the office of Aetna agent James L. Busby Wednesday, announced the 1929 fire was no accident and offered to return the money.

"He paid us $225 cash and seemed greatly relieved that we would accept the money," Busby said.

DEFENDANT FREED

GOLDEN (UPI)— Jefferson County officials said they were forced to free an accused 21-year-old rapist Wednesday because sheriff's officers and court officials made an error in reporting the middle name of the man's alleged victim. Dist. Judge George G. Priest dismissed the case. He upheld an argument by the defense attorney that the woman could not be endorsed as a witness because of the error. Deputy Dist. Atty. Julio Zamagni said the rape charge could not be refiled because it would constitute double jeopardy.

Three Men Killed in Cargo Plane Crash

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP) — A four-engine Flying Tiger Air Line Constellation cargo transport crashed minutes after takeoff today, killing the three crew members aboard, the airline reported.

A deputy from the San Mateo County sheriff's office said the crewmen were the only ones aboard the New York-bound transport, which took off from San Francisco International Airport at 12:29 a.m. The bodies have been recovered, he said.

The plane crashed several miles from the airport off Skyline Boulevard and San Francisco County Jail Road, the deputy said. The area is unpopulated, he said, about 20 miles from San Francisco.

"The aircraft was going to John F. Kennedy Airport," a Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said. 'It took off at 12:29 a.m. and left the scope immediately."

The Weather Bureau at the airport said at the time of the crash visibility was three miles with light rain and fog and a 1,000-foot overcast.

The South African Province of Natal has 360 miles of seacoast along the Indian Ocean. The province has been extensively industrialized and contains vast mineral resources.

Under-Secretary Backed by Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A storm has bown up around Undersecretary of Labor John F. Henning. Secretary W. Willard Wirtz is known to be seeking Henning's departure, but the undersecretary is strongly backed by AFL-CIO President George Meany and Chairman Adam Clayton Powell Jr. of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Disparity between the approaches taken by the secretary, a lawyer and former professor, and the undersecretary, a long-time unionist, have led to friction.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Struthers entertained some interesting foreign guests at dinner on Sunday following the Yule Log ceremony. Their guests were Miss Leonor Amezquita -y- Sanchez, of Bogota, Columbia, South America, and Peter Ratjis, of Utrecht, Holland. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Struthers and daughters Amy, Sue and Jodie, of Littleton, and Mrs. Jerine Ridgeway, of East Littleton.

Miss Amezquita -y- Sanchez is in the States on a year's Fulbright Scholarship in education. The dinner was also a birthday party in honor of the Allen Struthers' granddaughter Amy. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Huddleston from Colorado Springs joined the group for the dinner and birthday party. Mr. Huddleston is Mrs. Struther's brother.

The foreign visitors were most interested in the Palmer Lake Yule Log celebration and Miss Amezquita - y - Sanchez is making notes and taking newpaper clippings of the Yule Log ceremony back to South America.

Sermon on Mount Is Sound Business Principle

By SAM CAMPBELL

Satan himself would agree that the "Sermon on the Mount" is a great piece of literature, but how does it work out from a business standpoint?

I suppose opinions will differ as to what the answer to that question is. Some would dispute that Jesus' statement that appears in the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of Matthew can even be applied to the hard world of getting and spending.

Many would say that the Sermon on the Mount is a statement of goals, rather than a practical plan — at least from the business point of view.

Since a variety of views are held by different persons, I will throw in an extra, a point of view that may seem somewhat unorthodox at first blush. Then I will give the reasons that impel me to this view, and you may judge for yourself whether this uncommon view rests on a rational foundation.

The offbeat I read the Sermon on the Mount, the more I am persuaded that it is a down-to-earth declaration of business principle of great practical significance. I am convinced it should be taken literally and that a precise application will lead to both spiritual and material profit.

No, I'm not trying to sermonize you or even to impress you. I'm merely trying to open the way for you to explore what may be a source of invaluable information.

The first reason that I believe the Sermon on the Mount to be a practical statement of business worth is that the Author clearly intended it to be advice.

Second the observations of those who heard the advice disclose that the Author was utterly confident of the validity of the advice He gave. This was a 30-year-old veteran of the school of hard knockcs talking, not a philosopher type, not a Ph. D. He spoke, so the witnesses really knew.

So, as I take it, if Jesus meant that the Sermon on the Mount was to apply to some other world instead of this world, He would have said so. In fact, as to certain portions, He did specify that the reward for such and such conduct would be delivered in heaven — an indication that the portions not so specified apply to the "here and now."

Indeed at one point He flatly said that "the meek shall inherit the earth." So explicitly He was talking about the earth, not another point, speaking of food and clothing. He said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness, and all these things will be added unto you."

Now you ask, how does meekness and righteousness connect up with good business practice? Well, the meek man relies upon persuasion to accomplish his goals and never resorts to force. As a consequence he tends to become a very able persuader. Now the business word for persuasion is "salesmanship." So meekness is the key to salesmanship.

Again, to seek righteousness is to search for the right and wrong ways of doing things. The person who constantly tries to understand those natural laws that govern creation will have less difficulty wresting a living from his environment. Material reward comes to him. In other words, by a by-product because he first sought to understand "what makes things and people tick."

Now, doesn't that make a lot of business sense?

International Look Seen in Men's Fashion

By WALTER SAGE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Postal, of Beverly Hills, Calif., takes violent exception to a phrase so often used calling London the Paris of men's fashion. He says the last English man to be well - dressed was the Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor.

Postal, 36, is director of the National Council of Men's Fashion and is generally regarded in Beverly Hills as the high priest of American male fashion. He lives in the "internationally well - dressed man" article syndicated every week to newspapers and magazines.

Postal, whose own physique is unusual for our male figure as a far cry from the traditional English ideal, says he and living in New York fits perfectly in with current trends in men's fashion.

The slimmer I read the Sermon on the Mount, the more I am persuaded that it is a down-to-earth declaration of business principle of great practical significance. I am convinced it should be taken literally and that a precise application will lead to both spiritual and material profit.

No, I'm not trying to sermonize you or even to impress you. I'm merely trying to open the way for you to explore what may be a source of invaluable information.

Newspaper Ads Credited With Zales Sales Rise

A stepped-up program of local newspaper advertising is credited with contributing to a decided improvement in Christmas season sales by Zale's Jewelers.

Company President Ben A. Lipshy reports sales from the company's nearly 400 stores are running "better than 10 per cent ahead" of the comparable period a year ago, and he said much of this increase can be attributed to a concentrated local newspaper advertising campaign on top of a year-long national advertising program in major consumer publications.

Both programs are designed to further the company's image as the nation's largest retail jeweler, a fact recently noted by "Fortune" magazine in a detailed study of the Dallas-based Zale firm.

"The trend of sales appears to be fairly even throughout each of the 39 states in which we operate," Lipshy said, "and we're quite pleased that much of this increase is in the sale of diamond jewelry."

The Zale executive went on to point out that consumers are considerably more jewelry conscious than in previous years.

"Much of this, of course, is due to our higher standard of living and to the growth in disposable income.

"But," Lipshy points out, "there are many more products on the market than in years past so we in the jewelry business are competing with that many more choices open to the consumer."

Advertising extensively has definitely made the difference in Zale's efforts, he added, and the company already is planning to step up its local advertising programs in 1965.

Zale's plans to continue its emphasis on diamond styling.

"Americans have come to appreciate styling and fashion. Our industry in recent years has developed many new and unusual pieces of diamond jewelry.

The trend toward fashion and styling requires continued new innovations and we believe that this present demand — multiplied by a vigorously growing economy and population — will continue its upward trend in 1965," Mr. Lipshy added.

The Detroit Tigers will play 39 games at home in 1965.

HP Employes Receiving Profit Sharing Checks

"Hewlett - Packard Company employes in Colorado this week are receiving cash profit-sharing checks from the company totaling $169,000.

This is the second cash disbursement this year under HP's profit-sharing plan, and brings the total amount distributed in 1964 to $252,000.

Employes eligible to participate receive profit - sharing checks twice each year - in June and December. The amount of cash distributed is determined by formula, and the June distribution of $83,000 was 6½ per cent of eligible base wages for the first six - month period.

The distribution this week is nearly nine per cent, making an average of seven point seven per cent of eligible base wages paid out under the plan during 1964.

Payments in 1963 were $126,000, for an average of six point eight per cent of eligible base wages.

Faulty Photo Exposure Can Ruin Pictures

By BART KINCH
United Press International

More film footage is shot and wasted by amateurs at Christmas than any other time of the year. Most often this wastage is caused by faulty exposure. To help you put new sparkle into your Christmas pictures, we have enlisted the aid of an expert, Don J. Mohler.

Mohler is the director of technical photography for the General Electric Company's Photo Lamp Department and he has some sound advice to offer. Let's start with the Christmas tree. Mohler suggests three ways to photograph the tree using outdoor color film in the ASA range of 32 to 100.

—Set the aperture at f-18 and take a one-second exposure with the tree lights on. While the shutter is open, fire an AG-1B or an M2B from a distance of about 10 feet.

—Try a one minute time exposure at f-8 with the room lights on. After the first second or two, turn the tree lights off.

—If you want to have people in your pictures, take a synchronized flash shot using your slowest shutter speed and shoot from about seven feet with an M2B or AG-1B bulb.

For those who do not have a camera that offers both lens and shutter settings, Mohler suggests that the photographer stand about 10 feet from the subject and use outdoor color film with blue bulbs.

Mohler also suggests that the picture-taking be a family affair. Very often the one member of the family who takes the pictures discovers when the film is returned from the processor that he has been left out.

"Let other members of the family use the flash camera too," Mohler says. "Find out what they want to shoot, figure out how far back they should stand, then set the camera for them. Tell them what to look through, what to push and how to wind film and change bulbs. Make sure they do not touch the settings and make sure they shoot everything from the same distance."

If you want to take pictures of the outside of your home, be sure to use a tripod.

"Wait for a calm night. Lamp strings wobble around in the wind and cause blurs. If there's snow on the ground, or even water, you'll get reflections and more colorful pictures.

"Take a small flashlight so you can see to make settings after dark. Exposures run from two to 10 seconds at f-11, depending on the brightness of the lighting.

"To get some detail in the foreground, and on the home or building, take your pictures just after dusk while there still is some weak light in the sky, or flash an M2B or AG-1B during the exposure after dark."

Here are a few other tips by Mohler:

To photograph floodlighted buildings or displays, remember that the range of brightness and color varies. The brightest areas Mohler says, usually take two or three seconds at f-11.

Church interiors seldom are brightly lighted and therefore take long exposures. He suggests five minutes at f-8 or longer. Shorter exposures at wider apertures sacrifice depth.

Landscapes on a clear night in bright moonlight, an exposure of one hour at f-5.6. (This is for a moonlit landscape in which the moon is NOT included.)

Finally, for Christmas shows or plays, Mohler suggests you give these shots all the exposure you can without blurring the shot with camera shake. Most people can shoot at 1-15th or 1-10th with a little practice. Brace yourself before squeezing off the shot if possible.

Former Miss America Weds College Student

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Mrs. Michael Allen Buckley — better known as Donna Axum, Miss America of 1964 — and her husband were on their honeymoon today at the home of Buckley's parents.

Donna, 22, eloped with Buckley, 22, her college sweetheart, Monday and was married in a small Methodist church at Pine Bluff, Ark. Both are seniors at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Her parents announced the wedding Wednesday at their home in El Dorado, Ark.

In Bloomington, the former Miss America expressed the desire be treated like any other bride.

"Maybe everyone will be over the shock of it pretty soon, and leave us alone," she said.

Donna discussed with Mrs. Buckley the furnishings needed when she and her husband move into their apartment in Fayetteville.

"We're discussing things for the apartment, the basic essentials such as the ironing board and iron," she said. "I can cook some and I'm willing to learn."

The couple first met on a blind date arranged by Donna's roommate.

Buckley said his parents "knew I was thinking seriously about Donna, but I don't think they thought we would get married now."

The elder Buckleys had met Donna only once, when they visited Fayetteville for a weekend.

The mother of the bride, Mrs. Hurley B. Axum, said in El Dorado, the couple eloped for two reasons: "Donna said she had had all the fanfare she could take, and she knew her parents wanted her to have a big church wedding."

Donna won the Miss America title in Atlantic City, N.J., in September 1963.

She said she would continue to make two or three public appearances on weekends but would devote most of her time to studies and housekeeping.

Young Buckley, who is studying merchandising and advertising at the university, said he would work for his father after graduation next spring. His father owns the Buckley Advertising Co. and has other interests.

The newlyweds plan to spend Christmas in Bloomington and will go to Dallas, Tex., for the Cotton Bowl football game New Year's Day.

American firms are expected to invest $5.9 billion this year in foreign industrial plants and equipment. This outlay would be about 16 per cent higher than last year's $5.1 billion, according to the Commerce Department.

Shea to Step Up as State Controller

DENVER (AP) — Gov. John A. Love has appointed State Budget Director Con F. Shea to step up to state controller, effective Jan. 1 when controller E. Gray Spurlin retires.

A provisional appointment for Shea to the post, which carries a maximum salary exceeding $18,000 a year, reached the Colorado Civil Service Commission offices today.

Love made the appointment before leaving for Breckenridge Wednesday to spend the holidays. It was made on a provisional basis.

Shea has been budget director since mid-1957 and several years ago passed a civil service examination for the controller's post. However, the list has expired and he will have to take a new examination before a permanent appointment can be made.

The merit board said there has been no chance to consider an examination for the controller's post. Spurlin announced Monday he was leaving the job because of ill health.

Malagasy will ban slavery.

Fine Proposed For Release of Legal Reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Judicial Conference has recommended a $1,000 fine for disclosing to the press information that has not been filed with the court and which affect the outcome of a pending criminal case.

The judicial conference is composed of the chief judges of the 11 federal circuits and representatives of U.S. district courts. They meet twice a year but do not reveal the results of their sessions for several months.

The meeting at which the contempt recommendation was made was held on Sept. 23-24, and the results made public Tuesday in a printed report.

The conference approved the wording of a bill to this effect which will be introduced in the next Congress. The measure provides that furnishing information "not already properly filed" in court constitutes contempt. An exception is made for "evidence that has already been admitted at the trial."

The last session of Congress took no action on an earlier bill with somewhat different provisions, which called for a $500 fine for each publication.

Discussions about conflicts between the right of an accused to a fair trial and the right of the press to publish the news has increased since the Kennedy assassination and its aftermath.

For some years appeals to the Supreme Court by convicted persons have claimed as grounds for reversal the inability of the defendant to obtain an impartial jury because of the newspaper and radio publicity generated by the case.

Farmers Get More Despite State Drought

DENVER (AP) — Despite drought in the state, Colorado farmers received approximately $257.4 million for their crops this year.

This figure was about $2.7 million higher than in 1963.

Livestock figures were not included in the estimates released by the Colorado Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Income from winter wheat was estimated at $35,485,000, about $4 million less than last year. But the report said farmers will receive about $20.7 million under the new wheat certificate program.

The reporting service estimated Colorado's potato crop was valued this year at $30 million, or $14.8 million higher than last year's yield.

It gave these 1964 estimates for other crops:

Corn — $16.6 million, up $1.8 million.

Barley — $10,492,000, up $1.5 million.

Hay—$72.6 million, down $5.5 million.

Dry beans—$11.8 million, down $1.1 million.

Grain sorghums—$6.3 million, down $1.8 million.

Forage sorghums — $5.2 million, down $900,000.

Apples—$3.5 million, up $200,000.

An official said it was too early to reach an estimate on the value of this year's sugar beet crop. Last year's crop was worth $38.1 million.

De Gaulle Continues His One-Man Rule of France

By United Press International

Few men burn with the mission to make their country great. Fewer get the chance to carry out the mission and still fewer fail the first time and get a second chance.

Charles de Gaulle got the second chance, took it and in the early 1960s succeeded in a great measure in restoring a renovated and strong France to a high place in the councils of the world.

Tall, austere and aloof, pictured as having his head in the clouds, an odd - man - out by choice or necessity, he has the lifelong mission to promote France. Nothing else matters.

It was the mission that guided his every action from World War I, through World War II, where he raised the banner of resistance from abroad over a defeated nation, to the restoration of France as a stable and powerful nation in the last years of his life.

Charles Andre Joseph Marie de Gaulle was born Nov. 22, 1890, in the home of his maternal grandparents in Lille. At the age of six, his passion was playing at toy soldiers. He became serious and solitary as he entered adolescence and his schoolfellows nicknamed him "the big asparagus" because of his prodigious height—6 feet, 4 inches—in his late teens.

He went from the Jesuit college where his father, Henri, taught to the military school at St. Cyr—France's West Point—when he was 21. By this time he already was showing unusually brilliant theories about France and warfare.

Fate threw him under the command of Colonel Henri Philippe Petain who later, as marshal, was to be his adversary.

As a first lieutenant, de Gaulle was wounded in the first month of World War I. He was wounded twice more and finally captured by the Germans.

After the war he was posted to St. Cyr to teach history. In 1925, as an officer at the Ecole Militaire (Military School) in Paris training for high command, he became noted for his original, advanced and unorthodox ideas.

By 1932, as general secretary of the High Council for National Defense he became friendly with numerous politicians who believed in his ideas and tried to have the National Assembly support them, but without much result.

Proved Right

World War II, with its German panzers showed de Gaulle's ideas were right.

In May, 1940, he was promoted to brigadier-general — the highest military rank he ever attained—and was given a divisional command. He counter-attacked and in places forced the crack divisions of Nazi General Heinz Guderian to retreat. But there was no stopping the flood of German armor.

Only a fortnight before the fall of France de Gaulle became Under-Secretary of State for War in Paris. He tried to persuade the government to fight on from North Africa but failed.

His wife, Yvonne, whom he married in May, 1919, now had three children: Philippe, who was to become an officer in the French navy, Elizabeth and Anne.

De Gaulle sent her a telegram telling her to take herself and the children up to the Channel coast and then, with not much more than his own personality, set out himself for London.

Few people had ever heard of the man who stood before the microphone at the British Broadcasting Corporation's London studios June 18 and called on Frenchmen in France to continue to fight the Germans.

The Vichy Government of France stripped him of his citizenship and sentenced him to death in his absence, but de Gaulle continued to wave the flag and men began trickling into his army in London.

He irritated and annoyed the Allied leaders for four years, partly in an effort to get more recognition of France's needs and probably partly to convince his own countrymen that he was not just a puppet of the Allied leadership.

"Of all the crosses I had to bear the heaviest was the Cross of Lorraine," Sir Winston Churchill wrote in his memoirs.

De Gaulle himself recalled the "harsh and painful incidents that often rose between us because of the friction of our two characters, the opposition of some of the interests of our two countries and of the unfair advantage taken by England of wounded France."

De Gaulle had to wait when the Allied armies landed in Normandy June 6, 1944. He did not get ashore until a week later.

But he did manage to be in Paris the day after the French and American troops entered it and to march down the Champs Elysees to delerious cheers — and the sounds of German troops still sniping nearby.

Nation Calls

Only de Gaulle's maneuvering prevented the communists from seizing control of Paris and possibly the country. A grateful nation asked him to assume the premiership in November, 1944.

But he later became fed up with the continual wrangling of political parties and unwilling to remain in a regime which had little real power, De Gaulle walked out Jan. 20, 1946, and went to his country home at Colombey Les Deux Eglises, 120 miles east of Paris.

At Colombey he kept in touch with political developments and wrote his memoirs. The chance he awaited did not come until 1958.

By the end of 1957 the country was wallowing in the death throes of the Fourth Republic. Only occasionally was a voice heard calling for de Gaulle to return.

The Bourges-Maunoury government fell at the end of September, 1957, the latest in a long line of regimes that were totally inadequate for the job of controlling the country. Felix Gaillard, a relative newcomer, took over the premiership by the end of the year.

Three years earlier the Moslems in Algeria had begun a civil war to win independence from France, which poured men, arms and money into the battle and almost wrecked what was left of its economy in the process.

The Gaillard government was defeated in April, 1958, and the political machine spewed up another headed by Pierre Pflimlin.

But by the time his cabinet was announced May 12 the Frenchmen in Algiers, including many leading soldiers, had had enough. They issued a manifesto demanding a "government of public safety."

Commander-in-Chief in Algeria Gen. Raoul Salan took matters into mis own hands and sent his tough paratroopers to occupy government buildings. A public safety committee headed by Salan and paratroop Gen. Jacques Massu was set up and Salan announced he had "provisionally taken over the responsibility for the destinies of French Algeria."

In Paris the Pflimlin government tried to save face by announcing it had "entrusted Salan to ensure maintenance of order in Algeria".

But Salan and Massu, aided by one of de Gaulle's staunchest supporters, the able and scholarly Jacques Soustelle, went further. They appealed to de Gaulle to form a government "free from the regime of the parties" and told President Rene Coty what they had done.

A week after the revolt in Algeria de Gaulle called a press conference and hammered the theme that the political parties were out of date and only one man could run France.

Revolt Spreads

Five days later the Algerian revolt spread to Corsica. Four days after that, Pflimlin resigned and Coty asked de Gaulle to form a government.

De Gaulle took over the reins of government fully confident that he could set up virtual one-man rule in France and begin putting the French house in proper order according to his tenets.

He reshaped the constitution to make it impossible for parliament to throw out government after government as in the Fourth Republic. Henceofrth it was de Gaulle who named the premier.

For the presidency he built in certain safeguards: only death could remove him from office for seven years, and he had the right in certain circumstances to rule by decree.

With unchallenged control of the country, De Gaulle set about putting his dream into reality: a strong France, able to defend herself militarily, a leader of Europe or, if possible, the world, not to be dictated to by any other power.

The greatest immediate problem threatening his plans was the war in Algeria, then bleeding France annually to a tune of about $2 billion and keeping nearly half a million troops tied down.

On Sept. 16, 1959, De Gaulle offered the Algerian people a free choice between secession from France, complete integration with France, or internal self - government within four years of peace being restored.

De Gaulle's honeymoon with the French people was over. Those who wanted a French Algeria accused him of betraying his trust. Many of his supporters quit army or other posts in protest against his policy.

In January, 1960, anger over his Algeria policy boiled up into the battle of the barricades in Algiers. It was the first test of strength. De Gaulle won.

But by late 1960 the crack was being made that "de Gaulle was down to his last general", so many of his followers had walked out on him. Marshal Juin, the country's only living marshal and de Gaulle's classmate at St. Cyr, publicly snubbed him.

In April, 1961, the nation awoke one Saturday morning to find four generals headed by Salan had seized power in Algeria to keep it French.

De Gaulle immediately assumed special dictatorial powers and warned Frenchmen that if they did not support him against the army rising he would step down and abandon the country to anarchy.

So adroitly did he handle the new threat to his rule that in four days the revolt was over.

The bitterness engendered by de Gaulle's solution of the Algerian problem brought several attempts on his life and numerous plots to kill him.

By about the middle of 1962 the Algerian problem was, to all practical purposes, solved. The rebels took over legal government. Although France continued to provide massive financial aid, the big drain on French money and manpower was over.

De Gaulle now was free to put France firmly on the road to grandeur, his policy of the "grand design".

He had long been suspicious of the United States and Britain and wanted a "third force" between the United States and Russia. He felt this should be achieved by a United Europe, with France in the forefront.

His dream was of a "Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals." This included a reconciliation between the traditional enemies, France and Germany.

This he achieved in part with the signing of the Franco-German treaty in January, 1963. At the same time he ruthlessly killed Britain's chances of entering the European Common Market by using the French veto in Brussels, on the basis that Britain was not ready to be assimilated into Europe.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) he regarded as too much the preserve of the United States in Europe.

He progressively pulled French ground and naval forces from the NATO command and refused to have nuclear warheads stocked on French soil.

On His Own

He also rejected the proposals of President John F. Kennedy for a mixed-manned multilateral nuclear striking force.

Throughout his lief de Gaulle has had good health, except for some trouble with his eyesight. What might appear to be a slight deafness was explained by the fact that he frequently is not listening to what is being said to him.

GADDY WAS A CADDIE

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—James Gaddy likes to recall his days as a caddie but these days he is more well known for his impersonation of Louis Armstrong's rendition of Hello Dolly. Gaddy caddied for such lady pro golfers as Peggy Kirk Bell, Patty Berg and Betty Jameson.

He is the drummer on the Pine Needles trio and also doubles as a bellhop.

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an ever better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Satisfaction at Christmas

For hundreds of years, grown-ups have regaled the kiddies with stories about good old "Saint Nick" and all the marvelous goodies that are to be handed to them if they are "good" little boys and girls. This form of romanticising about Christmas has had its critics and its devotees.

There is certainly something to be said about the merry old elf and his reindeer that is enchanting and exciting for the young. And pajama-clad juniors standing expectantly about the fireplace, with stockings hanging, provide a joyous picture.

There is also something to be said about the building of false images in the minds of the very young, and a quite valid objection to any kind of conditioning that is apt to encourage anyone to believe that this is a season of the year where something for nothing reigns supreme.

Perennially, at Christmas come letters to editors from small fry asking about the reality of Santa Claus. And of course one editor, beginning his response, "Yes, Virginia," made editorial history.

By the time a person reaches adulthood, he has been so pulled at and tossed about by the vicissitudes of a semi-civilized way of life and the demands of all and sundry, that he is apt to look at Christmas with a jaundiced eye. It may be all right for the kiddies, he is apt to say to himself, but for a mature person it's such a lot of work and extra effort that he would willingly do without.

And this is right where we want to lodge a complaint about Santa Claus. This mythical old elf gets all the credit for every generous and kindly thing we do. (And if there are any complaints, guess who reaps the blame.)

We'd like to put the emphasis on the other foot for a change. We see nothing wrong with saying to one's offspring . . . sure, we got you that new shirt, or box of candy or rocking horse. We did it because we love you and wanted to make you happy.

What's wrong about giving something to somebody simply because we get happiness in return? When you give something in your role as the Santa of your household, you do get something back. It may not be in the form of money or a return gift. But a psychic profit is still a profit — especially if old Saint Nick isn't being ballyhooed around as the real benefactor.

Somehow, we're all for the idea of gratitude expressed to the party to whom it is due and not expressed to some itinerant sleigh driver. It may be that the gratitude is the form of profit a person really seeks. Why deprive him of it?

And there's another way of looking at it, too. When you begin to recognize yourself as the real Santa in the story, it goes a long way toward making the whole Christmas season a meaningful experience.

We rather imagine that the Christmas season would be one of heightened enjoyment and satisfaction all the way around if we stopped being coy about these ancient myths and legends and got down to understanding that the real gain to come to all of us at this time relates in improved human relationships. What's wrong with claiming a bit of credit for making the welkin ring, and for experiencing and enjoying the occasion?

We want to be in a position to say to our loved ones: "Sure, we bought you the gift. We saved and scrimped and went without a few things so that we could see the sparkle in your eye and hear the joy that would ring in your voice when you saw that we cared that much."

Merry Christmas, everyone. And we wish it most sincerely because it makes us happy and merry to do so.

Communications

Perhaps, in ages to come, the 20th century will stand apart from its predecessors by reason of the developments made in this period in the field of communications.

Up to and including the 19th century, the ability of men to conceptualize ideas and to communicate them, was meager. A few men have made their way into history's eternal record by virtue of this ability. Their names ring out as we think of them.

But until our own time, the communicator was a truly rare person. He not only had to have the ability to reason, he had to have the ability to express his reasoning in terms understandable to others.

One of the basic problems faced in all communications efforts, deals with perception. Be he ever so brilliant, no communicator can convey his meanings and his thoughts unless there are others capable of receiving his output.

With most of the world dominated by central governments, and with a mere handful of men dealing in fields of reason and science, the emphasis upon communication was slight. Millions of men lived from cradle to grave without having contact with the minds of their contemporaries. A fortunate few had access, not only to the Bible, but to Robinson Crusoe, Blackstone, and a spate of other volumes of lasting merits.

The twentieth century has wrought a revolution in communications. More and more people are equipping themselves as speakers, writers, teachers, preachers and communicators of various sorts. More and more people are now able to cope with ideas, at least to some depth.

The fact is that even now, in the latter half of the twentieth century, we are still dealing with ideas in a somewhat primitive manner and are not entirely competent to handle them.

Intellectually, we have advanced to some degree; technologically, we have made an astonishing break-through. And almost all the major means of mass communication have been pioneered in our own century.

We now employ giant rotary presses and the ingenious linotype which can set copy faster than a dozen typesetters working by hand. By means of leased wire and tape punchers, we can issue a story at one part of the nation and have it reproduced almost instantly the world around. The presses whirl and we can produce millions and millions of copies of a single article in a few hours.

Radio has come to the fore and has bridged even the most frantic break-neck pace of setting type. A verbal report works as fast as the voice can be made to enunciate. But television has even speeded this process. A picture can be transmitted in an instant that it would take a trained observer several minutes to describe.

Then we have the motion picture industry, itself an infant when the 20th century dawned, which has now advanced to a communications and art form. And by means of mass methods almost any event can be transmitted almost instantly, almost anywhere.

The mind boggles at the stream of information, misinformation, ideas and vacuity which can be disseminated and which is being disseminated. Indeed, we are hit with such an avalanche of thought and picture and emotion that many have not yet learned to deal with the product.

Books, which were once precious and few, now innundate our shelves and few of them are read, and still fewer studied. There is such a kaleidoscopic attack upon our sensory preceptions that small wonder confusion mounts and men do not know what to believe, which way to turn or what to do.

To keep pace, perhaps to catch up on all the wonders of our world, a trained and illumined mind is becoming more and more a matter of urgency.

Education, once shrugged off as a process relating to the formative years, is now seen as a constant requirement. To show the importance of keeping pace, consider the medical practitioner and the demand upon him to remain abreast of all developments. As a technological advance here, a service is now available so that recent medical treatises and books are being put on tape and made available to the doctor as he drives his car. Instead of turning on his car radio, he can plug in the latest treatise and learn as he steers.

The populations of the earth are now linked by vast communications networks. And we have only seen the beginning of this process.

The man of the future is going to have to learn discrimination to a marked degree.

Specialization will be more important than ever. But the demand for persons who can cope with ideas was never greater than now. Nor will the demand diminish.

Great rewards are in store in the future for those who are skillful in the communications field. Those who can convey ideas will be essential; those who can find and explain truth will be beyond price.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Here's Hoping!

Foolish Business

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The magic of radio communication has just brought us another profound commercial announcement. In this instance, a public utility has been bragging. It hasn't been bragging about the service it provides for its customers but about the tremendous sums it pays in taxes. That's right, a segment of the industrial strength of the country has spent more money to brag about the taxes it pays. It is difficult to imagine anything more foolish.

The industrial giant believes its subscribers are too lacking in intelligence to know that every cent it pays in taxes adds just that much to the utility bills of the subscribers. I just don't believe the subscribers to the service are quite that foolish or unthinking.

Without the fantastic tax burden, subscribers might pay only one half or even less for the service they buy. Without the huge tax load, stockholders would receive a more equitable return for their investment but the company itself and of its own volition brags about the taxes it pays and in so doing opens wide the door so that government may double or triple the tax load or go even beyond that. On the basis of present performance, the utility company would then enjoy twice or three times as much happiness. It would have so much more about which to brag. Try to imagine the mental acrobatics of business executives who buy that kind of hogwash in the name of advertising. Think a little about the obvious inefficiency which must prevail in such a company. Consider the support such advertising provides for full-scale socialism!

Or maybe I am foolish!

In one way or another, I have been connected with private business for all the years of my adult life. For more than ten years I have spent a great deal of time and effort documenting my firm stand for the market place, for private enterprise-free enterprise—call it what you will. During that time I have received a half dozen or so letters from executives of what is commonly called big business who have made some kindly comment about what I've had to say. You can see for yourselves that this does not amount to overwhelming support since my incoming answerable mail has averaged from 150 to 200 letters per month for more than three years. Yet even those few who have made kindly comment continue to okay expenditures of millions of dollars in advertising with agencies and publications which go along nicely with the socialist conglomerate year after tiresome year. It just doesn't make sense.

I don't know how many widely circulated columnists in the country take a firm stand consistently for private enterprise. If there are a dozen, I don't know about them. I don't even know the names of a dozen columnists who achieve the limited circulation I get, who take a firm and consistent stand for the market place. The reason is obvious. Private enterprise just doesn't bother to support the few columnists who consistently support the market place.

Why, then, should I bother to devote as much time and effort as I do in support of private industry?

It will not be my fault if every major business in this country finds itself under the control of government. My grandkids will not curse me if they are compelled to stand in line to obtain their bare needs from a state-owned and controlled store, if they must travel on state-owned and controlled trains and airlines and boats, listen only to what government wants them to hear on radio and television. If private power and light companies and telephone companies grovel in glee because of the excessive taxes being paid it is because they have no faith in the market place and not because I have become stone blind to economic logic.

Fortunately, hundreds of thousands of smaller business endeavors are operated by men and women who are not apologists for their own existence. Maybe the giants will be able to gather courage from them.

Good luck and good health to you in Freedom.

Wit and Whimsy

A schoolteacher told her class one day to write an essay on "Income Tax."

A small boy taxed his brain to the utmost, and at length he wrote the following: "I have a dog, his name is Tax. I opened the door and income Tax."

'Pirate Broadcasting'

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

One of the more encouraging happenings of the past few years has been the birth of so-called "pirate broadcasting" in England, or, to be more precise, "off" England. This consists of a chain of converted mine sweepers which anchor off the coast of England, in international waters and broadcast radio programs to an estimated 35,000,000 listeners in England.

Heretofore, the British government has had a monopoly in radio broadcasting, which accounts for the "pirate broadcasters" having to go outside the jurisdiction of the government in order to operate. Since no government likes competition, the British government has been quite perplexed at this phenomenon, and has been seeking a means of eliminating this "public nuisance."

The development of this "pirate broadcasting" system — or what I prefer to call Radio Free England — ought to challenge the thinking of each of us as to how we might be able to cope with the restrictions of government in other areas and, at the same time, afford us an opportunity to examine the practice of government regulation of broadcasting.

The argument for such regulation has always been that the number of radio and television broadcasting frequencies is limited, and therefore the government should allocate such frequencies to those broadcasters whom the government deems will "operate for the public interest, convenience and necessity," granting to each such broadcaster an exclusive license to operate on a given frequency. This way, there will not be numerous individuals trying to operate on the same frequency (in a given area).

On the surface, this argument has a certain allure to it, because the ends might seem desirable to many people. But are they? Is there any merit to the case for government regulation?

To assume that because broadcast frequencies are limited in supply the government should therefore allocate and regulate their use, is no more valid in this type of business than in any other. For in fact, land, iron ore, timber, ski slopes, any resource you can name, are all in limited supply, and so it is with broadcast frequencies. Would any of us tolerate the argument that, because land is in limited supply, the government will allocate parcels of land to different people, and regulate the use that these people make of their land so that they will use it for the "public interest, convenience and necessity"? If "the airwaves belong to the public," perhaps so too does the old family homestead?

Rational men do not set themselves up as grantors of property rights: they recognize that such rights arise from a man establishing a claim to a particular piece of property. Such a "claim" most usually consists of an exclusive use of that property by the one seeking recognition of his property rights. Here, then, is the crucial difference: in a free society, other men "recognize" a man's property right; in a totalitarian society they "create" such a right, meaning not property rights but a "license."

Following such principles, rational men would recognize the property right which a broadcaster has established in a particular frequency by his use of that frequency, the same as with land. By the same methods which would be sanctioned to defend property rights in land, property rights in broadcast frequencies would likewise be protected. No man would have any more moral right to trespass on the broadcaster's frequency than he would on the south eighty acres of another man's farm.

And none need fear that the broadcaster might not operate "in the public interest, convenience and necessity," for the free market has a rather nice, efficient way of dealing with men who do not meet the demands of consumers: They go out of business, and new proprietors come in who will better serve public tastes.

The "pirate broadcasters," as long as they are not interfering with the frequencies of other broadcasters, have established a property right in their own frequency, one which rational men will respect and honor. As for whether or not these "pirates" are serving "the public interest," perhaps the action of the Egg Marketing Board of England answers this question. For while the British government has been trying to figure out how to eliminate these upstart broadcasters, the Egg Marketing Board has begun advertising on their stations, in recognition of their success in amassing an audience. That's the free market for you!

SCRIPTURES

To the Editor:

I do not agree with answer given to Question 625 because Jesus said in Luke 12:15, "A man's life consisteth not in the things which he possesseth" and St. Paul forsook all to gain Christ. Christ said for one not to look only to their own interests but also to their neighbors. Here the Golden Rule is taught . . .and He said, "What will it profit one if he gain the whole world and lose his soul?"

In some form or other most people will be commemorating His descension upon earth. Instead of commercializing it by spending money, on cradles and the exchanging of gifts, let the purpose of His coming have effect upon ye. Set a day apart for the reading of His spoken word of which the book of Matthew and John contains a large part. The 17th chapter of John gives His prayer for His people.

It has been many centuries since He was in a cradle. He grew up to manhood, taught the people personally the way of salvation and it is all recorded in the Holy Bible. It's so plain a wayfarer, though a fool, need not err. It teaches clearly that it is only by faith in His sacrificial death that we can be saved and not by any foolish ceremonies.

Those who are not quite sure of Christ's divinity, read His statement at the age of 12 years Luke 2:49 beginning with verse 40. The prophet Isaiah in 34:16 said, "Seek out of the book of the Lord and read for none of these things shall fail." Read what he said in 7:14. Then read what is said in St. Matthew 1 and 2. . .and in St. Luke 1 and 2.

Anyone who expects to be saved had better start reading God's way of salvation or else you will hear Him say, "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity."

CAR SIZE

To the Editor:

Just happened to notice the news item regarding so-called safety tests of small cars versus the big ones. I cannot see where the tests, as conducted, prove anything except that those conducting them do not know how! The removal of the spare tire from rear engine type cars is uncalled for — ridiculous, in fact. Setting these little fellows all alone with the brakes set so the "big bully" can run them down is equally ridiculous.

This sort of stuff happens to be up my alley — that is, years ago, when in the automotive experimental engineering, design and production which of necessity included testing. The little cars, when properly constructed, GIVE A COMPETENT DRIVER A TREMENDOUS ADVANTAGE. They are so easily maneuvered that a big car (or even a small one) out of control, can safely be dodged, whereas if one in a big, heavy car tried to dodge he would most likely roll it.

I have driven cars that very few present-day drivers have even seen — and they were heavy, believe me! The big Pope-Hartford, Pope-Toledo, Lozier Six and the big six Olds Autocrat are some of them. Then there were the later ones, Pathfinder Twelve, Marmon Sixteen, Cadillac Sixteen, Dusenberg Eight, etc. True, if a little car is caught between two big ones, or a big car and a truck, it is a total collapse — but why should one get caught between them, when it would be safe to head for the ditch or open field? A little car can do that and be driven out, usually, where a big car would be stuck.

My suggestion is, if you are going to dance, wear pumps rather than hip boots or waders, and if you want to really be safe on the highway, able to dodge around and get out of tight places, get one of these small, sturdily built, sufficiently powered jobs and if you keep your mind on your driving and watch traffic front and rear, you will have nothing to fear. I have always considered these big two, two and a half and three-ton "prestige" cars to be for fair weather and dry roads with light traffic. I like to sing a parody on a well known ditty of a few years back: "You can have them, I don't want them, there're TOO BIG for me!"

GUEST OF HONOR

To the Editor:

"I'd often heard of planned birthday parties where they all got together and surprised the guest of honor but, up until now, I'd never heard of one where they planned the birthday festivities and then didn't even invite the Guest of Honor," said my good neighbor, Grandpa Suttle, today.

Gramp's mailman had just handed him a bunch of Christmas cards bearing some of these anemic - looking, neutralized "Christmas" stamps.

It's Up to You

The Significance Of Christmas

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Let us drop our controversial comments for a few minutes and turn our minds and hearts toward the happiest and most blessed theme in all the world — the significance of Christmas. The theme never loses its vitality, never grows old and never ceases to fascinate the minds and hearts of men. My generation will soon pass from the scene, but younger men and women will seize with enthusiasm the torch which we took from the faltering hands of our fathers a generation ago and will carry forward the message.

Joy to the world! Peace, goodwill toward men! No more war, strife, anger, malice and ill-will. Justice, mercy, kindness and love abiding everywhere forever! Tears wiped away, suffering assuaged, heartbreaking poverty ended, backbreaking burdens lifted! Physical well-being, mental torment ended and spiritual development the chief objects of man's pursuit! What a world! Is there any hope for its attainment?

Yes, the ideal will not die. It is the plan of God and He will bring it to pass. We do not know how long it will take, but we do know what will bring fulfillment. When God created man in His own image, He gave him the capacity of choosing between right and wrong. The coming of happiness upon this earth awaits only the time when all men will choose to do right. That is the significance of the First, and great, Commandment, "Thou shall have no other gods before me." In simple language that means that we are not to choose what we selfishly desire, things that will gratify our own passions, appetites, and ambitions, for following these selfish interests is sin and brings death upon us. But on the contrary our well-being awaits the time when we choose to do the will of God, putting no human desire in place of adhering to the highest ethical vision of which we are capable. That's what the First, and great, Commandment means. Will man ever attain the character and understanding to show forth by his words and deeds that he is actually a creature carrying in his personality the image of God? Will he ever implement the potential sonship to God which the Scripture tells us we all possess?

We believe that he will. That is the ideal which Jesus Christ set before us, and it is the ideal which a long line of saints and prophets and apostolic writings have kept vivid before us. We believe it is the plan of God and that He can, and will, bring His creation to this state of fulfillment.

In the Judean hills nearly two thousand years ago heaven broke through and became apparent to men who heard the celestial music and saw and heard the angels. In spite of the wickedness which prevails today, the world is essentially better than it was then. If there is cruelty now men are at least concerned about it and are actively seeking ways to overcome it. The social consciousness of men's duty to their fellows is much stronger today than it was two thousand years ago. Much time is required to alter human nature. The achievement of the wonderful ideal of peace, goodwill, happiness and well-being is worthy of the effort no matter how long it takes.

Let our faith expand this Christmas season as we worship God, giving thanks to Him and pledging again our best efforts to find and to do His will.

The Local Scene

Lest We Forget

By RUFUS L. PORTER

When gathered round the festive board.
To celebrate today,
Let not the reason be ignored,
For this is HIS birthday.

Although today many more people profess religion, percentage-wise, than half a century ago, it seems to me that fewer of them practice it. Churches have been streamlined, architecturally and spiritually. Fundamentalism has given way to modernism. No longer do we hear the rousing gospel sermons of other days. I am no judge of whether this is for the better or not. It is no doubt true that religions must change with the changing times. But they shouldn't lose sight of the principles upon which they were originally founded.

Too many ministers today are preaching the unholy gospel of socialism. Socialists, who are atheists, will tell you that "Christ was the first socialist," or "communist," depending on which type of socialist you happen to be talking with — the Fabian or the direct actionist.

Christ was not a communist. His own words prove it. Have you read them lately? Christ, even when He addressed the multitude, talked to and for the individual.

I wrote the above quatrain because there are so many homes where the kids know all about Santa Claus and that he comes on Christmas Eve to leave goodies to good little boys and girls, but they seldom hear of Christ and what He has done for mankind — except, perhaps, the little they have learned from Christmas carols. Are we going to go on celebrating Christmas long, long after we have forgotten its significance? After we have forgotten it is SOMEONE'S birthday?

After World War Two, I wrote a different type of quatrain with the same title as the one above for Christmas, 1945. My, gosh, that was 19 years ago. It follows:

LEST WE FORGET
The sword is sheathed,
the Prince of Peace
Rules in the hearts of men.
God grant our wisdom may increase,
Lest we be fools again.

But it seems we never learn. Since then, we have been whipped in a war in Korea, are being whipped in another war in the Congo and one in Viet Nam. Small wars? Police actions? Korea was no small affair, and either of the others can build into a big one overnight.

We have been fools again because we simply can't seem to mind our own business, nor keep our nose out of the other fellow's. And according to some observers on the scene, we are losing many more men and supplies than we are being made aware of. Our "leaders" are afraid to tell us the truth. But they see nothing wrong with leading us into losing wars, so long as we don't know too much about it. That could be one reason why we do our fighting thousands of miles from home when the same kind of a situation lies just off our coast.

Pardon me, I didn't mean to write about war on Christmas day. But our boys ARE being killed in some of the most outlandish places — and for the most outlandish reasons. We should remember this and feel shame as we again celebrate the birthday of the Prince of Peace while we are engaged in war, cold and hot. One Colorado Springs boy has been killed in Viet Nam (one they told us about, we don't know how many others).

Remember the old malarkey, "We'll have the boys home by Christmas?" It was used in two world wars and in the Korean affair. But we haven't heard it this year with so many of our boys in Viet Nam. What's wrong with our present crop of military and civilian leaders? Can't they follow precedent? Don't they know the people expect to be promised that the "war will be over in time to get the boys home for Christmas?" I believe this slogan was used in the Civil War, too — probably every year it lasted.

Or are they more truthful? (That's a laugh.) They keep telling us that we are going to fight a losing action over 10 or 15 years. Now, anybody can lose a war faster than that. They didn't attempt to explain why we are fighting when we plan to lose, anyhow.

Well, anyhow, I sincerely wish every one of my readers a wonderful Christmas and a better new year.

Surplus Food Ready In Flood Areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today ample supplies of government surplus food are readily available in school lunchrooms, commodity distribution centers and in state and local warehouses to help feed flood victims in California, Oregon and Washington State.

The food is from stocks acquired under farm price support programs.

The food is distributed by such disaster agencies as the Red Cross, Salvation Army, National Guard, Civil Defense and local welfare departments.

Stock Market Rolls to Record High, Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rolled to record highs in 1964 on the heaviest trading in history.

The market rose hand in hand with record national production, record corporate profits and record dividend payments.

It was the continuation of an advance that actually began in June 1962 when the great plunge of that spring — the worst since the 1929 crash — finally reached bottom.

As 1964 reached its end, forecasts for the stock market and the economy were optimistic, at least for the first half of 1965. Growth was anticipated but at a less rapid rate than in 1964.

The possibility of a steel strike after April 20 was pondered. But the 1965 installment of income tax reductions was a certainty and the chance of excise tax cuts was regarded in Wall Street as strong.

Stock prices rose steadily from the start of the yaer, pausing in mid-May for a corrective period that lasted until mid-June when the list again began to move to new peaks.

Stocks pushed higher until the middle of July, then paused for another period of digestion which lasted until early September when another parade to new highs got under way. This lasted until Nov. 20 when the popular market averages topped out after reaching their highest levels in history.

By October trading volume had already passed the billion-share mark, making 1964 the fourth year in which turnover had exceeded a billion shares.

When the '64 market reached high tide, the Dow Jones industrial average had made nearly a 17 per cent gain establishing its closing peak of 871.71 on Nov. 18.

Two days later The Associated Press average of 60 stocks made a historic high of 332.6 and Standard & Poor's broad, 500-stock index a record close of 86.28. The rise for the AP average was about 16 per cent and Standard & Poor's 15 per cent.

In three short weeks after Nov. 20, however, about a quarter of the market's gains were clipped away rapidly.

The immediate excuse for the retreat was an advance in the British bank rate of 7 per cent from 5 per cent, followed immediately by a hike in the Federal Reserve Board discount rate to 4 per cent from 3½ per cent. This is the nation's fundamental interest rate, the amount the Federal Reserve charges to member banks.

Other interest rates were stiffened and some banks began to raise the prime rate to 4½ per cent from 4 per cent — the amount charged to their biggest clients with the best credit ratings.

The market has always disliked higher interest rates but the reaction of stock prices was sharper than on past occasions when rates has been hiked. President Johnson's suggestion that a raise in the prime rate was not necessary was enough to cause some of the banks to rescind the increase.

The stock market and the economy received a powerful stimulus in late February when the $11.5-billion tax cut was enacted.

Another milestone was President Johnson's settlement of the five-year-old work rules dispute in the railroad industry, removing the threat of a strike for the time being.

Planning Director May Stay in Post

DENVER (AP) — Gov. John A. Love said today he has asked that State Planning Director William M. Williams be retained for 60 days while the Legislature decides how it wants to revise the agency.

Williams, a veteran of state service, will reach the 68 year retirement age early in January.

The governor hopes to setup a college coordinating council and planning construction of buildings at schools probably would be made one of its functions.

Two years ago former Gov. Steve McNichols tried to oust Williams from the $14,000 yearly planning post but the Civil Service Commission reinstated Williams.

Drought May Take More Severe Toll

DENVER (UPI) — The Department of Agriculture said today a severe drought, which took a heavy toll of Colorado's 1964 winter wheat crop, might take a heavier toll in the 1965 crop.

Indicated production for 1965 is 17,724,000 bushels, 69 per cent less than the 5-year average of 55,677,000 bushels.

The 1965 estimate is based on a 6.0 bushel yield per seeded acre compared with the 9.9 bushel yield in 1964, while winter wheat seedings this fall for the 1965 harvest total 2,954,000 acres, 7-per cent more than was seeded in fall of 1955. The record high of 3,902,000 acres was seeded in the fall of 1951 and 1952.

Wheat seeding this fall was hampered by a short supply of soil moisture except in the Northwest. Moisture was inadequate to germinate seed, and poor stands were obtained.

Plant resistance to severe winter temperatures will be weakened by the shortage of moisture. The crop will almost entirely depend upon moisture from winter snows and spring rains because sub-soil moisture supplies are inadequate to carry the crop.

Burch Has No Independence, Republicans Say

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — National Chairman Dean Burch is seen by many Republican leaders not simply as the symbol of Sen. Barry Goldwater's philosophy but as his mere agent.

The distinction is cirtical in understanding why his removal from office has become so important a short-range goal to party professionals of both conservative and progressive leanings.

A politican with unimpeachable Goldwater credentials told this reporter that Burch has at all times functioned in the national chairmanship as a kind of administrative assistant to the senator, a man who executed orders but orginated virtually nothing of major consequence in GOP affairs.

This politician observes that Burch, an Arizona lawyer without broad-based political experience, has no power base of his own. To the professionals this means he has no independence and is wholly dependent on Goldwater's will.

They consider it symptomatic that in replying to the Republican governors' Denver Declaration for new leadership and policies, Burch said:

"Senator Goldwater and I have discussed the statement in detail and I can report that he concurs in the aims, goals and need for a broadly based Republican party . . ."

A chairman of stature, say these professionals, would respond in his own name and let it go at that. The Goldwater source says flatly that all the significant decisions of the 1964 campaign were made by Goldwater, his close friend Denison Kitchel, or idea man William Baroody of Washington.

Th tight grip held by this trio was so frustrating even to some key men in the Goldwater entourage that early resignation was contemplated by a few. Only the fact that they felt too heavily committed held them back.

ter man's appraisal of Burch as a mere "order-taker," they think the GOP national committee under his guidance could never be more than a Goldwater appendage in the narrowest sense.

They are prepared to believe many of the harsh tales circulated throughout the country about committee operations under Burch.

The were shocked at the wholesale midsummer firings of veteran committee workers who were more loyal to the party than to the moderates. They reacted the same way to Burch's sweep of non-Goldwater elements from the important executive committee.

Pinkerton detectives stationed in committee headquarters unsettled many. One worker, however, dismisses this as "kids playing soldier." A veteran woman employe reports that special passes were required for entry into some rooms. Spying of one worker upon another is reported.

Post election dismissals are, of course, a necessity, since committee personnel rolls are inflated to meet heavy campaign demands. But evidence is strong that Burch used this occasion for further removal of veterans whose employment long predates Goldwater's nomination.

In the weeks since the election, many first-rank Goldwater lieutenants also have left the fold. The net of it, says one second echelon man who recently packed his bags, is to "leave Burch in charge of a scratch team."

Among those who remains, he adds, are many members of Young Americans for Freedom and others whose dedication to Goldwater makes them see the national committee wholly as his personal vehicle.

Pennsylvania's Gov. William Scranton, who campaigned hard for Goldwater in his own and nine other states, is so disenchanted with Burch's committee management that he says "I would not want him for chairman whether his views were conservative, moderate or liberal."

Says another respected GOP professional:

"We do not want in that job an order-taker for Goldwater, or Scranton, Rockefeller or anybody else."

Some say that the chairman-m ship is unimportant because the committee between elections is only a "housekeeping agency."

The fact is, however, ttat professionals often see the national committee as a highly useful frame for national party action, as a co-ordinator of the 50 state parties in the never-ending preparation for the "next election." To them it is an important means of speaking with a national voice.

Whatever new party agencies may now be devised (in accord with proposals by many GOP leaders) the national committee is not viewed by party veterans as a worthless administrative shell.

These men and women—many with sturdy Republican roots in many sections—do see merit in removing Burch as a symbol—not so much of Goldwater's conservatism as of colossal defeat. Large numbers of these people were ardent Goldwaterites during the 1964 campaign.

They want Burch out as a symbol because they are political realists who believe the party must signal to the nation its intent to make a fresh start. But, as so many privately indicated, they want Burch removed most importantly because they believe he is not and could never be a chairman in his own right.

In consequence, they believe that a national committee serviceable to all major party elements—conservatism included—is impossible so long as he holds the chairmanship. They want to get the committee out of Barry Goldwater's pocket.

School Boys Chase Most Wanted Suspect

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — One of the FBI's most-wanted criminals — described as armed and desperate — was in custody today, chased down by a group of grade school boys.

More than 100 officers had hunted the man identified as Alfred Oponowicz, 38, for 16 hours after he overpowered a hospital guard and escaped armed with the officer's pistol.

But it was eight boys, ages 8 to 12, who ran him down.

"That's the counterfeiter, let's get him," one lad shouted when he spotted the fugitive on a railroad overpass less than a mile from the hospital, where Oponowicz was being treated for wounds from a gun battle Tuesday when he was arrested for counterfeiting.

"Why don't you give up?" one boy asked Oponowicz.

"I'll never give up," he replied, flashing his pistol and dashing away.

The boys ran after him, but Oponowicz slipped away. Neighbors who heard the chase called police and four officers dragged him from a railroad ditch where he cowered face down.

He made no effort to use the pistol beside him.

Oponowicz was weak from loss of blood. Secret Service agents shot him twice when they arrested him and a woman, identified as Iva Marie Cook, 25, of Cleveland, at their Painesville house on counterfeiting charges.

The gun fight began when Mrs. Cook slipped Oponowicz a pistol concealed in a baby's blanket.

Mrs. Cook is in jail in Cleveland. Oponowicz, who first gave the name Robert Bennett, had been on the "the most-wanted" list for a year, sought for attempted burglary of a Cleveland bank.

Agents seized $50,000 in bogus bills, $22,000 worth of printing equipment and an arsenal of firearms at the house.

Most stores in Italy close at 1 p.m. for lunch. In Rome and Naples, many shopkeepers do not return until 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The businesses remain open at night.

Old Songs Are Most Popular On Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "White Christmas" was the most popular song on television Monday night. In fact, Andy Williams, his four brothers and sister were singing it on NBC about the same time that Bing Crosby was tossing it off on ABC.

These pre-holiday nights on network television are awash with the traditional songs of Christmas, jolly Santas, the sound of jingle bells and cornflake snow flakes.

Any Scrooge-like viewers, tired from last-minute shopping or harried from last-gasp gift wrapping, who sought to escape constant reminders of the approaching day had a tough time finding it Monday night.

Even ABC's futuristic action show, "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," stowed a big cargo of Santa Claus aboard its fabulous submarine.

It seems that the ruler of an Eastern country was assassinated and the brave crew of the nuclear sub, all set for holiday leaves, was assigned to transport the new boy king back to his country to prevent revolution.

Enemy submarines tried to torpedo the good sub and somebody tried to stab the boy king, who was acting pretty imperious and maybe deserved a spanking.

At that point, the sub picked up a bearded castaway with an Irish accent. He became buddies with the boy king, improved his manners, saved his life, solved his problems — and then vanished into thin air the way Uncle Martin does in "My Favorite Martian."

Admiral Nelson and Captain Crane of the nuclear submarine then realized they had picked up the castaway near Christmas Island — So they just shrugged and smiled knowingly.

It didn't make much sense dramatically and that show will sure look odd when it is re-run next August. But that's the way things get around Christmas in televisionland.

CBS, in an effective news documentary, went to a small settlement in the impoverished Appalachia area, visited some of the shacks and dropped into the one-room school house on the day of its Christmas celebration.

The sight and sound of those youngsters singing "Silent Night" in their high voices, and a glimpse into their poverty-stricken lives was a reminder that Christmas is not, for everyone, a joyous day of gifts and feasting but for some, just another dark and hungry day like the one before and the one before that.

Three years ago ABC made a series of 26 half-hour programs on the Franklin D. Roosevelt years with Mrs. Roosevelt as one of the consultants. Called "FDR," it finally will get on the air. Starting Jan. 8, ABC will push "12 O'Clock High" back to 10 p.m. and slip the documentary into the 9:30 spot.

The national Nielsen ratings covering the two - week period networks still close in audience ending Dec. 6, found the three popularity. TBC, with a 19.5 rating was first, followed by CBS with 19.3 and NBC with 18.8.

Robber Accepts $7 From Bank Teller.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A man handed Billye Kriss a handwritten note Wednesday across the bank counter.

It read, "Give me some money and you won't get hurt. Give me a stack about 3 inches high, with no ones." He held his hand under his coat.

Mrs. Kriss said: "I can't give you the bank's money, but if you are that desperate I'll give you some of mine."

She opened her purse and handed him $7. The man stood flushtered for a moment, then turned and left.

A motorcycle patrolman arrested Ellis Thayer Van Nattan, 55, of Tulsa, Okla., as he walked out of the Security National Bank.

Van Nattan was charged with bank robbery and held on $5,000 bond.

The $7 was returned to Mrs. Kriss.

Afro-Asian May Overreach Themselves

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

If some of the African states in the U. N. aren't careful, they will succeed in turning President Lyndon Johnson into a flaming conservative in foreign policy issues.

The latest idiocy manifested by the "get the United States" group in the UN is to be found in a recent report of a subcommittee of the Special Committee on Colonialism that flails away at the alleged sins of certain American mining companies with concessions in southwest Africa.

These companies are accused of supporting apartheid policies in that part of the world, and of grinding the faces of the natives to make a profit.

The crowning insult is the Committee on Colonialism's call on the American government to put an end to its support of the Republic of South Africa, which has run southwest Africa ever since it took over that old German colony as a post-World War I League of Nations mandated territory

The subcommittee's report was actually drafted by the Soviet Union's UN delegation. What it strikes at are the operations of international companies which, as a condition of getting concessions to dredge for diamonds in the coastal waters of southwest Africa or to drill for oil, are of necessity compelled to observe the labor laws imposed by the South African government.

These labor laws insist on uniform recruitment policies, and impose a strict control of immigration from Angola and other places outside southwest Africa territory. There are legal restrictions on the advancement of colored workers to more highly paid positions, and these, in effect, keep Negro laborers from becoming skilled workers.

What burns some of these companies up is that they themselves don't agree with the South African government's insistence that apartheid, or "separateness," be applied in the training of workers. Harry Oppenheimer, the chairman of the Anglo-American Corporation, a British concern, has actually pointed out that low productivity resulting from segregated labor is undesirable for effective industrialization.

Oppenheimer has said that "attempts to remedy this situation are, of course, made more difficult by the legislative color bars which are imposed on industry in South Africa."

The Oppenheimer statement has been endorsed by the management of the U. S. -owned American Metal Climax Company in a company report that says: "It is to be hoped that the governmental authorities will now be prepared to sponsor or permit substantial modernization of the standards and conditions of employment and life of the African workers in the territory."

This sort of thing clearly ranges U. S. companies on the side of their own government in Washington, which does not support the Republic of South Africa on the issues of apartheid.

As for the charge that the American companies grind the faces of the poor in order to extract a profit from southwest African operations, this is belied by the fact that three-quarters of the local income taxes come from mining, fishing, and other companies.

The attempt to stigmatize the U. S. government and the American companies in southwest Africa as supporters of apartheid is only to be understood in the light of the Afro-Asian drive in the UN to booby-trap the whole American world position.

The ironic thing about this is that it has evoked the ire of the U. S. representatives on the Special Committee on Colonialism, Ambassador Marietta P. Tree. Mrs. Tree has always been a liberal; her brother happens to be Endicott Peabody, the Democratic ex-governor of Massachusetts, and it was her mother who was arrested not so long ago in St. Augustine for protesting against segregation in Florida. In her own statement on the report of the subcommittee Mrs. Tree said: "Its conclusions constitute . . . undisguised propanganda attacks on the United States . . ."

If the Afro-Asian bloc has outraged Mrs. Tree, think of what it is doing to make President Lyndon Johnson smoulder.

Biracial Yule Slated for New Negro Church

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — There will be biracial Christmas services Friday in the raw shell of a new church rising on the ashes of one burned in racial anger.

"We won't have it finished and we might not have a roof," said Prof. Paul F. Schmidt, "but we're going to have two services Christmas Day, no matter what."

The professor headed the group of 31 Oberlin (Ohio) College students who formed the "Carpenters for Christmas" church rebuilding project.

The Antioch Baptist church went up in flames shortly after it was used for a rally of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party. It is one of at least 30 destroyed by fire or explosion in Mississippi last summer. The site is about six miles east of Ripley.

Two walls are standing and others are taking rapid shape. But Schmidt does not expect to complete the work before the group must return to Oberlin Jan. 2. They travel by car.

"It may be," said Schmidt, "that five or six of us might have to come back later to do some of the brick work."

"We can't hope to have the roof on until sometime next week but we've got the backbone of the thing built," he added.

The Christmas Day service will be open to all races, said Schmidt.

It's the Total Tax Bill That Really Counts

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

If medicare, as is now being suggested by Chairman Wilbur Mills of The House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee, is to be financed not by an added Social Security tax but by a separate payroll tax, it will mean that the federal government must keep still another set of books.

There will be the regular budget ledger of $100 billion (assuming that President Johnson lives up to his implied promise to the businessmen to hold the line at that figure). Then there will be $20 billion more or less in additional cash outlays to the public for Social Security, Railroad Retirement and other things of this nature that don't get counted in the regular budget.

Finally, there will be the medicare disbursements paid for by the special tax, which, so its proponents say, would come to $1.5 billion the first year (the sum would surely jump as time goes by).

Now, there is no reason why a government should not keep three separate sets of books, provided that people are really made aware that the grand total of $120 billion plus is coming out of their pocketbooks and not raining down as manna from heaven.

But by compartmentalizing our accounting practices, we create a climate of negligence. And there is still a fourth set of books that must be sonsidered if we are really to fight complacency. This is the set kept by the states and the local communities, which will run to $70 billion for 1964.

With medicare, we shall be driving toward a total government spending bill (federal, state and local) just sort of $20 billion a year, which is about a third of the national income.

Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith thinks an affluent society can afford to put a third of its income into the so-called public sector. But the fact is that, while President Johnson fights to keep the regular budget on an even keel, all the other budgets will be straining upward. The total will come to more than a third of our income in due time.

The most recent testimony to this came from Chairman Gerald L. Phillippe of the General Electric Company. Speaking to a Lincoln, Neb., group, Phillippe predicted that state and local governments will probably prove a better market in future years for American businessmen than the federal government.

Federal purchases in the first three quarters of 1964, said Phillippe, ran at an annual rate of $65.8 billion as compared to a local and state purchase rate of $62.5 billion. But in 1965—"or 1966 at the lates"—state and local government purchases will "pass the level of federal purchases for the first time since the Korean War and only the second time since 1940."

Since he figures to be on the receiving end of local and state disbursements, Phillippe was not particularly lamenting the new tax trends. His own electrical equipment industry figures to do well out of such things as better lighting to improve urban safety, better local power generation facilities, more state computer centers for use in studying traffic and tax matters, and even local nuclear power plants.

Moreover, it was not only the prospect of sales that seemed to be pleasing Phillippe. He took the philosophical satisfaction of a good decentralist in noting that "the problems of urban growth, of exploding school-age population, of traffic strangulation, of downtown decay, of unemployment, of racial tensions. . .are essentially problems of the community.

To take care of community needs, state collections have already jumped by some ten per cent in 1964, On Phillippe's projection they will go higher in 1965 and 1966.

This would not be disturbing if federal taxes were only going down more than they are. However, with the states and localities taking a bigger bite of the national income, we'll have to have bigger and better federal tax cuts — and a regular budget trimmed some distance below the $100 billion mark — if we are to stay even in the matter of total tax take.

Extra Dividend To Be Found In Hawaii

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UP Travel Editor

The visitor to Hawaii can collect extra dividends these days. An intriguing taste of the traditional way of life on far-flung islands of Polynesia lies just over the hill from Waikiki on a 15-acre sanctuary besides the sea.

The Polynesian Cultural Center at Laie is proving there is more to the newest of the 50 United States than pineapple and poi. The classic tales of the South Seas can come alive for visitors to the Pacific-in-miniature on the island of Oahu.

Beside a shady lagoon, natives from Tonga, Tahiti, Samoa, Fiji, New Zealand and Hawaii itself live much as their ancestors did in island villages built among swaying palm trees.

The idea behind the Center is to preserve and dramatize ancient cultures in danger of being swept away by the jet-age advance of 20th century civilization and the tourist explosion.

In the year since it was opened, the Center has become known as the Williamsburg of the Pacific and the Polynesian Disneyland. For, in minutes, one can figuratively turn back the clock and span thousands of make-believe miles to visit natives of six different cultures.

And like Disneyland and Williamsburg, the center keeps expanding and adding attractions.

At a recent first anniversary celebration, executive committee member Michel M. Grilikhes announced that a new $1 million motel-restaurant—complete with swimming pool and a private beach—will be opened next to the Center early in 1965.

In addition to the hotel, which will be operated by private interests, Grilikhes also disclosed that new acts are planned for the lavish Polynesian revue which highlights Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights in the Center's 750-seat amphitheater.

For those who really want to get into the swing, there is a gourmet meal consisting of 25 courses of traditional dishes from the various islands and priced at $2.50 per person. Visitors can watch the dishes being prepared.

Reservations are required for the 25-course "pupu" (that's Polynesian for banquet) and the evening musical and dance spectacle, "A Night in Polynesia."

Admission price to the Center itself is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Included in the price is a guided tour, extemporaneous dancing by Tahitian and other Polynesian maidens, crafts demonstrations and visits with natives inside their huts.

Transportation from Waikiki is provided by travel agents or can be arranged by calling the Center's Waikiki bureau.

Demonstrations range from poi-pounding and tapa-making to carving and weaving of venetian-type blinds with the leaves of coconut palms.

Crafts native to the six island cultures are made to order while you wait. Also available at the Center's thatched - roof gift shop are ready-made souvenirs and sure-fire conversation pieces, including precisely - detailed miniature war canoes and honest - to - goodness Samoan swords.

Nearly 250 entertainers participate in the Polynesian revue. Last year 136 Maori singers and dancers toured the mainland United States. Now a world tour of Polynesian performers is planned for 1965.

Grilikhes, a motion picture producer, said the tours will be an annual program. He and his wife, actress Laraine Day, both Mormons, devoted much of their energies last summer to the non-profit Center, an educational project of the Pacific Board of Education and the Mormon Church.

American and foreign airlines fly direct to Honolulu from San Francisco and Los Angeles. The flight by jet plane takes about five hours. It's about 4½ days by ship from West Coast ports.

ELMONT, N.Y. (AP) — Conn McCreary, the former jockey who won two Kentucky Derbys (Pensive in 1944 and Count Turf in 1951, would like to get a few more thoroughbreds to train.

McCreary had been the temporary trainer of six horses owned by Houston's John Mecom but recently they were returned to Mecom's farm.

State Mineral Production to Be About Same

DENVER (AP) — The value of mineral production in Colorado this year should be about the same as the $340.8 million figure for 1963 production.

G. A. Franz Jr., state mines commissioner, made the estimate. He said production of gold, silver, lead and zinc should show increases to offset a decline in petroleum output.

Franz said an increase in the price of silver to $1.29 an ounce from 90 cents has not resulted in as many mines reopening as was hoped for, but he still feels that the state is in for a silver boom.

"There is no question but that our silver reserves and developed deposits are at least equal to what has been previously mind," he said.

Franz said there is a worldwide shortage of silver and so far no substitute has been found, "which would indicate that the silver price will rise to perhaps double its present value."

He also believes that the price of gold, now $35 an ounce, will rise—that it cannot be held to the present figure "without jeopardizing world credit, if not our own monetary system."

"Sooner or later, through application of the old law of supply and demand, gold will follow silver in an upward swing," Franz said.

World demands for copper, lead and zinc, he predicted, will lead to price increases that will cause other Colorado mines to resume production.

Franz said he believes at least a third of the 30,000 mining properties in the state that have produced gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc "are possible profitable producers if we can only command a price that will support mining costs."

Colorado now employs about 15,000 in mining, compared to about 40,000 at the turn of the century. Franz said 1,100 are working in metal mining, 2,300 in molybdenum, 4,500 in uranium mining and milling, 3,668 in mineral fuels, and more than 4,000 in quarries and miscellaneous mining.

Modern equipment and improved techniques, Franz said, enable one man to produce seven times the tonnage produced by a miner in 1900.

In Washington, officials of the Area Redevelopment Administration said the use of up-to-date technological methods could expand employment in Colorado and other mining states.

They said a new blast furnace developed by the Imperial Smelting Refining Process, Ltd. of England could be used to advantage, especially in zinc production. The furnace, developed in 1960, is in use in a number of countries but not in the United States.

The ARA officials said construction of such a furnace in Colorado could increase metal production to more than $35 million a year.

They said the furnace also salvages metal byproducts now lost in current refining process-

Sailor Arrives Home to Find Family Dead

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)— The packages are under the gaily-decorated Christmas tree Three stockings hang from the wall. But tragedy, not Santa Claus, visited the home of sailor Thomas Sprouse.

Sprouse, 28, arrived home Wednesday from a pre-Christmas visit, with his parents in Des Moines, Iowa, and found his wife and their three children dead.

Investigators said the family apparently was asphyhiated by an unvented gas heater that was still burning.

Mrs. Shirley Mae Sprouse, 23, was found kneeling beside the bed of her daughter, Diana Lynn, 7, in a downstairs bedroom. Sons Tom Derrel Jr., 6, and Stephen Derrel, 3, were found dead in their upstairs bedroom.

Detectives said the family might have been dead five days. No one in the Navy housing project where they lived had seen them since last Friday.

Investigators theorized that from the position of Mrs. Sprouse, she might have been trying to arouse her daughter when she was overcome.

Sprouse, overcome with grief, summoned police and then was taken to nearby Terminal Island naval base by a Navy chaplain.

Economics and Politics May Plague Comsat

By RICHARD L. GRAVES
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Launching a switchboard into space to relay sound and pictures may be the least of the big problems of the communications Satellite Corp. in 1965.

For while the mechanics of orbiting a satellite 22,300 miles above the earth are complex, that program is only one of three major spheres that will strongly influence the corporation's future.

The other two are the closely related areas of economics and politics.

Apart from the launching of a satellite, problems that will face the corporation in the new year include —Development of international machinery for control of communications between the 20 nations participating in the system. With that will come problems of allocating costs and revenues.

—Establishment of fees for use of satellite communications channels. Fees probably will become involved in international discussion later.

The corporation and the Federal Communications Commission will inaugurate discussions of federally regulated rates for satellite service early in the new year. The schedule is expected to be set by the time satellite service begins.

—Determination of cost levels. Such a determination can only be based on actual launching and satellite operation experience. But linked to costs is the whole question of rates, revenues and profit potential.

—Speculation in the company's stock. If Comsat stock prices continue to gyrate as they have in recent weeks, there is a possibility that the Securities and Exchange Commission will investigate. The FCC already is conducting an unofficial investigation.

Of the three spheres — mechanical, political and economic — the most orderly so far has been the mechanical.

This week Comsat signed a $3.5-million contract with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for launching of its so-called "Early Bird" commercial satellite as soon as possible after March 1. Commercial service is expected to start about two months after launching. The target date for permanent, full-scale commercial service in 1967.

The Early Bird will have 240 communications channels.

The advantage of satellites versus cables is cost of installation. To produce and launch a satellite — once techniques have shaken down — probably will cost less than $10 million. Installation of cable on a transcontinental or transoceanic basis costs hundreds of millions.

The Hughes Tool Co. is preparing satellites under a contract of between $6,335,000 and $10,835,000, depending on how long the space switchboards operate during an 18-month period.

The flexible contract illustrates one of the economic problems facing Comsat — how to determine specific costs on which to base rate schedules.

Even if initial revenues fall short of operations costs, Comsat apparently has an ample cushion of funds.

The company issues its stock to the public last June at $20 a share, after Congress authorized establishment of the company the previous year. The stock sale produced a net of about $196 million. Half of Comsat's 10 million shares are owned by major communications and electronics companies directly involved in the satellite program. The other 5 million shares are owned by about 200,000 individuals.

Two Million Visit Rocky Mountain Park

ESTES PARK (AP) — Supt. Granville B. Liles says approximately 2 million persons visited Rocky Mountain National Park this year, a record.

He said they may have spent as much as $50 million in the region.

The 50th anniversary of the establishment of the park will be celebrated next July 16. A new visitors center at Fall River Pass will be dedicated at the same time.

Lilies said of the 2 million visitors in 1964, probably 200,000 camped in the park for a total of 450,000 days. He said about $8 million has been spent on projects in the park and recreation area since 1956.

Russians Arrive for International Hockey

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

For the first time since the 1960 Olympics, three of the world's most mighty powers of amateur hockey will battle it out on American ice during the six-night International Tournament at the Broadmoor World Arena starting this Saturday night.

Russia, Canada and Czechoslovakia, the top trio from the last Olympics of 1964, will start their double round-robin play this weekend for the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy. Each team will play the others twice during the week-long tourney at the World Arena — the site of the '62 World Hockey Tournament.

During the World meet, however, Russia and Czechoslovakia were missing because of a political boycott over trouble in Berlin. So this will be the first time these teams will have squared off against each other in the U. S. since the Olympics at Squaw Valley.

Scheduled to arrive late Thursday from Canada were the Russians, early favorites to win the Brown trophy, which is given in memory of the late Boston promoter of hockey and a close friend of the Broadmoor's president Thayer Tutt. The Soviets are to work out at the World Arena today and again on Saturday before their opening game against the Czechs on Saturday night.

Faceoff time for each of the six games is slated for 8:15 p.m. and there are reports that ticket sales have increased over the past few days and that goodly crowds should be on hand for all the games.

Unlike the World Tournament here in 1962, every one of the contests in this unique meet should be of top caliber. While the World tourney, without the Russians and Czechs, had several lop-sided games, each of the pairings this next week is expected to be of championship class.

Each victory will be worth two points in the tourney standings, and a tie one point. In the event two teams finish with the same number of points, the winner will be the team scoring the most goals and allowing the fewest.

All three teams coming here have players from their 1964 Olympic squads, but the team expected to show the most improvement is the Canadians who just last year began a new system of selection for the national team. In the past the Canadians have used a team that played the regular season together, but for the Olympics and in this tournament an all-star squad will be playing and undoubtedly they will have had more experience than for the Games at Innsbruck, Austria.

However, the Russians are favored here — especially following their highly successful exhibition swing through Canada this month. The Soviet Olympians come to Colorado Springs with a record of seven victories and a tie against "loaded" teams in the land of the Maple Leaf. They finished up with a 9-7 win over Trail, British Columbia, on Wednesday night after disposing of several other squads beefed up with professionals out of the Canadian leagues and the National Hockey League.

Experts have compared the caliber of play expected during this International Tournament with that of the NHL, the finest hockey in the world.

Russia has plainly dominated the amateur hockey scene for the last few years, and if successful here will undoubtedly also be the favorite in March of 1965 when the next World Tournament is held at Helsinki, Finland.

The Soviets won the World crown in 1963 and followed with a triumph in the 1964 Olympics, duplicating its victory in the 1956 Games. Sweden won the World meet here at the Broadmoor in '62, but Russia was favored until the team withdrew along with the Czechs at the last minute.

Of the three teams entered, only Czechoslovakia has never appeared here before. Little is known of this team this year, except that they lost two close decisions to Russia just before the Soviets left for this month's tour of Canada. However, before the last Olympics, the Czechs were considered the best amateur team in the world — but in the past the team has followed a pattern of storming through early games but folding in the stretch. It should be interesting to see if they can upset the Russians in the opener on Saturday and hold on to the finish of this week-long series.

Besides the first night's game between the Russians and Czechs this Saturday, the schedule calls for the USSR to play Canada for the first time Sunday night, then the favorites will meet Czechoslovakia again on Tuesday and the Canadians again Wednesday night. Canada and Czechoslovakia meet Monday and Thursday nights.

In addition to the hockey games, there will also be the state speed skating championships, figure skating exhibitions, and ski events next week.

Welcome Change

Tuesday night visitors to the Palmer Gymnasium must have been surprised to discover they had wandered into a basketball game by mistake! It's true that the athletic dispute between Palmer and Air Academy High had been advertised as some sort of hoop-la having to do with a round ball, but, as most sports enthusiasts will tell you, what the fans really pay for is to hear the referees blow their whistles.

Now if this hypothesis seems far-fetched, remember that basketball is a spectator sport. Thus, if the spectators are in tune with the present trend in tooting, then there must be something attractive about whistle music.

However, since sports writers are generally credited with tin ears anyhow, it should come as no surprise that I continue to belabor the point raised in Wednesday's report of the Palmer-Academy High contest. The notion is obviously outmoded, but I persist in enjoying the game of basketball when it is played under its original design. Under this former structure the referee was charged with the role of arbitrating, but as inconspicuously as possible.

Officiating these days has become a sort of noisy spectacular. A good many referees are content with simply blowing themselves into exhaustion but there is a recent fetish, which is becoming increasingly popular, that involves a certain amount of aerial gymnastics. Practicioners of this art can be expected to descend on a violator from an altitude of several feet, or whatever distance is consistent with the referee's jumping abilities.

This leaping onto the scene, as it might be termed, usually carries with it a good deal of animotion, particularly involving the facial muscles and the flailing of arms. Somewhere during all this exercise, the official still manages to blow his whistle.

If this trend continues to catch on, it is quite possible that the day is approaching when we will need to have substitutes for referees. After all, players are frequently summoned to the bench for relaxation despite the fact that they generally spend about half the game time in an immobile position along the free throw lane.

Officials are usually burdened with a few more years than the athletes and if they are to be called on to perform gymnastic feats as well as toot a half-hundred times or so per night, it is only fair that first aide be available, at least in the form of relief from the sidelines.

JOHN DELVENTHAL
Kadets' Coach

Such speculation may be taking the officials to task a little unfairly. Especially, since considering the demeanor of most present day crowds — and coaches, it takes a man of rigid conviction and usually mild manner to absorb the abuse directed his way without committing at least one homicide per quarter.

But a portion of the predicament is of their own making. Since they have become such a conspicuous part of the contest and their decisions can be so influential in deciding the outcome, it is natural that the majority of partisans are going to direct any blame toward this outside element rather than fault their own team.

It is a single case of fact that most basketball games today are decided at the free throw line. The implementation of such rules as the one-and-one in addition to the extremely close policing of the referees has turned what was once an exciting showcase for athletic skill into a test of ability to shoot from one spot.

With the exception of Tuesday night's phenomenon, virtually every basketball game I've seen this winter has been directly decided by a team's performance at the free throw line. During one evening of high school inaction, a total of 130 fouls were called over the "B" and "A" contests. School officials were beginning to fear that the varsity game might run into Monday morning classes before that marathon had ended.

In brief, the supposed function of the referee is to legislate against one team (or individual) taking unfair advantage of the other. Along these lines, there are far too many fouls called today on maneuvers that do not actually impede the progress of play or penalize either club. These are the ones which could be eliminated to restore the continuous flow of action, an element which was once one of the game's best selling points.

The result would be a much more attractive product for the spectator, and in the long run, a much easier time for the official. If he doesn't insist on making the game of a type where his decisions are going to be responsible for the outcome — then it follows that he will

AFL Title Depending On Weather

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) —The title-hungry Buffalo Bills faced the defending-champion San Diego Chargers Saturday for the American Football League championship in a game that could be decided largely on weather factors.

The Bills are rated eight-point picks, mainly because they withstood a blinding snowstorm to defeat the Boston Patriots 24-14 Sunday for the Eastern Division crown.

The Chargers, fresh from sunny California and its 60-degree temperature, must adjust to the frigid conditions of a city set on the shores of temperamental Lake Erie.

Thus for, the weatherman has refused to forecast on the outlook for the game. A warm front has enveloped Buffalo the past three days, but it was expected to abandon the city before Saturday.

More than 41,000 fans are expected to pack War Memorial Stadium in hopes of watching Buffalo earn its first AFL crown since the league was formed five years ago. A nationwide television audience, with the immediate Buffalo vicinity blacked out, also will view the game.

Coach Lou Saban of Buffalo, highly impressed with Jack Kemp's sterling performance in Boston on a field blanketed with snow, has indicated he will go with the 10-year veteran quorterback. Kemp once starred for the chargers, but was lifted from their midst for a $100 waiver prices.

Sid Gillman, the San Diego coach, hasn't decided who will pilot the Chargers. Veteran Tobin Rote handled the signal-calling chores at the season's outset, but John Hadl paced them to five straight midseason triumphs. Rote is expected to start.

For ground-gaining, Saban can relay on Cookie Gilchrist, the AFL's leading rusher with 981 yards. Wray Carlton, a hefty 220-pounder, fills Buffalo's other running-bock slot.

Paul Lowe and Keith Lincoln churn out yardage on the ground for the Chargers, but here's where the weather enters the scene. Lowe, a fleet 205-pounder, may have problems if the turf at War Memorial Stadium is frozen at game time, a likely possibility. Gillman has been thinking of substituting more weight for Lowe in the form of 250-pound Jacques McKinnon.

The final outcome could hinge on the condition of Lance Alworth's knee, injured in San Diego's 21-20 loss to Oakland Sunday. The speedy flanker leads the league in touchdowns with 16. He worked out sparingly this week.

Buffalo has a pair of fleet pass receivers of its own. Elbert Dubenion and Glenn Bass proved to be San Diego's downfall when the Bills mauled the Chargers in their first encounter this season, 30-3.

The Bills then bounced back after Boston snapped their nine-game winning streak and edged San Diego 27-24 on the West Coast. Pete Gogolak's last-minute field goal was the difference in that one, a fact well worth noting in predicting the title game winner.

Inexperienced Lincoln boots the three pointers for the Chargers. Gogolak, a rookie, kicked 19 field goals in his soccer-style fashion on the way to second place in league scoring with 102 points.

The Chargers bring an 8-5-1 won-lost-tie record into the title game. Buffalo lost twice in 14 games.

Closest Arkansas came to defeat in football during 1964 was the Razorbacks' 14-13 win over Texas.

Irresistible Forces Meet In North-South Grid Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The quarterback duel between a pair of Heisman Trophy winners, Roger Staubach of Navy and John Huarte of Notre Dame, highlights the North-South Shrine game in Miami Friday, setting off nine days of intensified college football activity.

Professional scouts will be drooling at the mouth when hand-picked college stars, including many of the season's brightest stars, clash at 3 p.m., EST, in the Orange Bowl. A crowd of 35,000 is expected with millions of others watching the action on television (ABC).

Staubach, acclaimed the nation's outstanding college player in 1963 as a junior at Navy, is a member of the South squad, along with Jerry Rhome, who shattered almost every passing record in the book at Tulsa.

Huarte, the sharpshooter who led the Fighting Irish through nine straight victories before losing to Southern California, pitches for the North. He will have help from Army's ace signal-caller, Rollie Stichweh.

In addition to the battle of these personalities, the game also offers a post-season renewal of the rivalry between Army's Coach Paul Dietzel and Navy's recently resigned Wayne Hardin.

Dietzel is one of the coaches of the North squad, along with Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian. Hardin coaches the South.

A player who conceivably could attract more notice than any of the blue ribbon quarterbacks is Bob Hayes, the Florida A&M comet and Olympic gold medalist.

The world's fastest human is on the South squad, a target for the bullets of Staubach and Rhome. The North hopes to cover the Olympic whiz with Herman Johnson of Michigan State, a lightning quick defensive specialist.

The Christmas Day spectacle will be followed with two other games Saturday—the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Ala., another all-star presentation.

The Sun Bowl matches Georgia, one of the season's surprise teams with a 6-3-1 record, and Texas Tech, which also went 6-3-1 against the always rugged Southwest competition. The 4 p.m., EST, game will be televised by NBC.

There is no television for the Blue-gray, starting at 2 p.m.

Holiday Spirit Reaches Broke Olympic Champ

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gifts, job offers, a call from the mayor. It was a busy day for Olympic heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

A newspaper story Thursday said Frazier and his family faced a bleak Christmas. His savings were almost depleted, and because of a broken thumb he hasn't been able to work since he came home from Japan and the Olympics in October.

Actually, the 21-year-old Frazier hasn't received a paycheck since the first week in September when he left for the Olympic training camp on the West Coast.

He broke his thumb in the Olympic semifinals, and still won the title by defeating Hans Huber of Germany.

Frazier said gifts for himself, his wife, and three children, ages 14-months, 3 and 4, poured into the small home in Philadelphia.

"The mayor called and asked me to come see him after Christmas about a job," Frazier said.

He was so exicted that he couldn't recall what seven or eight other job offers were all about. He said, however, that they all were better than the meat packing house job he has held.

What kind of gifts did he receive?

"They've been coming in all day," he said. "We have been throwing them under the tree; can't open them until Christmas you know."

He confirmed there was money in envelopes, but said he hadn't counted it.

One Pennsylvania radio station called The Associated Press and asked for Frazier's address. It wanted to send a basket of fruit and gifts for the kids.

A disc jockey on an early morning radio show announced that a man had come in off the street and handed him $20 for Frazier. The "jockey" said he would put another $20 to it.

Frazier's hand has been in a cast for two months, and it won't be well enough until at least February for him to go back to his slaughterhouse job. Now, he doubts he'll go back, not with some of the offerers received hanging fire. The meat firm, incidentally, sent him $100 a few weeks ago. He used it to buy gifts for his wife and children.

"It wasn't very much," he said. "I wanted to let the kids know that daddy is still around."

Lakers Sue Pay-TV Firm For 250 Grand

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association are asking $250,000 in a breach of contract suit against Subscription Television of California, Inc.

The Superior Court action, filed Wednesday by the Minneapolis Basketball Corp., owner of the Lakers, also asks that the television firm bear the costs of prosecuting the suit.

According to the complaint, Subscription Television agreed in a contract signed Aug. 4, 1964 to pay $300,000 for the right to televise Laker games to its customers for two seasons.

Last Nov. 3, California voters outlawed pay television in the state through passage of an initiative measure on the subject.

The Lakers contend they were to be paid in installments of $25,000 and that only two of these were received. They are seeking the balance of the contract money.

All told, 77 games were to have been televised to home viewers having the appropriate receiving equipment — starting with 38 games this season.

Tough Guys Melt In Shrine Hospital

By DEREK SCHOEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gale Sayers, the All-America halfback from Kansas, has earned a lot of plaudits in his football career.

But he'll likely remember the compliment he got from an audience of one — a 10-year-old crippled boy named Allan — long after he's forgotten the roar of a packed stadium.

"I've read all about you, Gale, and you're the best," Allen told Sayers.

Sayers is one of 48 grid stars who will play in the 40th annual East-West Shrine Game on Jan. 2 at Kezar Stadium. Wednesday the players visited the Shriners Hospital for crippled children, recipient of the funds the game will raise. The visit is as old as the game itself.

Each of the players was assigned to a particular youngster. And as Washington State defensive back Clarence Williams soon learned, the kids may be down but they're far from out.

"See this black eye," chirped 10-year-old Robert as Williams strolled up to his bed. "I got it in a fight."

Before Williams could answer, Robert was out of his bed. "Follow me," he said, "I'll show you all around."

"What are you, Cassius Clay or something?" Williams kidded as Robert led off the tour, using crutches to pull his useless legs behind him.

All-America guard Steve DeLong of Tennessee grabbed everyone within reach to show them the little leather case 9-year-old Penny had made for him.

Penny, who can't walk because his hips are deformed, beamed shyly as DeLong assured her the case was beautiful and he'd keep it to remind him of her.

"I've got my own bat and ball at home," 9-year-old Cathy assured All-America end Harold Wells of Purdue. "That's fine, that's fine," said Wells as he stole a look at her twisted legs.

Malcolm Walker, a mammoth linebacker from Rice, didn't waste many words. He simply picked up 7-year-old Mike — who has metal hooks for hands — and held him closely.

Dick Ragsdale, a defensive back from Stanford, seemed embarrassed by all the attention he was getting from 9-year-old Billy. He offered to get Billy some autographs "from some of the other guys — especially the All-Americas."

Finally it was time to go, and the players straggled reluctantly out of the wards.

"I'll be rooting for you," one of the children yelled to a burly friend.

"Yeah," mumbled the player, "and I'll be rooting for you."

Barry Aims To Retain Top Position

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Barry of the University of Miami (Fla.) is leading major college basketball players in scoring, but he's keeping his fingers crossed.

The 6-foot-7 senior from Roselle Park, N.J., remembers last season when he got off to a quick start, led through the early weeks and then tapered off to finish fifth behind national champion Howard Komives of Bowling Green.

In leading the Hurricanes to six victories in eight games through Dec. 19, Barry has maintained a 36.3 average.

That's good enough to put him ahead of the pack, with Wayne Estes of Utah State second with 32.7. Henry Finkel of Dayton climbed from fourth to third with 31.8.

Estes continues as the best free throw specialist with 41 of 42 tries for a .976 percentage. Finkel is best from the field. He's hit 77 baskets in 110 pops for a gaudy .700 mark.

Baylor's Ed Horne has leaped from 16th to second in the free throw race with a .926 average. Kirby Pugh of West Texas State follows Finkel in proficiency from the floor. His average is .662.

A sophomore, Keith Swagerty of the University of Pacific, has taken over first place in the rebounding ladder, according to statistics of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau. He is averaging 22.2 grabs a game. Last week's pace setter, Toby Kimball of Connecticut, dropped to third behind East Tennessee State's Jim Woods, 21.7 to 22.0.

The biggest shakeup was in the team's scoring competition. Utah vaulted into first place with a 96.1 average as Baylor slipped to fourth. Indiana came from below the top 20 to fifth place with a surge that put the Hoosiers into fifth place with a 93.6 mark.

New Mexico tightened its hold on defensive honors, holding Hayward State to 36 points.

KU's Wesley Leads Big 8 Scorers

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas' 6-foot-11 Walt Wesley is the Big Eight's top scorer going into the Holiday Tournament and his teammate backliner Del Lewis, is the hottest shooter. But for all-around excellence, it's Jim King of Oklahoma State.

The 6-foot-6 King is the only Big Eight player ranking among the leaders in four categories—scoring, rebounding, field shooting accuracy and foul shooting accuracy.

Wesley bombed St. John's for 36 points at New York Monday, lifting his season average to 21.3 points a game. Jeff Simons, Kansas State's 6-5 senior, and sophomore Fred Hare of Nebraska are tied at 18.

Rugged Ned Monsees of Missouri, held to 15 points in Missouri's 78-73 defeat at Southern Methodist Wednesday night, is the No. 4 scorer with a 17.1 average.

Lewis is shooting a sizzling .577 pace from the field, having hit 41 of 71 shots. Nate Branch, Nebraska sophomore, is second at .545.

Missouri's George Flamank has the best rebound average, with King second at 10.4 and Bob Antulov of Nebraska third at 10.1.

King is sixth in field shooting at .517, fourth in foul shooting with .814 and 16th in scoring on an 11.9 average.

Simons is the top foul shooter at .875. Jim Gatewood of Oklahoma is second with .833 and Pat Frink of Colorado third with .829.

Shooting accuracy from the field is the best in conference history so far, with the entire Big Eight shooting .433. This is 20 points better than the record .413 in 1962. Colorado, with .389, is the only team under .400 and K-State is seventh with .415. Iowa State leads with .461.

Pat Frink, a somphomore, is the No. 6 scorer with a 14.4 average, and his brother, Mike, is tied with Branch for 12th at 12.5.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, who came close to winning a baseball championship, are going to be rooting for the Colts Sunday to cop a football title. And they'll pay to do it.

Santa Late for Colts, Browns

BY LOU MIO
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND— (AP) — Christmas is Dec. 27 as far as the Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns are concerned.

That's the date of the National Football League championship game in Municipal Stadium, and Santa will leave over $8,000 in each winner's stocking. Each loser will receive over $5,000.

Radio and television receipts are $1.8 million.

The game will be witnessed by about 83,000 here, an attendance drop in the bucket when compared with the television audience scattered over 98.1 per cent of the country and into Canada, where 30 French-language stations will be among those telecasting the action.

Kickoff is 1:30 p.m., EST. The Weather Bureau predicts temperatures in the upper 20s or low 30s, but as of Thursday no snow is forecast.

The colts have been a 6-to-7-point favorites for about a week now.

The outcome could hang on several questions.

Can the Browns' defensive line get to Colts' quarterback Johnny Unitas, considered the best flinger in the NFL?

Can the colts contain fullback Jim Brown, the league's leading rusher and also considered the finest in his trade?

How about the receivers?

The browns must handle flanker Jimmy Orr and ends Ray Berry and John Mackey.

Baltimore will meet rookie flanker Paul Warfield for the first time. The former Ohio State halfback who has earned double coverage by many NFL teams. Also, the visitors can't neglect flanker Gary Collins or end Johnny Brewer, two veterans who know their way around a defensive backfield with a diagram.

Cleveland's fortunes may rest in the hands of quarterback Frank Ryan, the mathematics wizard from Rice University who has engineered the Browns for two years. He has had both good and bad days in directing Cleveland to a 10-3-1 record and the Eastern Division title.

Ryan can scramble out of the pocket and statistically he appears on a par with Unitas. Frank has a 52.1 per cent completion record for 2,404 yards and 25 touchdowns.

Unitas compiled a 51.8 per cent average for 2,824 yards and 19 touchdowns during the Colts' 12-2 record and the Western Division crown. But Ryan has had 19 passes intercepted while only six of Unitas' aerials fell into enemy hands.

Unitas also has a combination runner-receiver in halfback Lenny Moore, voted by the Associated Press as Comeback Player of the Year. Moore finished as NFL scoring leader with a record 20 touchdowns. Jerry Hill is Moore's running partner, while Ernie Green shares similar duties with Brown.

Green has scored six touchdowns, one less than Brown, and has a 4.5 yard rushing average.

The Colts lead the league in two important departments. They have scored 54 touchdowns and allowed 28 while the Browns have scored 50 and allowed 36.

Baltimore has one of the lightest defensive lines in the NFL, but ends Gino Marchetti and Ordell Braase and tackles Fred Miller and Guy Reese have allowed only 1,798 yards to rushers.

The Browns are anchored up front at ends by Paul Wiggin and Bill Glass and at tackles by Dick Modzelewski and Jim Kanicki. The Cleveland defense has allowed 2,012 yards.

The Browns' offense arsenal includes Lou Groza, who has booted 22 of 33 field goal attempts, compared with Baltimore's Lou Michaels' 17-for-35 mark. Groza has the NFL record for most field goals in a championship game, 6, and for the longest, 52 yards.

The game will be a homecoming for Colts' Coach Don Shula, a native of nearby Painesville, Ohio, who was voted the NFL's Coach of the Year by the Associated Press. Shula once was an assistant to Browns' Coach Blanton Collier when Collier was at the University of Kentucky.

Collier received one of his Christmas presents early. He was signed Wednesday to a new three-year contract by Art Modell, club president.

This will be the Browns' first appearance in a championship game since 1957 after appearing in six straight winner-take-all contests from 1950-55. Their playoff record is 4-3.

Baltimore has been in two playoffs — beating the New York Giants in 1958 and 1959.

Barring a drastic change in the weather, the stadium turf should be in excellent shape. The Browns have criss-crossed the field with gas-heated blowers under the tarpaulin.

Lakers Don't Expect to Get Wilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Los Angeles Laker General Manager Lou Mohs said Thursday he does not expect to find Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain in his Christmas stocking.

"In the first place," said Mohs, "I don't know if the San Francisco Warriors are interested in selling him. Certainly, there's a price for everything and everyone if you're willing to go high enough."

Recent rumors have stated figures ranging from $375,000 to $500,000 were offered by the Lakers for the 7-foot-1 Chamberlain and that a deal may shortly be announced.

"There's absolutely no substance to the report," Mohs said. "In fact, you might say we're withdrawing from the market at this time."

The Laker boss said it was no secret that his club is hunting for another good cornerman to assist ailing Rudy LaRusso or injury-prone Elgin Baylor.

Coach Fred Schaus told newsmen three weeks ago that he would like another backup man but that so far results had been fruitless.

Mohs also denied rumors that Laker Dick Barnett would figure in any trade or purchase deal.

"There's just no substance to it. The way Barnett ras been playing for us and the way he's contributing, it would hurt us to sell him," Mohs said.

Long Ace Reported At Broadmoor Course

A fantastic hole-in-one was reported Christmas Eve from the Broadmoor Golf Course, where Bill Johnson of Paducah, Ky., fired an ace on the first hole, some 390 yards away — and with borrowed clubs, no less!

A witness said Johnson stepped to the first tee and proceeded to not only carry the distant green, but also put the ball in the hole. Watching were playing partners Bill Viek and Charles Coder, both from Toledo, O.

Needless to say, it was the longest ace reported this year in the Pikes Peak Region.

Shooting, Rebounding Aid Terrors as Holidays Arrive

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The balanced scoring which Palmer must have if it is to seriously compete with the increasingly-proficient South Central League poked its head above ground Tuesday. Now all coach Roger O'Neil and his Terrors have to do is get a stranglehold on it.

Palmer clipped Air Academy High, 65-52, Tuesday night in the best-balanced scoring-rebounding game since the first of the season. Bob Pearson, whose previous four efforts had been incohesive, found his shooting touch in the week before the game and ripped 25 points through the nets.

Bill McCalvy, 5-11 forward, had dominated Palmer's three previous outings with a total of 82 points. He cashed a creditable 16 points against the Kadets. Ed Fitzgerald, 6-5 center, added 14.

The Terrors had not seen much even shooting since they dropped a 64-63 startler to Lamar. In that game four Tribesmen scored ten points or better.

O'Neil was not overjoyed by his team's performance against AAH, but thought there were a few bright spots.

"Wade Exum played well, I thought. He's only a sophomore, but he might see some action later. And Fitzgerald really had a fine night on the boards. Pearson played a lot better game than he has been."

But O'Neil said he would like better performances from outside, an understandable reaction. The Terrors will be meeting strong inside teams in SCL competition.

"I can't take anything away from the Air Academy. They were really up for this game and that Bert Spear did a fine job for them. But I believe our defense should have held their scoring down."

Free throw shooting, an early problem with Palmer, showed up Tuesday as off its form as it has been? The Terrors managed only five of 16, with Pearson and Exum accounting for all those points in perfect nights at the stripe.

Fitzgerald had it all his way on the boards against the scrappy but short Kadets. The big sophomore took off 19 carons, high for the season. The Air Academy has no one over 6-2 and couldn't reach Fitzgerald.

Pearson's honor-gathering night pushed him into second place for team scoring. The 6-1 senior has now averaged 12.6 points a game, behind McCalvy's lowered 22.6 average.

Fitzgerald took over rebounding honors from McCalvy with 59. McCalvy has 51.

O'Neil seems almost eager to get into SCL play, despite his team's 3-2 record, which could as easily have been 5-0, and despite the fact Palmer meets three of the toughest Pueblo schools in the first two weeks.

The Terrors open at Pueblo South Jan. 8 before returning home the following weekend for games against Centennial and Central.

"We need those three games right off," O'Neil prophesies. "With two of them on our home court, we stand a good chance of coming out ahead, if we can shape up both our offense and defense."

Palmer has not lost on its home court thus far, but has failed to win on the road. The two losses have come by a total of three points.

not so frequently be the target of concentrated wrath.

This was the policy in force Tuesday night and I can't believe that either team was unduely penalized by the fact that only 24 fouls were called. At least if they were, coaches John Delvanthal and Roger O'Neil are usually restrained young men!

But that was only a brief skirmish and the war is obviously too far out of hand for the musings of a few assorted sportswriters and other diehards to have any effect.

Still, it's kind of a shame. Basketball was a lot of fun back in the days when there were 10 participants instead of 12!

Bargain Rate Photo Hobby Is Discussed

United Press International

Photography as a hobby often has been maligned with the label: Too Expensive. How often have you heard a conversation like this?

Eager teen-ager: "I'm going to take up photography as a hobby. I think I'll enjoy it. It's challenging and, I think, rewarding."

Sour adult: "Photography? Boy, have you any idea how much it costs to engage in a hobby like that?"

Teen-ager: "Well, not thoroughly. But I don't expect to use very expensive equipment."

Adult: "In photography, son, there's no such thing as inexpensive equipment. Why the camera alone may cost you $100 or more. . ."

And so on. But the youth is right in this case and the sour gentleman wrong.

As a matter of fact, photography today is available at bargain rates. Talk of the good old days when a roll of film was a few cents and a camera cost $4 obscures some of the other realities of yesteryear. Namely, quality.

Today there are on the market cameras that are exceedingly low priced that are capable of producing much sharper pictures than the $4 predecessors.

Films have improved vastly along with printing papers that give quality prints that were undreamed of not too many years ago.

In the past if someone wanted a color photograph they went to an expert and paid a handsome price for one print. Today literally hundreds of thousands of amateurs are taking portraits in color for a fraction of the cost of that single print of years ago.

Inexpensive cameras today come equipped with color corrected lenses, which weren't even heard of when Father was taking snapshots with the old Box Brownie.

They come equipped with built in flash reflectors, doubled-exposure prevention, film counters and other refinements.

Films have been improved in color rendition and, in speed in availability and in top quality processing.

Black and white films are available now that are so fast that it often is necessary to place a filter over the lens to block out light if one wants to use them in bright light.

The speed of these films have made available light photographs an around the clock, graphs an around the clock possibility. Day or night you can take pictures without flash —the light of a match or candle is sufficient.

Photography can be an expensive hobby, but it doesn't have to be. By carefully selecting equipment, the beginner can hold costs to a minimum and still take acceptable pictures in either color or black and white immediately.

For in addition to all the features that have been added to camera in the modest price range there is one other: automation. Some of these cameras (selling for as little as $14) are pre-focused, and pre-set. All the beginner has to do is put in the film, "aim" at the subject and trip the shutter.

A quick trip to the film processor and in a reasonable time you have your slides or prints back. Actually, it all seems rather miraculous.

PEDRO WAS A ROOKIE STAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Pedro Ramos, whose relief pitching helped right the sagging Yankee bullpen in the closing days of the American League pennant race, was a 19-game winner as a rookie minor leaguer in 1954.

Ramos, a native of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, pitched for three teams that year. He had a 15-4 record for his combined efforts with Morristown and Kingsport in the Mountain States League and a 4-2 mark with Hagerstown in the Piedmont League.

NATURE NOTES

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

HOLLYWOOD — The crash of '29 brought this classic headline from Variety's great Sime Silverman: "Wall street lays an egg." Now 35 years later, Al Sharper, Variety's city editor, matches it with: "Notre Dame Punts; 20th Prays."

Phil Silver gave me this one. "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum" was written for him, but he didn't think much of it and turned it down: "I didn't know what George Abbott was going to do with it." But if you live right, the tables turn, and they have Phil will star in the movie version to be made in England next August. "I'm in big trouble at home," he added. "I took Evelyn to school to hear the kids sing Christmas carols and there were many boys in the chorus. Now she wants one," They have five girls.

Connie Francis, played Santa Claus to 5-year-old Stephen Cirielo of Greece, N.Y. The little boy, who's suffering from leukemia, met Connie when she was doing a night club engagement a month or so ago and when she learned his biggest wish was to see Disneyland, she flew him and his mother out for two weeks. They stayed at the Disneyland hotel and saw everything. Connie picked up the tab. I got the story from Irving Case, a bartender at Linny's in Beverly, a cousin of Stephen's mother.

Janet Blair as Peter Pan, Vincent Price as Captain Hook, and the enire company at the Valley Music Theater were simply great opening night. Doing that musical play in a round theater is an achievement, but everything worked — especially the actors. The children in the audience were adorable. I couldn't keep my eyes off a 5-year-old who stood and repeated what was being done onstage. When this old girl laps it up for the fourth time starting with Maude Adams, Jean Arthur, Mary Martin, and now Janet, it's good. When I congratulated her after the performance, she was sobbing like a baby. So was her mother. Her relatives had flown in from Altoona and she didn't know they were there until the show ended.

Gilbert Roland loaded his car with toys, his wife and daughter Lorinda, and set out for Mexico City and Oaxaco. Every Christmas he distributes presents to needy children. He's always promised his sculptress daughter (she won the Tiffany and Guggenheim awards) a trip south of the border and this is the first time he's been able to make good. She refused to go with anybody else. "We're in good shape at our house," he told me. "My wife paints, my daughtr sculpts, and I act and write."

Eleanor Powell cleaned house again, meaning her romance with that business man is ended. "If you keep sweeping clean, there's going to be nothing left," I told her. "I'm a slow worker," said she. Australia wants Eleanor for four months beginning in May. She's tempted but hates leaving her son, Peter. I'll wager she'll find a way to take him along.

Julie Andrews called the rumor that she and husband, Tony Walton were separating "beastly." She didn't laugh it off — she was furious. "I suppose it's bound to happen since he's in New York designing a road company of 'Golden Boy' and I'm here." Tony will be home for Christmas.

Joe E. Lewis declares 1965 will be his last year. He's retiring. He'll work with Frank Sinatra at the Eden Roc in Miami in mid - January for 2 weeks, then at the Sands in Las Vegas. Sinatra pushed his picture back until March so Dean Martin could finish the John Wayne film for Hal Wallis.

Bob Horton, who led that "Wagon Train" for years, swore he'd never do another western. Well, like all actors he changed his mind, and starts another western series, with E. Jack Neuman who gave us "Mr. Novak."

Helper Becomes Railroad Chief

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former Coloradan who began work for the Union Pacific Railroad at the age of 17 as a helper in the car department at Cheyenne, Wyo., Tuesday was named presidnt of the company.

Elected to the post effective Jan. 1 was Edd H. Bailey, '60. Bailey, chief executive officer of the transportation division since last January, succeeds retiring Arthur E. Stoddard.

Bailey, who grew up on a homestead in northeastern Colorado, worked his way up as a machinist helper in a roundhouse and shops, special agent, brakeman, conductor, trainmaster and assistant superintendent.

Between 1945 and 1950, he was successively superintendent of the Nebraska and Wyoming divisions. In 1950 he was named general superintendent of the eastern district with headquarters in Cheyenne and in 1952 he was transferred to Portland, Ore., in the same capacity.

He was named general manager of the northwest district in 1953 and the following year was transferred to Omaha as Eastern district general manager. He was appointed vice president in charge of operations on April 1, 1957.

Bailey, married and the father of two, was born Sept. 13, 1904, at Elmo, Mo., and moved to Colorado in 1910.

His mother, five brothers and two sisters now live in Cheyenne.

'CHRISTMAS TREE CAPITAL'

SHELTON, Wash. (UPI) — Christmas time is the busy season of the year in this usually sleepy little town that likes to call itself "The Christmas Tree Capital of the World."

About 2.5 million fir trees to brighten Christmas decorations in cities as far away as Mexico City will be shipped from Shelton before the season is over.

It is a $4 million annual business.

Many of the town's 5,650 residents take their vacations in the late fall so they can hold extra jobs working on the trees.

Most Christmas trees nowadays come from special farms. Few are cut from wild stands of timber.

Officials of the Washington State Department of Natural Resources, which leases some state-owned land to Christmas tree farmers, contend that commercially grown trees are greener, fuller and have more rigid limbs than wild fir trees.

Shelton's economy is so linked with the Christmas tree that the town has a Santa's House as a permanent building on the main street.

Shelton children will tell you that, although Santa Claus has helpers who turn up in places like department stores, the real Santa is in the little house in the middle of their town, where he can look after his Christmas trees.

Every Avenue For Scholarship Aid Is Urged

By BOB COCHNAR

PRINCETON, N.Y. (NEA) — College doors may be closing throughout the country for some — but they're not quite shut. Young men and women who desperately want a college education and, on the surface, can't afford it, may still reach the campus.

The campus itself is just one place to look for financial assistance. Each year, universities have available more than $240 million in scholarships, loans, employment and fellowships. The federal government distributes at least $350 million annually.

There is more than $52 million in state programs. Corporations award $40 million to deserving students.

The total amount available to students is more than $720 million, which could cost more than $12,000.

High school guidance counselors, the College Scholarship Service (CSS) in Princeton, N.J., college admissions officers and the U.S. Office of Education can, at least, give the prospective college freshman an idea of what aid is available and how it and be obtained.

Studies show that parents contribute, on the average, about 50 per cent of their child's college expenses. The student pays perhaps 25 per cent. College officials urge families to explore these areas of aid sources and cost-cutting:

Student Employment — Students should be able to earn at least $300 before entering college and about $400 to $500 each summer while at school. This can amount to as much as $1,500 during the four years. Students might be able to work part time while at school.

Student Loans. — Long-term, low-interest loans have become an important auxiliary method of financing college. Americans have long been accustomed to buying on credit. Many banks offer special loans to college students, repayable after graduation.

Early Planning — A parent who puts aside in savings $30.80 a month at the time of his childs' birth will have $10,000 when that child is ready for college. But if he starts when the youth is 12, he will have to put aside $42.20 monthly to have $4,000 when the child is of college age.

Consider The College — Must Johnny or Susie go to that expensive private school if the state university's academic credentials are just as good? A student could save as much as one third the cost of his education if he goes public.

Consider The Location — Room and board often equal, even surpass, tuition. Perhaps the college in the next town will do. It might even be better than the one 800 miles away.

The Junior College — Community colleges — the two-year schools—are no longer the stepchildren of the four-year institutions. The borderline student might well be able to make his mark in the junior college and then pick up his baccalaureate degree at the university, perhaps with a financial assist from the university.

Apply For Aid Early — Rexford Moon, director of CSS, says "too many parents wait until the last minute and then discover they can't pay tuition or dormitory costs." College financial aid generally operates on a first - come, first - served basis. Aid offers are usually completed in March for September enrollment.

Study Costs—Make sure college fits the budget of the family and the students' education needs. Attempt to learn all about college financial aid programs. Parents may discover that the so-called high tuition college may cost less than a state university in the long run because of extensive aid programs.

Examine All Sources — Local Parent - Teacher associations, service clubs, labor unions, small business may offer scholarship awards. Many of these grants are small, ranging from $100 to $200. But every little bit helps.

Securing financial aid, even in small amounts, is a tedious and often nerve - racking process. All too often, after filling out lengthy and very personal financial statements, parents often wonder, "Is it really worth it?" It is. Darwin's law about survival of the fittest is put to the test in the grim struggle of financing an education.

Ed Sullivan has performed on his own television show as singer, dancer, actor, circus clown even as Red Skelton's comedy character Deadeye.

Stereo Sound For Video Is Being Sought

By PRESTON McGRAW
United Press International

The Federal Communications Commission is soliciting the feelings of broadcasters about sterephonic sound for television.

Presumably the FCC is thinking about the multiplex system used in stereo FM radio broadcasting. An FM radio channel is 75 kilocycles; 25 kilocyles of each television channel is allotted sound.

Television uses the frequency modulation system to broadcast the audio part of its programming.

The first thought of many high fidelity-oriented listeners about stereophonic sound for television probably is that receiver makers should first do something about improving the quality of the monophonic sound on the sets they now make.

At the outset of television broadcasting after World War II, some receivers were, indeed, manufactured with high quality amplifiers and speakers.

Competition became so fierce, however, that the sound systems of television sets were soon scarificed to economy. Rare is the television set nowadays that contains more than a four or five-inch speaker.

This being the case, where does this leave the television receiver maker in case the FCC authorizes stereo television sound.

Chris Irby, chief engineer for the broadcasting services of the Dallas Morning News—WFAA-TV, AM and FM—would like to see a better monaural sound system on television.

But he is sure that if the FCC approves, a lot of television stations will go for stereo sound.

In television stations, stereo sound would require installation of two of everything that has to do with getting the sound on the air, including microphones.

At television transmitters, it would require at least new exciters, the electronic instruments used to modulate the signal.

Audio engineers on televison shows would require several microphones to give the sound placement. Irby has tried two microphones lashed together at an angle of about 180 degrees with some success. It is easier, anyway, than handling separate microphones, although separate microphones give best results.

On television receivers not equipped to receive stereo sound, the sound would be monaural as the compatible FM radio multiplex system is.

Putting stereo sound on FM receivers will present some trouble. A speaker on each side of the ordinary TV set will not give much of a two-channel effect. A plug-in speaker for the second channel that can be set off five, six, seven or eight feet may be the answer.

The television station for which Irby works already has dual consoles. It built new studios in 1960 and suspecting then that stereo television sound would one day be in vogue, built in a stereo sound system.

47 States May Enact 30,000 New Laws

An estimated 30,000 new laws will be enacted in the 47 regular session of state legislatures scheduled to meet during 1965, according to Commerce Clearing House.

The expected increase in the number of new laws is based on a study of the volume of legislative activity over the past decade as well as a growing trend toward annual sessions in the various states.

Of the 47 states meeting next year, 20 will be holding annual sessions. Ten years ago, only 10 states met in annual sessions.

An estimate of the legislation for 1965—when every state but Kentucky, Mississippi and Virginia hold regular scheduled sessions—along with the amount of legislation in prior odd-numbered years is shown in the following table. Kentucky, Mississippi and Virginia are next scheduled to meet in 1966.

FINDS UNUSUAL COIN — Miss Rose Brown of San Francisco holds a 1964-D Lincoln penny "misprint" which she received in change at a local bank. She is now seeking to ascertain the value of the egg-shaped disc that caught only a portion of the coin-stamping die. Such misprints occasionally occur in the minting process, but rarely get by inspectors. Closeup at right shows the coin enclosed in a protective envelope. It is imprinted on both sides. Soldiers Share Christmas With Neighbors

By ZANDER HOLLANDER

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Along the cold-barbed-wired frontier separating communist East Germany from the free west, Santa Claus wears a uniform.

Instead of a sleigh pulled by reindeer, he drives a U.S. Army Jeep.

But it is Christmas, and that's the important thing.

The men who watch the empty miles, GI's far from home—many for the first time—will have their Christmas this year.

In a massive annual Christmas observance labelled "Operation Good Cheer," the U.S. Army and Air Force perpared to give their men an American Christmas in Europe, and to share the Yuletide festivities as in years past with their French, German, Italian, and British neighbors.

U.S. military bases all over Europe are readying celebrations, Christmas dinners, gifts, and all manner of surprises for young and old.

Commissaries, PX's and post toy-shops were stocked for record-breaking holiday rush.

The U.S. Army alone reported a staggering 172,000 lb. turkey order for its traditional Christmas Day dinner at European army camps.

The official army menu for the feast reads like a model for American Christmas dinners from Maine to Oregon: "Shrimp cocktail, roast turkey with dressing and giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, mashed and candied sweet potatoes, butter green beans, salads, olives, hot rolls, fruit cake, and a choice of mincemeat or pumpkin pie."

In addition, the army's "Operation Good Cheer" made it possible for American servicemen in Germany to take part in Christmas observances in German homes, feasting on a German Yuletide dinner of roast goose and noodles.

A spokesman for "Operation Good Cheer" explained "the program tries to make the young soldier's holiday like the one he might have spent at home with his loved ones."

Plans were under way at U. S. armed forces installations all over Europe to supply orphanages, old-age homes, and thousands of needy families with Christmas dinners, gifts and holiday fun.

Men of Ramstein Air Force Base, Germany, once again tackled with enthusiasm their pet Christmas pastime, bringing Yuletide happiness to youngsters at Riutala Orphanage in the Arctic cold 500 miles north of Helsinki, Finland, believed to be the northernmost orphan home supported by U.S. servicemen.

U.S. Air Force personnel at Bitburg Air Force Base in southern Germany scheduled Santa Claus visits for needy families and charitable institutions of all kinds, supplying thousands of dollars worth of warm winter clothing, toys, bedding, food and other necessities.

Not to be outdone by the Air Force, the U.S. Seventh Army got rolling with planned parties, tree lightings, Santa Claus visits, dinners and other festivities at its posts throughout Germany.

Seventh Army Commanding General William W. Quinn planned to visit as many troop units as his schedule permitted, to see how things were coming along, an army spokesman told UPI.

The Seventh Army planned to send its chorus on tour of "outpost" areas along the "no-man's land" of the East-West German border, to bring a bit of Christmas to troops keeping constant vigil.

Berlin command soldiers were to play Santa to orphans at more than 50 parties, proclaiming "Peace on Earth" in the very shadow of the communist wall.

In France, children of American military dependents were learning Christmas carols in French to participate in festivities with local children in the French town of Sarrebourg.

British RAF and U.S. Air Force personnel of air force bases at Bentwaters, Wethersfield, Lakenheath and Alconbury, England, scheduled tree-lighting ceremonies, caroling, band concerts and visits to homes for the aged, under a jointly sponsored "Remember Our Own" program.

Chaumont Air Force Base in France laid on a special Christmas program by the Vienna Boys' Choir at its Community Center.

In other countries as far apart as Italy, Spain, Turkey and Greece, Christmas was in the air at U.S. Army and Air Force installations.

And there was something else.

Everywhere there were Christmas preparations there also were plans for observances in the churches; candlelight services in Protestant chapels and midnight masses in Catholic, lest mankind forget at the end of a troubled 1964 the meaning of "Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men."

CAR FROM A CARD

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Here's why Harold (Zip) Brooks, assistant clubhouse man of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals got second baseman Julian Javier's 1953 automobile:

"Two months before the series I said 'Zip, if we win the National League pennant I'll give you my car,' " said Javier.

"When we won I had to give it to him. It was an old 1953 model, something I used around the city here."

Colorado May Spend More on Medicare

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado may have to spend another $800,000 on its expanded medicare program to get $7.1 million in federal matching funds, Gov. John Love said Wednesday.

The state chief executive made the announcement after a conference with the State Welfare Board and Welfare Director Thomas Bell. Bell was directed to submit a revised program to the federal government.

The meeting was called to discuss the state's program after federal officials refused to approve the state's new medical assistance for the aged program under the Federal Kerr-Mills Act.

Lack of approval prevented the state from receiving any of the matching funds.

The state should have received $1.5 million of the total amount to date, but had received nothing because of present objections to the program.

The governor said the changes to be made would not affect the benefits which the recipients of the program are now receiving.

A MAN OF TWO SPORTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack White, director of scouts for the New York Yankees, is a man well versed in two sports.

Georgia Tech-Alabama, LSU-Mississippi State, Nebraska-Oklahoma, Michigan - Northwestern, Indiana - Miami of Florida, Memphis State - McNeese, Florida A & M-Southern, Boston College-Villanova, Auburn - Alabama, Texas A & M-TCU.

When baseball ends, White scouts for the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. He's been doing it for 13 years.
